SKYLAB PERIL: HEART SHRINK

CAPE CANAVERAL (Reuter) — One of the top U.S. space doctors has warned that the Skylab astronauts face a new peril from prolonged weightlessness — shrinking hearts.

Dr. Charles Berry, director of life sciences for the U.S. space agency, disclosed Sunday night that previous U.S. astronauts returned to earth with their hearts an average three per cent smaller than before they went into space.

His disclosure was the first time the space agency has revealed the extent of the problem.

CP Air Offer Dispute

Times News Services

VANCOUVER — CP Air denied today it was unwilling to offer its 1,300 striking machinists the same contract package won by Air Canada employees last month.

CP Air president John Gilmer said that "statements have emanated from the headquarters of the machinists' union which indicate that CP Air isn't willing to effect a settlement of the union dispute on the same basis as that which was negotiated in the recent dispute with Air Canada.

"This is untrue. CP Air has been and is prepared to offer its employees the identical settlement made by Air Canada, including all fringe benefits."

The brief statement, billed by the airline as a "clarification" of its position, disputes reports during the five-day-old strike that the company was not ready to match the Air Canada agreement with its members of the International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers (IAM).

The union has said it would agree to the Air Canada package, including all fringe benefits, and has alleged that the company was unwilling to match Air Canada's two-year contract. CP Air has alleged the union demands were in excess of the Air Canada package.

The machinists have asked a total package increase of 22 per cent over 25 months with improvements in holidays and pension plan as well as a reduced work week.

'DISASTER' TAG FOR HAY

NANAIMO (CP) — Agriculture Minister Dave Stupich is "seriously considering describing pretty well the whole of the province a disaster area for forage production."

He said that due to the light snowfall in the Interior last year and little rain during the growing season, hay production has been at an all-time low.

If B.C. is declared a disaster area for forage the government would make funds available to bring forage into the area.

Tape Plan Rejected By Nixon

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rejecting Congressional compromise efforts, the White House said today President Nixon's position remains unchanged against allowing investigators to hear tape recordings of his White House conversations about Watergate.

"The president has made his position clear on this matter," Gerald Warren, deputy press secretary, told reporters. "I have nothing further to say."

Sens. Sam Ervin (Dem-N.C.) and Howard Baker (Rep-Tenn.) chairman and vice chairman respectively of the Senate Watergate Committee suggested that in a compromise move, Nixon permit them and special prosecutor Archibald Cox to have a private hearing of the tapes.

Meanwhile, John Ehrlichman ground through a fifth day of Watergate testimony today, saying Nixon asked eight times for a complete report on the wiretapping affair between last September and March 22.

He said the president never received satisfaction.

The Senate Watergate committee decided to hear seven more witnesses at its televised hearings before taking a summer recess. The committee tried to speed up its questioning, but Baker said it now is clear the hearings will run beyond Aug. 3 before any summer recess.

ICCS Dead Without Canadians

Times News Services

SAIGON — Ferenc Esztergalyos, the Hungarian chairman of the international peace supervision team, said today all commission ceasefire violation investigations and supervision of prisoner releases will stop when Canada leaves South Vietnam Tuesday.

The International Commission of Control and Supervision held its last regular meeting with Canadian participation today. However, it will hold a special meeting Tuesday with acting Canadian delegation leader Vernon Turner to wind up business.

Meanwhile, Canadians, many in bathing suits rather than the uniform they insisted on wearing even when other members of the International Commission of Control and Supervision (ICCS) didn't bother, loaded baggage today.

At 9 a.m. and 9:15 a.m. Tuesday, with a minimum of ceremony, they will take off in two Armed Forces Boeing 707s, leaving the ICCS they couldn't make work.

In one of the last acts, each Canadian will shake hands with Brig.-Gen. Phan Hoe Hiep, deputy chief of the South Vietnamese delegation to the two-part Joint Military Commission. This is being done at the South Vietnamese request.

If there were any plans for the Viet Cong's Provisional Revolutionary Government to say goodbye at the airport, it was not known by Canadians.

At Tan Son Nhut airbase where they are congregated the Canadians were mostly silent today. They stood amongst piles of baggage that was being picked up by trucks.

There was little banter.

The operations centre from where Canadians ran the over-all Canadian operation in Vietnam and from where "Operation Recovery" — the recovery of Capts. Ian Patten and Fletcher Thomson from the Viet Cong — was run was quiet.

"Bon Voyage Canada" said a sign over a free bar set up by the contractor who ran the ICCS mess.

LEAVE CANADA PARAMEDIC TOLD

QUESNEL (CP) — The federal immigration department has told an American paramedic who recently took over as the only ambulance driver here that he has until Aug. 13 to leave Canada.

Michael Stanley, who came here from San Francisco, said he was told that, as a United States citizen, he was breaking the law by accepting payment for his work without having applied for proper authorization. He is in Canada on a visitor's permit.

He receives $30 a day and lodging for himself, his wife and his daughter.

Pound, Dollar Gain

LONDON (UPI) — The U.S. dollar and the British pound sterling, travelling companions in the ups and downs of world money markets, moved upward in the currency exchanges today. Gold prices fell nearly everywhere.

Speculators and currency traders swapped money with one eye on Washington, where finance ministers of the International Monetary Fund's Group of 20 met to consider revisions in the whole international monetary system.

Pending any action the traders priced both the dollar and the pound higher. In London, where the pound is matched directly against the dollar, prices zig-zagged all day in wide swings.

The U.S. dollar gained on France's two-tiered money market. The financial dollar used by tourists and for private transactions rose to 4.14 francs against Friday's 4.105. The commercial dollar used for official deals increased from Friday's 4.07 francs to 4.0975.

In Zurich, the dollar bought 2.8265 Swiss francs at the close of business today, up from Friday's rate of 2.805. The dollar was up 1.29 per cent in Vienna to 17.25 schillings, and up slightly to 583.5 Italian lire in Milan.

But in a market which normally moves in fractions of a penny, the dollar's value against the British pound shot up and down by a cent or more during the day.

As the week began it took $2.5125 to buy a pound. By noon it was $2.515 but then suddenly it dropped one cent to $2.505. The price began climbing up again in the afternoon.

NEWS BRIEFS

FRASER RIVER SPILL PROBED

MLA Carl Lidden (NDP—Delta) said he saw a constant trail of oil, that ranged in width from a few feet to 50 or 60 feet, for five miles on the river.

Beef Shortage Seen

NEW YORK (AP) — Mayor John Lindsay says the city's regular meat suppliers have refused to sign contracts for providing beef during a two-week period next month to hospitals, jails and other municipal institutions.

Hijackers' Fate

BEIRUT (UPI) — Libya denounced air hijacking as "despicable" Sunday and said four air pirates who blew up a Japanese jumbo jet would stand trial — the first time hijackers have faced public punishment in the Arab world. Islamic law calls for the amputation of the arms of thieves, among other things, and this, Arab political sources said, could be the fate of the hijackers if they are convicted of stealing the aircraft.

Major Rezoning For Downtown

Victoria's zoning committee will get down to preliminary work Tuesday on one of its biggest-ever assignments — the preparation of a rezoning plan for the entire downtown area and its immediate hinterland.

Basic elements of the plan were outlined six weeks ago by the city planning department in a summary of the Central Area Study, and Tuesday's meeting will be the first in a series dealing in detail with individual aspects of the proposed new zoning policy.

The task is a complex one as it involves scrapping what is now virtually a blanket zone — the C2 commercial district stretching roughly from Central Park south to the Empress Hotel — and replacing it with a framework of 10 new or modified zoning categories.

These zones, say planning officials, will recognize the areas' individual characteristics, their present and future uses and their potential for redevelopment.

The general effect of the proposed new policy is to place curbs on permitted height and density over most of central Victoria which are more restrictive than the present limitations.

In its report to the zoning committee, the planning department proposes a similar approach to the one now being implemented witth regard to the rezoning of James Bay — that is, to look at the draft zoning categories and their accompanying regulations in scheduled stages.

Under the schedule, the first area to be studied Tuesday will be the downtown "ribbon" of about 12 blocks between Douglas and Blanshard, from Chatham south to Humboldt.

The bulk of this area is seen as a "primary zone for multi-purpose development to intensive standards," with a maximum height of 140 feet and floor area three times the site coverage.

The Central Area Study explaining the proposed rezoning will not be available to the public before late August, the planning department states.

About a month after that, the department hopes to get down to preparing an official community plan for the central part of the city, and start the protracted task of submitting the proposals to public hearings.

$10M Fire Rages

EUREKA, Calif. (AP) — A fire burned out of control in the Klamath and Six River national forests of Northern California today after charring 4,500 acres of timberland and causing more than $10 million damage.

N-Test Termed Failure

PARIS (UPI) — Newspapers today raised the possibility that France's second nuclear test in the South Pacific on the weekend may have been a technical failure.

Monitors in New Zealand reported radioactive fallout from the explosion posed no threat to life.

The device was the second in a planned series. As a result French radio reports said the next explosion may be delayed until September.

Red-Laos Accord Denied

Times News Services

VIENTIANE — There were conflicting reports today over whether Premier Souvanna Phouma and the Communist Pathet Lao have reached a military and political agreement in Laos.

The Associated Press said the Pathet Lao announced the agreement Sunday night. Reuters news agency quoted Laotian government and Pathet Lao spokesmen as denying today that any agreement had been reached.

The AP report said the agreement leaves the Communists in control of 80 per cent of the territory in Laos but that the rightists will control two-thirds of the population.

AP said the signing of the agreement is expected later this week.

Reuter quoted Interior Minister Pheng Phongsavang, government chief negotiator at peace talks here with the Pathet Lao, as saying that substantial progress had been made but that no agreement will be signed before the end of August.

Reuter also quoted Soth Phet Rasi, the Pathet Lao chief representative in Vientiane, as saying that important breakthroughs have been made but an agreement has not been reached.

AP said the agreement provides for a coalition government and the withdrawal of all foreign forces within 60 days.

The Associated Press report said Prince Souvanna Phouma, the 72-year-old neutralist who has been premier for 11 years, will head the new government. His half-brother, Prince Souphanouvong, leader of the Pathet Lao, is expected to be named senior deputy premier.

Reuter said the negotiations were stalled by a Pathet Lao demand that one of their leaders be appointed deputy premier.

The Associated Press said the agreement provides for the opposing Communist and rightist factions to control the territory they held at the time of the ceasefire Feb. 21. This recognizes the Communists' hold on 80 per cent of the country's area. The rightists, however, control the main cities along the Mekong River where much of the population lives.

In other developments: — U.S. senator Stuart Symington acting chairman of the senate armed services committee, says he will seek new laws to prevent the top civilian boss of each military service from being deliberately kept in the dark about such controversial actions as the secret air war in Cambodia.

— Supreme court justice Thurgood Marshall will consider whether a lower court was correct when it ordered an immediate halt to the U.S. bombing of Cambodia. He scheduled a hearing today in Washington of the suit brought by a congresswoman and four air force officers that caused a U.S. district judge in New York last week to order a bombing halt.

OLD CHURCH BOMBED

BELFAST (UPI) — British troops fired rubber bullets and tear gas canisters to break up rock-throwing Roman Catholics today after Protestant bombers demolished a 200-year-old church.

An army spokesman said the soldiers dispersed about 30 young men in Londonderry's Catholic Creggan area when they set fire to a car and threw stones at troops.

Authorities said St. Bridget's Roman Catholic church in Killyman was battered beyond repair early today by a bomb blast and would have to be demolished.

Explosives experts said the roof of the County Tyrone church was blown off and the interior demolished by a bomb placed near the altar.

British troops searched pedestrians, cars and buildings throughout Belfast today in an attempt to head off violence during the first meeting of the Northern Ireland Assembly in a year.

Authorities said the crackdown before Tuesday's opening session of the new assembly was aimed at keeping arms and ammunition out of the capital.

Rail Strike Not Felt By Stores

CP Air's 1,300 machinists walked off the job last Wednesday after last-minute negotiations broke off.

Rail traffic, meanwhile, remained at a standstill for the third day today as employees at Canada's two major railways continued their strike which began Saturday.

More than 7,000 non-operating employees of Canadian National Railways and CP Rail went on strike in British Columbia, Alberta, the Yukon and the Northwest Territories in the second of a series of regional strikes.

The strike was scheduled to end at midnight tonight.

The unions are seeking a 53-cent hourly increase — or 13.9 per cent average — in the first year of a two-year contract, and 13 cents more in the second year.

The companies have offered seven per cent in the first year and 6.5 in the second.

A union spokesman in Winnipeg said today the two railways have laid off about 1,000 of the 6,000 union members in the Manitoba-Saskatchewan region because of the strike.

CN, however, dispatched 28 freight trains from Winnipeg to points east and south during the weekend after resumption of rail service following a strike in Ontario.

The strike of non-operating railway employees in B.C., Alberta, the Northwest Territories and the Yukon which ends at midnight has not affected local businesses.

Several of them, however, feel that the carrier service between Vancouver and Vancouver Island is lacking.

Charlie Clarke, owner of a health food store, is one of those who feel that the Public Utilities Commission of a rejection by Canadian Courier Services Ltd. to operate between here and Vancouver is a backward step.

CCS is appealing the rejection and a hearing is slated for the appeal to be heard.

Clarke says CCS, which operated from March until the Dominion Day weekend when it was forced to close, is a far superior service to any other available.

"With CCS we could phone in an order at night," he reports, "and we would have it the next morning. Using other carriers it would take anywhere between a week and a week and a half."

Clarke said that CCS was also much more careful with the goods it transported.

"Another carrier we used," he says, "was very rough on parcels. We ship a lot of things in bottles and they were very rough on breakage."

Hobby shop operator Peter Brynen is another that faults the PUC rejection.

"I phoned the Attorney-General's department and the PUC office in Vancouver and found that no reason has to be given when an applicant is turned down.

"I find big carriers seem to be expensive," he added. "They just don't seem to be the right kind of thing for our kind of business."

D. G. Davidson, owner of a greeting cards shop, feels that farmers should not been offered special treatment when the railway strike was called.

"I realize the farmers have a tough road to hoe," he said, "but so do the rest of us."

Davidson, like the others, says the present strike, if extended could put a clamp on Victoria commerce.

"My fall stock comes in in August," he said, "If it keeps on this way we'll be fouled up."

In an outburst of partisan irritation, the committee's chief counsel, Samuel Dash, was criticized by Republican counsel Fred Thompson during a time-consuming line of questioning.

Dash was asking Ehrlichman, former White House adviser, whether he was aware that Nixon had been advised in 1971 that burglaries committee to gain national security information were "clearly illegal."

In pressing Ehrlichman for an answer, Dash several times interrupted as Ehrlichman's responses wandered away from the point. Thompson objected. Baker said the questions were taking too long.

"We haven't had answers, we've had speeches," Dash said.

Thompson shot back: "That's your conclusion, Mr. Dash, and we're not here for your conclusions."

Ehrlichman also produced congressional documents today alleging that six days after John Kennedy became president, one of his assistants began an intensive examination of "many, many" income tax returns.

Gold Doesn't Flow At Yukon's Casino

By DENNIS BELL

DAWSON CITY, Y.T. (CP) — Diamond Tooth Gertie's Gambling Hall, Canada's only legal casino, is alive with the sound of shuffling cards for the second straight season—after reporting a measly $700 net profit on blackjack bets that ran well over $400,000 last summer.

"Luckily, we're not in the gambling business to make money," joked Colin Mayes of the Klondike Visitors' Association, a non-profit organization that operates the casino under the watchful eye of the territorial government.

"The name of the game as far as we're concerned is tourism—the more we can pack in the better it is for us and the better it is for the Yukon. The casino is only one of a number of attractions that Dawson City offers."

Actually, a $700 net profit on a casino within spitting distance of the Arctic Circle, accessible only by light aircraft and gravel road, and far off the beaten tourist trails, isn't all that bad.

Consider the financial picture of Diamond Tooth Gertie's, as painted in poker chips by Mr. Mayes. Gross earnings totalled $73,000 on the three-month gambling season, but wages ate a $40,000 hole, $12,000 went for capital costs, and just about all the rest went for costumes, rent, liquor stocks and other incidentals. Net profit: $700.

About $40,000 of gross earnings represent between 10 and 13 per cent of all bets wagered on the blackjack tables, wheel games and bingo—that's the odds favoring the house over the players.

"The biggest criticism people have of our gambling operation is the odds on the eight blackjack tables heavily favoring the house," said Mr. Mayes. "If we can get the volume, we'll lower the odds by changing some of the blackjack rules we've been using."

Last year, Diamond Tooth Gertie's—named after a Klondike Gold Rush character whose ostentatious display of wealth centred on a diamond jammed between her two front teeth—was open for business six nights a week from the middle of June until early September.

This year, the casino is open only four nights a week, on Mondays, Wednesdays, Fridays and Saturdays, until Sept. 5.

The gambling operation was established under recent amendments to the Criminal Code of Canada that, in effect, allowed the provinces and the two northern territories to establish their own ground rules on gambling.

In the Yukon, Territorial Commissioner James Smith took a long, hard look at the proposal from the visitors' association in this ghost town of 700 residents, and decided to go along with the casino plan, provided all profits are plowed back into tourism developments operated by the KVA.

VICTORIA WOMAN INJURED IN U.S.

A Victoria woman is in critical condition in Seattle's Virginia Mason Hospital following a hit-and-run accident early Sunday in Port Angeles, Wash.

Carol Wilyman, 19, of 3369 Quadra suffered massive head injuries when the car hit her as she walked along a downtown Port Angeles street at 1:45 a.m. Sunday, Port Angeles police said today.

She was taken to Olympic Memorial Hospital and several hours later was flown by helicopter to Seattle, police said.

Later, 26-year-old Donald Corning of Port Angeles was arrested and charged in connection with the mishap.

Meanwhile considerable low cloud will lie along the outer coast both days. Occasional light rain is expected on the Charlottes late today and will spread to the northern mainland overnight.

Bristol Bay Faces Fish Ban

KING SALMON, Alaska (AP) — Bristol Bay, once the world's greatest red salmon fishing grounds, probably will be closed to commercial fishing next year to save the meagre remnants of its glory.

A final decision won't be made until late fall but officials of the Alaska department of fish and game have little doubt what that decision will be. They say preliminary data from a fisheries research program off Adak Island in the Aleutians indicates next season will be worse than the one just past.

And the one just past was the worst in the bay's history.

"I'm sure if it looks as bad as it looks now, we'll decide to close it," said Darwin Biwer, Bristol Bay area biologist for fish and game. "It's getting more and more likely."

Only about 2.3 million of the prized fish returned to the bay this season and about 700,000 were taken by fishermen, the remaining 1.6 million, the escapement, went back up the bay's huge and intricate river system to spawn. The catch was pitiful for the fishermen and the escapement inadequate for fish and game, especially on the heels of a miserable season in 1972.

There are various villains and vagaries to blame for what has happened to the bay, depending on who is doing the blaming and how emotional he is. The most immediate and overriding factor is the weather, two consecutive years of dreadful cold weather.

"These winters (1970-71 and 1971-72) came right at a time when our large peak escapement was in the gravel and in the more vulnerable stages," Biwer explained.

"And apparently, because we had very cold weather back to back, the ice pack on the high seas was quite extensive. It kept the ocean temperatures a few degrees below normal. It caused a chain reaction along the food chain."

Cold, though, is a fact of life in Alaska. Truman Emberg, head of the Western Alaska Co-operative Marketing Association in the bay village of Dillingham, thinks man himself opened the door to the cold.

"It (the bay) was overfished, from which it's never recovered," Emberg said as his fingers trailed through his wispy white hair. "Back in the 1930s, when this fishing ground was at its peak, five years out of six we took 20 million fish a year out. It's just simply collapsed on us.

"But after this overfishing, the Japanese started taking fish," he added. "and the interception of our fish by our own fellow nationals and fellow Alaskans at False Pass is another serious problem. The drain on it has been steady. We could survive it when we had good survival of the fish, but with these two bad winters, it all fell in."

PHANTOM CAR FRAUD BARED

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A $400-million insurance fraud ring based on phantom cars has been disclosed by investigators from Pennsylvanis state police, the FBI and insurance companies.

The fraud involves inventing a registration number for a non-existent car, reporting the car stolen and collecting the insurance, authorities said.

Investigations indicate perhaps as many as 250 persons using 1,200 phoney names are involved.

Thirty-six arrests have been made this month, but investigators are keeping the identities of the suspects secret, hoping to catch ringleaders.

Alka-Seltzer Ban Urged By Nader

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Ralph Nader-supported health research group wants the government to ban sales of Alka-Seltzer and publicly censure the manufacturer of the antacid.

The organization made the request Sunday, contending Miles laboratories, the makers of Alka-Seltzer, withheld data from a federal panel that declared the antacid safe and probably effective.

The health research group has criticized Alka-Seltzer on grounds that it contains aspirin which may cause internal bleeding in persons who have ulcers or other stomach problems.

The group said the product often is touted for relief of symptoms which resemble upset stomach but really may be caused by conditions for which aspirin is bad.

The Food and Drug Administration (FDA) April 4 published the recommendations of a scientific panel which reviewed all over-the-counter antacid products.

The board concluded that Alka-Seltzer, among others, was safe and probably effective.

However, Dr. Sidney Wolfe, director of the health research group, said Miles Laboratories submitted additional information to the FDA on June 4, including an unpublished study which Wolfe said had been in the company's hands for five years.

"Had this study been made available to the panel before it concluded working on the monograph, the debate might have resulted in Alka-Seltzer being removed from the market, for it shows that Alka-Seltzer causes significant bleeding in normal individuals — contrary to the oft-repeated claims by Miles Laboratories," Wolfe said in a letter to Dr. Alexander Schmit, the new FDA commissioner.

Wolfe asked Schmidt to remove Alka-Seltzer from the market "until it has been reformulated without aspirin and to publicly censure Miles Laboratories . . . for deliberately withholding important data . . ."

Miles Laboratories had this response:

"We resent the outrageous and unjustified conduct of the health research group in the allegation that we withheld adverse information about Alka-Seltzer from the FDA and the antacid advisory panel. The research referred to was conducted by an independent expert gastroenterologist in Australia, and applying scientific methods, he concluded that Alka-Seltzer produced no significant increase in gastrointestinal blood loss."

CHILD KILLER GIVEN LIFE

WORCESTER, England (AP) — A 21-year-old man who murdered three children in the house where he was a lodger was sentenced today to life imprisonment.

Judge Sir John Ashworth ordered that David McGreavy be held for at least 20 years before being considered for parole.

McGreavy pleaded guilty to the murder of Paul Ralph, 4, and his sisters, Dawn, 2, and Samantha, nine months, in Worcester last April. Their bodies were found impaled on railings.

Oil Tax Deadline Tuesday

EDMONTON (CP) — Oil companies have until Tuesday to decide whether they will pay a higher royalty on crude oil production or a mineral tax on crude reserves still in the ground.

The Alberta government isn't saying how many companies have made the decision or what those decisions were, but points out that companies which fail to indicate their choice by Tuesday will have to pay the mineral tax.

The choice was offered to the companies by the government last July when it announced a new taxation policy designed to yield an additional $100 million a year from the petroleum industry.

The choice is between accepting a new royalty rate of 21 per cent or a 16-mill tax on reserves, plus the previous royalty of 16 2-3 per cent on production. About 33,000 oil pools in the province would be affected.

The department of mines and minerals has stipulated that a company will not be permitted to split its properties, paying the reserves tax on some and the 21-per-cent royalty on others.

Supply Controls Loom

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The White House probably will announce this week strong measures to control the dwindling supply of crude oil and other petroleum products.

Administration officials said a program was being drafted by John Love, the former Colorado governor who now is President Nixon's chief energy adviser. They said final decisions had not been made, but a mandatory oil allocation proposal was under consideration.

The allocation system would be put into effect in mid-August under preliminary drafts of the program.

Officials said the program at this stage does not involve any direct consumer rationing.

Instead, the preliminary plans call for it to apply to products sold by wholesalers. It also would cover crude oil going to refineries.

A Bad Connection

One of the chief complainants about rats and raw sewage in a drainage ditch on Broadway has learned it was his own sewer connection that was faulty.

The solution was discovered by Saanich works department who did some digging and found the sanitary sewer at the home of Otto Van Ek, 547 Broadway, had been connected improperly to a surface drain.

Residents of the street had complained of rats in the drainage ditch and feared children at play would be bitten. A number of rats were poisoned and trapped before works committee chairman Ald. William Campbell looked into the situation Thursday.

It appears that at Van Ek's house built 18 months ago, a contractor made the mistake of linking the sewer outlet to the wrong pipe.

Dr. Maxwell Maltz, internationally acclaimed Lecturer, Plastic Surgeon, Author of Psycho-Cybernetics, together with 2 internationally known authorities on self fulfillment, is coming to Victoria for a two-day seminar.

Get It While We Can

It is difficult to understand the action of the Capital Regional District Board's parks committee in spurning the offer of the provincial government to add a 400-acre forested tract to the existing 3000-acre East Sooke Park. The full Board should certainly reverse the committee's recommendation and lose no time in acquiring the property which has been so commendably made available by Recreation Minister Radford.

The parks committee is even reported to be favorable to logging the area in question. Both these opinions are in total opposition to the philosophy of the Regional Board which over the past several years has done an admirable job of purchasing suitable parklands for the permanent use of the public. East Sooke Park is a highly prized, major acquisition resulting from this program, and the opportunity to add a sizable section to it, with access from East Sooke Road, at little or no cost is one to be seized without delay.

The future will undoubtedly show that the parks acquisition plan of the Capital Regional District was one of the most rewarding functions ever given to the board. The result has been an excellent chain of parks of various sizes and locations, from hilltops to seashore. But it cannot be thought that the job is completed, for each year demonstrates the need for expanded outdoor facilities for a population which is not only growing but also becoming more appreciative of the health and pleasure to be derived from the use of parklands.

The development of East Sooke Park should be continued, and the prospect of gaining a heavily-wooded area — most of the park having been logged in past years — is particularly welcome.

The Shadow of Olympic Deficits

With its lasp gasp before adjournment, Parliament passed a bill which will help fund the 1976 Montreal Olympics. But the method of funding the games leaves a few misgivings. Besides a national lottery and a special sale of stamps and postal products the federal government is going to mint special coin sets costing the taxpayer $70 million, the profits from which — an estimated $130 million — will help pay for the games.

Taxpayers may wonder if the federal helping hand will be sufficient. The final Expo 67 deficit topped $285 million, despite assurances that it would be much lower. Similar expressions of confidence coming from Olympic planners have a familiar expensive ring. And the basic misgiving remains: should the federal government financially back a province that first commits itself and then wrings its hands about how to pay for its venture?

While it is true that Ottawa agreed to aid the games only after it received assurances that no federal government money would be required to make up future deficits, somebody will have to bail out the games if a large deficit is incurred. Quebec has pledged $5 to $10 million and the city of Montreal might scrape up a little more if a deficit occurs. In the event of a large deficit, however, Ottawa is sure to receive the first pleading petition.

Considering the proposed $310 million price tag on the Montreal games, Premier Barrett was wisely cool to suggestions that the event be held in British Columbia. When Munich added up all the costs for the 1972 games it came to $600 million — a very professional sum for what is essentially an amateur event. Many Canadians look forward to hosting the '76 Olympics. If Quebec and Montreal can keep the cost within reason they will deserve a gold medal. But if the deficit reaches Olympic proportions there should be no 100-yard dash to the public coffers.

Attilio Randy

Born in Italy 87 years ago and for 61 years a resident of this community, Attilio Randy was a quiet citizen and his death last week would not be widely noted. But Mr. Randy was so much a man of the soil, so enthusiastic an exponent of the healthful virtues of the garden plot and all growing things, so fully a partner with Nature in bringing seeds and plants to fruition, that in his passing all men of good will have lost a colleague, all lovers of the earth have lost a friend.

For years he taught that strength and goodness are to be found in the soil, and proved it by his vigor and his simple humanitarian pursuits. Many a local resident was the recipient of his generosity in the form of tomatoes which he thought of as jewels, lettuce and carrots that he prized above roses, and a homespun philosophy that marked him as a full participant in the cosmic scheme of things.

For years he sought to encourage the art of gardening, particularly among youth, for he saw in a close affinity with the living soil a source of human fortitude and an answer to many of humanity's problems. A good man, Attilio Randy.

BRUCE HUTCHISON

Final Answers in the Forest

The ancient woodsman and his equally mad friend, the college economist, were toiling in the Pacific jungle today at the kind of job which an eminent statesman, Bryce Mackasey, has described as being far beneath a Canadian's proper dignity. But the toilers didn't worry about that. They had no dignity to get beneath, nor any need to import foreigners, as Mr. Mackasey suggested, to do the nation's hard work.

Strange as it may seem, they enjoyed it, without a dollar in wages, despite Mr. Mackasey's warning against such antisocial folly. Even in these remote woods, however, the two men could not escape the North American energy crisis. They felt it, quite literally, in their bones and muscles.

The economist, though not very old, found that his energies were considerably less than they used to be as he cut cedar shakes for the roof of a log cabin. Most Canadians, he reflected, would not know what he was doing with a crude steel blade called a froe (a word almost lost to the national language) and many had not heard of the hand-made shake, the Indian ancestor of the machine-made shingle. Yet not long ago the froe had been the universal tool of the Pacific coast, logs and shakes the only means of shelter.

Dismal Science

Well, the ignorance of the modern, Mackasey generation didn't matter to the economist who, skilled in his dismal science, knew that it was mostly nonsense and he defied it. When shingles cost $15 a bundle and third-class hemlock lumber some $200 a thousand board feet (as against about $20 in his youth), it was a peculiar satisfaction, a rebel's reward, to build a cabin of native materials, for nothing, except his unpaid labor, and thus scorn the whole inflated economic system. But as the noonday sun broke through the tall trees and lighted the swamp he realized, painfully, that his energies, like those of the continent, were fast running down.

His companion was older and his private energy crisis more critical. To tell the truth, he was much too old for his double-bitted axe and long cross-cut saw which seemed to weigh more with every passing summer. Still, he felt some satisfaction, too, when he could defy the economic system by getting his fuel without paying a cent for it.

He cut only dead trees, of course, and preserved the living for his grandchildren, in the hope that they might some day reject the Mackasey doctrine, shed their dignity and learn how to live — a vain hope, perhaps, in this enlightened age, but it kept him going. And if his energies were also going, the forest, he observed, had no such problem.

What Crisis?

There was sufficient energy of flowing sap, multiplying cell and surging growth in his modest woodlot to light the city of New York, he guessed, but fortunately it was used for a better purpose. The huge, moss-covered maple beside him produced enough energy in the growing season to heat a fair-sized apartment block even in Winnipeg's winter, but it had more useful plans of its own.

The forest of dumb, mindless vegetables, the tiny seedling or the giant cedar, and all the innumerable creatures, animal and insect, living here wasted no particle of energy, felt no lack of it and constantly renewed their assets while man alone, the superior species, found himself in a crisis of his own deliberate making. After only five millenia of civilized life, that was quite an achievement.

From the lake nearby, above the clank of froe and click of axe, came the stuttering voice of that civilization, the roar of speed boats which, on all the lakes of North America, must use almost enough gasoline to solve the crisis and suddenly threaten the profits of those rich Arab sheiks. America's pursuit of happiness was necessarily expensive and its waste of energy well justified if the pursuit succeeded, but it didn't seem to succeed very well. The tired old men in the woods were probably happier than the energetic youngsters in the speed boats.

Yet that was an unworthy thought, and hypocritical. For even the men working with hand tools used other energies besides their own. Their tools had been made in distant factories powered no doubt by oil and electricity. Their grimy overalls and ragged shirts had consumed some power in the manufacturing process. No civilized human being was immune to the crisis or innocent of its cause.

Ravenous Appetite

Only the inferior, non-human species could make that claim and even they were at the mercy of man's ravenous appetite for energy needed in the pursuit of happiness, the sacred living standard, the god of the Just Society, the dignity which no good Canadian should ever be beneath. So, in contrapuntal harmony, or discord, the sounds of primitive tools and the latest overboard engines mingled under the hot summer sun to shatter the silence and proclaim the crisis. Possibly they also proclaimed the answer, if humans had the sense to listen.

That, the old man supposed, was unlikely at the moment but at least he had some cordwood for the winter, if his furnace ran short of oil, and his companion had enough shakes for a cabin. Both had pursued happiness in their mad fashion and, for one day anyhow, had captured it. On this point they agreed and retired from the woods to refresh their energies with certain stimulants made in Scotland, presumably with energy of some sort. The forest said nothing and went about its business, ignorant of the crisis.

The Shame of the Pacific

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. — From a strategic point of view there isn't any doubt that the Trust Territories of Micronesia, whose supervision was awarded to Washington by the U.N. following the Second World War, have great significance.

In the first issue of "Strategic Review," published by the United States Strategic Institute, Adm. John S. McCain Jr., formerly Commander in Chief, Pacific, for all American forces including those in South Korea, Japan and Indochina, writes of the need "to do something with the Trust Territories:

"Because if the Trust Territories are not kept under the immediate control of the United States, the next fall-back position is Honolulu, and that's a long way back. The Trust Territories, if properly used, will put the United States in a position not too remote from advanced bases in the Philippines and other forward positions."

Technically Washington does not "own" the enormous and sparsely populated Trust Territories of Micronesia which, in theory, are a U.N. tutelage. But, as administrator, the U.S.A. has grave responsibilities to the Melanesian and Polynesian peoples who inhabit the area.

Close to Asia

Nowadays the defence department thinks of Micronesia primarily in terms of potential and actual base facilities relatively close to Asia, the Philippines and Japan. But its initial concern was with the convenience of the Trust Territories for nuclear testing.

Indeed, some of the most famous of these gruesome experiments were made on little-known Pacific islands. The United States paid as little attention to the safety or convenience of nearby peoples as France has later in atmospheric tests close to the Tahiti archipelago — tests that have been opposed by the World Court and that outraged international opinion.

Of the human beings who suffered from American tests, the best known are the handful of seafarers who originally inhabited Bikini, an atoll since immortalized by scanty bathing suits. Hamlet J. Barry III, directing attorney of the Marshall Islands office of Micronesian Legal Services Corporation, wrote to President Nixon May 4, 1973, on behalf of the displaced Bikinians who were removed to make way for the blast.

Mr. Barry reminded the chief executive that on Jan. 24, 1946, the Pentagon announced Bikini had been selected for a series of nuclear explosions. One reason was that it contained "only a few people." Barry adds: "They may have been 'few' from the United States point of view, but from the Bikinians' own point of view, they were all the people."

Lingering Effects

Nevertheless, the irioj (or chief), Juda, had told the military governor of the Marshalls that "the United States could use Bikini if it would result in kindness and benefit to all mankind." On Feb. 23 the 200 Bikinians were removed to uninhabited Rongerik in the northern Marshalls.

The Bikinians traditionally associate Rongerik with Libokra, a poisonous female spirit. Since many of the fish on Rongerik were indeed poisonous and there was little other food, the Bikinians suffered illness and malnutrituion. Therefore Washington ordered them sent to another atoll, Ujelang.

But the Pentagon resolved to start a new test series on Eniwetok and the inhabitants of that island instead were sent to Ujelang. The Bikinians had to stay on hated Rongerik. When they were found to be almost starving, they were again shipped off, this time to Kwajalein. Still later, they were sent to Kili.

Devoid of Resources

Kili proved almost devoid of the maritime resources on which Bikinians depend. Food became so short that a ton was air-dropped; since parachutes were not used, most of this spoiled. The Bikinians were given an old converted whaleboat which was promptly wrecked. They decided Kili enana, "Kili is no good." A second boat given to them was destroyed by typhoon Lola in 1957. A small trust fund set aside for them failed because of poor investment planning.

In 1968 President Johnson promised that part of the original Bikini atoll would be cleaned up so the inhabitants could return. Nothing has happened. The Bikinians don't know if they'll ever go home. What they call home remains bulldozed and radioactive. Last Jan. 30, the exiles requested compensation and return to a sanitized homeland. The record leaves them little reason for optimism.

Meanwhile the lovely Pacific Islands that once attracted Paul Gauguin and Robert Louis Stevenson to dwell among them remain strategic pawns (for the U.S.A.) or nuclear laboratories (for France). When great nations are advised "to do something" about these atolls, that "something" appears to have little "to do" with the people who inhabit them.

LETTERS FROM OUR READERS

Tanker Traffic

Since it appears that the approval of the U.S. government of the trans-Alaska oil pipeline makes it seem inevitable that big oil tankers will be using the Strait of Juan de Fuca to deliver oil to the Cherry Point Refinery in Washington state within the next five years, the problem now is to find means of protecting the beaches around Victoria and the rest of the Southwest coast of Vancouver Island from major oil spills, and therefore threatened serious devaluation of property values, of beach and resort lands.

The key task will be to work out methods of controlling the speed and direction of oil tankers in Juan de Fuca Strait and Puget Sound. Since it is likely that the tankers to be used would take more than a mile to stop after being holed on rocks, if they did not become wrecked, the ships must be slowed down to a pace that would avoid such accidents. The best way to do this certainly would be to have the tankers towed by Canadian towboats, and to have the towboats manned by Canadian pilots who know every part of the Juan de Fuca channel and Puget Sound channel, for the last 75 miles of the route.

It probably would take at least three large ocean tugs to tow a 200,000-ton oil tanker, with one at the bow, one at the stern, and another at one side, with the tanker's engines stopped, so that the tanker becomes a dead weight, like a loaded barge.

The whole point of this system would be to take over control from American pilots, who could not be expected to slow down to a crawl if they were instructed to meet rigid delivery schedules, with two to four tankers a day making the run from Valdez, Alaska, to Cherry Point.

No doubt the Canadian Department of Environment could negotiate an oil tanker-towing agreement with the U.S., owners of the oil tankers, without going through Washington, D.C., political channels, if the tanker owners realized such an agreement would greatly reduce the insurance risks involved. The U.S. insurance firms covering the oil tanker operations should welcome such an agreement, since radio and electronic navigation systems alone could not afford nearly as effective controls. — E. T. Nesbitt, 955 Burrard Street, Vancouver, B.C.

Delays

This must be the best joke of the year.

When I asked the Post Office why it took so long (up to 13 days) to get second-class mail from Toronto the answer quote "this class of mail is now transported by freight trains."

On another subject, why don't the ferry people warn intending motorists to leave their cars behind, if in any way it is possible during the summer holiday season. Every day thousands of tourists must be turned off from ever visiting the Island again by the interminable delays in getting aboard, and these are no joke if the traveller has young children along. — J. P. Thornton, 943 Wilmer St.

60 YEARS AGO

From the Times of July 30, 1913:

Construction of the Haultain Street branch of the British Columbia Electric Railway is being delayed according to an official of the street railway company, by the condition of Bay Street, which has to be graded and widened by the city council. As there is a large quantity of rock to be taken out, and the street has to be widened near Quadra Street and again at another point, work which has been held back by the city's inability to commence grading operations through the stringency, there is considerable doubt whether the line can be constructed this year.

Freedom and Delight Of the Graceful Dolphin

By JOHN FOWLES

(A review in the New Statesman of two new books, Whales, Dolphins and Seals, by D. E. Gaskin, and Man's Place, by Karl-Erik Fichtelius and Sverre Sjolander.)

You wake up one morning, like the fellow in Kafka's Metamorphosis, to find you are something else. It can't be a cockroach, because you are hurtling through a liquid dusk. Your poor vision, like your lack of taste and smell, seems no loss, since you've been granted an unimaginably rich extension (twentyfold, to be exact) of a sense you hardly possessed in human form: that of hearing. It is now astoundingly sharp and covers a huge range of high frequencies.

You are not alone, your travelling clan keeps up a constant whistling conversation all around you. Nor are you silent yourself. You have another splendid extension of your faculties: besides whistles you can emit 800 clicks a second and these clicks and their echoes are like sight.

You asdic the sea-bottom and its contours; having an excellent memory, you know exactly where you are. It's like being an airline pilot on a clear day.

Now you echo-locate a shoal of herring ahead and you give the crescendo search-whistle to an invisible female friend beside you. You know that like you she is feeling excited and playful. Not having any of the paralinguistic visual aids to individual and emotional expression owned by other mammals (gesturing limbs, mobile facial features and the rest), your kind have learnt to put it all into voice.

Though in mid-Atlantic you are splendidly warm, at just the same temperature you had in your human body; but your new body is also superbly designed to eliminate all drag. Driving forward with an effortless lancing power at each dexterous flick of your elastic tail, you rise towards the shimmering herring, you take one, then you soar in ecstasy out of the water, 12 feet up, attempt a back-somersault, crash down with a gigantic splash, and squeal with laughter.

It is such fun that you dive, gather speed and do it again, another glorious parabola, another thwacking pratfall. All around you your friends are doing the same. And you know why you're laughing. You have a bigger and more complicated brain than your previous human one; and unlike man, you are perfectly adapted to your element. You are freedom and delight, the most graceful and talkative thing in all creation. You are a dolphin.

Here are two books that try, in very different ways, to lift a curtain on the least known field in zoology: the world of the pelagic cetaceans.

Man's Place is an attempt to put man in his place, to cut him down to size. On whale and dolphin intelligence, it is optimistically speculative; on man it is rather naively, if rightly, dooming and damning.

I don't think there is really much of a case for a cetacean counter-culture, a kind of Noble Whale — Saint Moby? — in place of the Noble Savage dear to the Romantics; but that we are therefore free to destroy one of the great innocent mysteries of nature does not follow, and I have complete sympathy with Swedish anger in that area.

Dr. Gaskin's well-illustrated book is much more detailed, much more scientific and much safer — if less political — to read. Though he concentrates on the Antipodean species, there are excellent general accounts of cetacean physiology and behavior (both in the wild and in captivity), as well as of the history of whaling and of the current conservation situation.

He won't be tempted into discussion of language and intelligence ("much more questionable than popular literature would have us believe"). Of the first we know too little; of the second, experiments with dolphins have so far revealed a problem-solving ability of about chimpanzee standard.

But he concedes that a great deal depends on how one defines intelligence; and if there is a semantic equivalent to the extraordinarily rich phonetic output of apparently all whales and dolphins, the linguistic discoveries to be made by some biological Michael Ventris of the future defy imagination.

Evolutionally the darkness and vastness of the oceans made such an elaborately-voiced search-and-find system essential if a species was to feed and breed. Fichtelius and Sjolander even argue that a trumpeting humpback might, at the right sound-layer beneath the sea, be heard the entire width of the Pacific.

Talk and laughter

The notion of great voices baying menus and greetings through the endless submarine halls is very charming, though Gaskin doesn't confirm it; but nor does he explain how members of the more solitary species do manage to find each other. We know sadly little of the social and breeding life of even the commonest whales, and several rarer species have completely blank files beyond the anatomical evidence of the occasional stranded corpse.

In captivity, there is the unique rapidity with which dolphins learn to mimic and to perform tricks, including at least one, leaping out of their pools onto dry land, which denies all survival instinct. Their heat-insulation system is so good that they literally and very rapidly boil to death out of water, and their lack of fear (or capacity for trust) here is very remarkable.

In the wild, too, they show some touchingly 'human' behaviour patterns. Healthy dolphins will lift a sick one to the surface to breathe; females will act as midwives while another is giving birth, taking care of the calf as soon as it appears; they even have a creche system, parents leaving their young in charge of a "nurse" in some sheltered inlet while they go out to sea to feed and play (the latter generally towards evening, exactly like working humans).

Their ancient friendliness to man seems merely an extension of their loving kindness towards each other. Difficult, when reading about them, not to think in terms of a dawn of altruism in the marine struggle for life.

The huge cetacean brain-cortex is probably connected with the need for a rich acoustic memory-bank on which to base hunting and navigational decisions. Bats use the same echo-system, but have no need for memory, whence their comparatively much smaller brains. A whale is really like a well-equipped modern strike-bomber, a swimming radar complex.

The oil in the forehead of the sperm whale, for instance, is functionally a beaming-device used to home on the squid, which is what the species mainly feeds on (and also gets savaged by, since this whale can dive to a thousand fathoms and hunt the 40-foot monster Architeuth's at that depth).

But the sperm whale is not really a good argument for intelligence, if we define the latter in terms of adaptive reaction. Though it did tend to swim upwind from the old sailing whalers and make itself harder to chase, it has never acquired — as it easily could in physical terms — an efficient flight behavior when faced with man. At times it will almost queue up to be gunned. Fichtelius and Sjolander try to interpret this divine pacifism as something conscious, but it is not convincing. The poor brutes just never learnt.

Outside the sexual clashes between the bulls, the lack of aggression in the whole order is striking. Not a single dolphin (even the so-called "killer whale") has ever turned on its trainer. Old horror stories of rogue cachalots, smashed boats and towering tailflukes, were always the result of bestial provocation on man's part first — a matter on which both books leave one with the same helpless rage.

That the whaling nations didn't know any better in the unscientific past is understandable, but that we can still persecute these magnificent and harmless giants as they cruise through their meadows of krill soup, that since 1945 we have very nearly exterminated the blue (the largest creature in the entire history of the planet), the finback and the humpback, that the Japanese and the Russians are even today descimating the sea and are now turning to the smaller whales . . . History will one day whale for us, and we shall deserve every barbed anathema it sinks into our selfish little monkey skulls.

Unmaking the Myth of Pierre Laporte

By ROBERT McKENZIE
The Toronto Star

QUEBEC — The clumsy attempt to make the late Quebec labor minister, Pierre Laporte, the hero and martyr of Canadian national unity has blown up in the faces of its perpetrators.

As a symbol of Canadian federalism, Laporte is something of an embarrassment since the reports indicating that he entertained unsavory links with the underworld.

Since his kidnapping and assassination by members of the Front de Liberation du Quebec in October, 1970, dozens of streets, libraries and schools — North York's Pierre Laporte Junior High is just one of many — have been named after him.

The main bridge over the St. Lawrence river into Quebec city bears his name. A postage stamp was struck in his honor.

Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau set the trend with his Oct. 19, 1970, eulogy of Laporte in the House of Commons when he prophesied, "The name of Pierre Laporte will be repeated by school children for generations as a symbol of our steadfast opposition to division, disunity and hatred in Canada."

Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield mourned Laporte as a "hero of democratic values . . . a great humanitarian . . . a man who has rightfully been called one of the fathers of the new Quebec.

"Pierre Laporte has become a martyr in the eyes of all democratically minded Canadians," Stanfield told the House of Commons.

That same day in the House of Commons, T. C. Douglas, then leader of the New Democratic Party, spoke in the same vein.

"Pierre Laporte was a man who believed in the unity of the Canadian people, who worked toward that end and maintained a bridge betweeen the French-speaking and English-speaking people of this country," said Douglas. "He is a martyr now in that cause."

Quebec Premier Robert Bourassa likewise, in a television address Oct. 18, 1970, said Laporte had "paid with his life the defence of fundamental freedoms."

But the expression of distress, sorrow or anger at his death is one thing: It is something quite different to have depicted him as a dedicated patriot who deliberately sacrificed his life so that future generations of Canadians could live united and free.

As for the deification of Laporte which ensued, English-Canadian politicians such as Stanfield and Douglas can be excused. They can't be blamed for not having an intimate knowledge of a Quebec cabinet minister's makeup and stature.

But Trudeau and Bourassa and the other Quebec politicians who have exploited the Laporte myth knew the late labor minister. They knew he was no burning idealist, but a run-of-the-mill politician with above-average ambitions, who had seen his share of the seamier side of public life.

As a journalist (he was also a lawyer), Laporte wrote campaign material for members of the late Maurice Duplessis' cabinet while lambasting Duplessis' Union Nationale government in the newspaper Le Devoir.

'Mr. 10 Per Cent'

His political career almost came to an end before it started in 1961 when he made his first successful bid for office as a Liberal candidate in a by-election. His Union Nationale opponent revealed that, while he was parliamentary correspondent of Le Devoir, Laporte had been involved in renting heavy construction equipment to the Liberal government.

A cartoon at that time showed a pair of caterpillar tracks leading into the Quebec legislature buildings. The caption said: "Pierre Laporte's arrival at the Quebec Parliament.

As a cabinet minister under Lesage in the mid-1960s, Laporte was dubbed "Monsieur Dix Pour Cent" (Mr. 10 per cent) by his Union Nationale adversaries. The reference was to alleged kickbacks on government contracts.

Investigators working on Quebec's organized crime inquiry have revealed to the press that in 1969 links had been established between the Laporte organization in the Liberal leadership campaign and several leading Montreal underworld figures.

Quebec Justice Minister Jerome Choquette, under persistent questioning by the Parti Quebecois, has admitted in the Quebec National Assembly the existence of a police report on a meeting between Laporte and two suspected underworld leaders a few weeks later, during the April 30, 1970, Quebec election campaign.

In the weeks preceding the Quebec elections, Laporte was widely rumored to be deeply in debt, both personally and because of his unsuccessful leadership campaign.

The figure generally mentioned for his campaign debts was $250,000. Finance Minister Raymond Garneau told a group of reporters last week that about $150,000 remained to be paid when Laporte died.

Bourassa admits he had heard "rumors" concerning Laporte before appointing him to his cabinet. He says he rejected them because he did not consider them "incriminating evidence."

The premier, already embarrassed by the charge that he received campaign contributions himself from William Obront, the Montreal meat magnate named in a royal commission report as having underworld links, may have trouble convincing people he was really ignorant of Laporte's connections.

But the damage to Bourassa from what is now being called l'affaire Laporte goes much deeper.

It will now be much more difficult for the federalist parties — the Liberals, the Union Nationale and the Creditistes — to use October, 1970, against the Parti Quebecois in the next Quebec election.

No matter how strongly they proclaimed their belief in non-violence, there was no doubt until last week that the separatists would have spent much of the next campaign denying they had blood on their hands.

Now "murderers of Laporte" doesn't seem such an attractive election theme for their opponents.

The Roman Catholic Church, in its wisdom, usually lets a few decades go by before proclaiming its saints.

Canadians in future may hesitate to bestow instant martyrdom on anyone, no matter how poignant the circumstances.

By CHESTER L. COOPER

(Cooper served in the White House from 1963 to 1966 and now is a fellow at the Woodrow Wilson International Centre.)

The terrace of Saigon's Hotel Continentale is one of the few constants in the capital's kaleidoscopic physical and human landscape.

In the late afternoon and on into the evening, the good and the evil sit cheek by jowl sipping and nibbling, buying and selling, drinking and brooding. The players change, but the cast is always the same — foreign soldiers, local hustlers, expatriate Frenchmen, world-weary newsmen.

Along the side and rear walls are the prostitutes — male, female and indeterminate. And shuffling around from table to table are the beggars and the pushers. The mood music is a melange of turned-up rock, flatulent Honda, occasional siren.

Two "regulars" recently provided a leitmotif. Big Bob and Little Babe met each afternoon after Big Bob finished pushing papers or driving a truck or doing whatever he did at MAC-V, the Pentagon East. At about 5:30, khaki shirt stained and black face streaked with the sweat of the hot afternoon, he would lumber up to the terrace, look sternly at the score or so of street kids running and shrieking after any softlooking touch, and shout: "Where's my date?"

And then out of the crowd would emerge Little Babe. Barefoot, scruffy, scrawny, 7-going-on-30.

"Hi Little Babe!" and a hug. A scream of joy and skinny arms embracing enormous thighs.

Across the terrace they went, and into the dank men's room rich with the aroma of decades of urine. Bob would scrub 24 hours' accumulation of street grime from Babe's face and hands and run his comb through her matted hair. Hand in hand, they went back to the terrace and to their table in the shade.

And then, to the music of her giggles and his belly-laughs, Little Babe had her ice cream, cookies and milk and Big Bob his beer. A peck on the cheek and Babe would be off to her home, the street, and Bob disappeared into the crowded square — until 5:30 tomorrow.

Big Bob has long since returned to the United States — hopefully, to a houseful of giggling little girls. Little Babe? Who knows?

Babe has at least 100,000 counterparts in Saigon and Hue and Danang. There are probably 50,000 Babes, courtesy of three million GIs who passed through during the past decade. Some, the lucky ones, are in the few Vietnamese orphanages; most, like Babe, live on the streets. They provide an unbroken link with the wretched progeny of the French Foreign Legion and the Japanese Imperial Army.

Together with the orphaned, the abandoned and the lost they comprise a pathetic legacy of the U.S. struggle to provide the Vietnamese with free choice and a miserable souvenir of peace with honor.

Voluntary agencies have been doing what they can in South Vietnam. And thousands of compassionate Big Bobs have brought a moment of laughter to thousands of miserable youngsters. But the voluntary agencies, as well-meaning and effective as they are, are not adequate for the job — and the Big Bobs have all gone home.

In North Vietnam the problem must be quite different in both scale and kind. Even under the fury of bombing, the Hanoi government probably had some minimal organized arrangements for coping with lost, strayed, orphaned or abandoned youngsters. At least, visitors do not report them drifting around the streets of Hanoi or Haiphong. And, of course, during the past decade or so, the North has been spared the thousands of offspring of Vietnamese women and foreign troops.

But, surely, there must be a problem of substantial dimensions; a country as poor as North Vietnam cannot experience years of war without being overwhelmed by maimed, fatherless, sick, frightened and homeless children.

Highly motivated U.S. officials, at this very moment, are wrestling with the problem of programs and modalities for postwar assistance to both North and South Vietnam. Perhaps the sordid terrace of the Hotel Continentale can help Americans get their priorities straight. Little Babe comes first — the bridges and roads and the rail lines of North and South Vietnam will, sooner or later, one way or another, be rebuilt.

What must be done, if Americans are serious about a "lasting peace," is to concentrate on the Vietnamese people rather than on the Vietnamese things.

Schools, mental health clinics, pediatric services, vocational training centres, orphanages, teacher-training, foster-parent programs, remedial education are but a few of the objectives of a five-year, children-oriented aid effort. The program, of course, should be wholly Vietnamese in character, not American. Americans have learned, or should have learned, that they cannot and, indeed, should not, try to export their own standards and values.

The most expeditious way of accomplishing the task of salvaging a generation of young Vietnamese would be to turn over the major part of U.S. aid directly to UNICEF, which is already operating in South Vietnam.

Car Makers' Reprieve

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Environmental Protection Agency today gave the big three U.S. automobile makers an additional year, until 1977, to turn out cars that will meet federal standards for emissions of a major pollutant, nitrogen oxides.

Robert Fri, acting EPA administrator, said the extension — which he said would not pose "a significant problem" with respect to air quality — was granted because the technology would not be available for the auto companies to produce 1976 model cars that will meet the federal standards for nitrogen oxides.

The 1970 Clean Air Act originally required that 1976 cars give off 90 per cent less nitrogen oxides and other pollutants. Congress also allowed the EPA to suspend that deadline for one year if it determined, among other things, that the automobile companies did not have the technology to meet the deadline.

As a result Fri approved the request of General Motors, Ford and Chrysler to put off the nitrogen oxide standard for one year, to 1977.

At the same time, Fri did say 1976 model cars would have to meet an interim standard for nitrogen oxide pollution of 2.0 grams per mile.

Had Fri not granted the extension, the engines would have been forced to emit 0.4 grams per mile. The current federal standard is 3.1 grams per mile.

Fri told a news conference: "No one — manufacturer or supplier or anyone else — presented evidence at our hearing that the standard could be met in 1976 . . . my technical staff independently confirms this conclusion."

Heroin Wholesaler Given Eight Years

An admitted heroin wholesaler and user was sentenced to eight years in prison when he appeared in Victoria provincial court today for possession of 500 capsules for the purpose of trafficking.

William Henry Pepper, 31, of 24441 Foul Bay, said he was "relieved . . . it was the end of the road" when he was arrested by police following Victoria's largest heroin haul May 6.

Undercover agents seized 500 capsules of the drug with an estimated street value of $10,000 in the playground of St. Patrick's school after two weeks of investigation.

"I have no doubt this wretched, unhappy man was relieved at being apprehended — his only hope was to be apprehended," Judge William Ostler said after Pepper admitted he had used heroin for five years.

Pepper testified he was trafficking to sustain his own 15 capsules-a-day habit.

"I was scared and relieved at the same time — it was the end of the road," Pepper said.

RCMP Cpl. Gerry O'Neil said Pepper was first seen by police making an exchange April 28 in the playground. After several such exchanges Pepper was finally arrested May 6 in an alley near the playground.

"Before he was apprehended he threw away a condom containing 50 caps of heroin," said O'Neil. Pepper then admitted there were an additional 50 capsules stashed behind a stove at his home. Police also found a paper bag containing 400 capsules in the storage shed at the rear of his property.

O'Neil said Pepper admitted ownership. He had "scored" them in Vancouver.

O'Neil said the street value at the time was $20 a capsule.

Pepper said he bought the heroin for $8 a capsule in Vancouver and sold it for $10 in bulk.

Crown Prosecutor Cecil Branson asked that Judge Ostler "take into consideration it is quite a large operation for this area," and remember the trafficking was "not at the street traffic level."

"Because of his addiction he should have been aware of the consequences of what he was doing."

"It is a most serious offence. I'm not aware of such a large amount that's been before the courts in this area," said Branson.

He agreed with defence counsel Gordon Vosburgh that a recommendation be made for Pepper to continue a heroin withdrawal treatment program during his prison term.

Pepper had testified he enrolled in a withdrawal program after his arrest.

He also said he had taken treatment three times before, "but they were maintenance programs, addicts were given the same dose of methadone right along."

U.K. MAN FREED

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — British businesman Charles Lockwood, kidnapped 54 days ago, was freed early today, an official of Roberts Finance Company, Lockwood's firm, said.

Unofficial report said his kidnappers had asked a record $6 million for the financier's return but there was no official announcement that amount had been paid.

Jorge Kidd, personnel manager of the company, said Lockwood, 63, was freed "somewhere in Buenos Aires."

"I don't know where he is," Kidd told newsmen.

Kidnapped Minister Sends Note to Wife

NICOSIA (Reuter) — Justice Minister Christos Vakis, kidnapped from his Nicosia home last Friday night, has sent a note to his wife telling her he is well, it was announced in this Cypriot capital today.

An anonymous telephone call to Mrs. Vakis Sunday night told her the note would be left in a telephone box in the capital, and it was collected there.

Mrs. Vakis identified the handwriting in the note as her husband's.

There was no indication whether the justice minister is being held in Nicosia or somewhere else on the island. President Makarios Saturday accused underground leader Gen. George Grivas of responsibility for the kidnapping.

One theory is that the underground groups organized by Grivas took Vakis as hostage for the 50 or more Greek-Cypriots detained in Nicosia prison on charges of conspiracy to overthrow the state.

Another 21 persons were arrested in police searches Saturday night.

GRAPE PICKERS STRIKE

DELANO, Calif. (AP) — Cesar Chavez called his United Farm Workers out on strike today after negotiations with 29 table grape growers were broken off hours before a contract expired at midnight Sunday night.

The contracts signed in 1970 resulted from a five-year strike and worldwide boycott. Loss of them would be a powerful blow to the AFL-CIO union which has been locked in an intense power strugle with the Teamsters union over representation of farm workers.

"We were fighting to keep what we got after five years of struggle, and they were trying to take away what we had," Chavez said. "It is the same as usual.

"They had the Teamsters while negotiating with us."

Delano grower Frank Lucich said: "We would prefer to have Chavez's union as our representative because we are in Delano where it (UFW activity) all started." He added that none of the 29 growers currently is negotiating with the Teamsters.

The negotiations stalled on the issues of hiring halls, labor camp conditions, pesticide control, grievance procedures, the right to boycott and union recognition, Chavez said.

Harry Keaton, lawyer for the Delano Growers Negotiating Committee, said:

"The collapse was essentially related to one overriding issue. The UFW demanded to have absolute control and domination over who was going to work in the grape industry, refusing to agree that growers would be allowed to employ their regular seniority work force because many of these workers had shown a preference for the Teamsters union."

The growers say the strike will affect 4,000 to 5,000 workers around this San Joaquin Valley town of 15,000.

35-Pounder Captures Sun Derby

VANCOUVER (CP) — Around 5:30 a.m. Sunday, Fred Rauter hooked into a 35-pound, six-ounce salmon and, unknowingly, first prize in the 33rd annual Sun free salmon derby.

Rauter's feat won him the Sam Cromie Memorial Trophy and a 17-foot cruiser with an 85-horsepower motor, and a boat trailer.

Rauter, 48, of North Vancouver, and his son Bobby, 14, were only out 15 minutes in Howe Sound when the salmon took the herring bait.

He said it was his 15th or 16th Sun Derby. Rauter immigrated from Austria in 1951.

Second prize — a 14-foot boat, a motor and a trailer — went to Don Scott, 28, of Pitt Meadows, who landed a 34-pound salmon 45 minutes after Rauter landed his winning fish.

Third prize went to Karl Emde of Vancouver, who won the derby in 1963. His catch of 33 pounds, one ounce was good for a 10-foot boat, a motor and a trailer.

Car Hits Post After Bee Distracts Driver

A bee helped cause a car accident Saturday afternoon on Douglas St. when it flew in a car window and into the front of the driver's jumpsuit.

The driver, Mrs. Lavina Ready, 53, of 4643 W. Saanich Rd., panicked and took her eyes from the road for a moment, and her 1964 Rambler went out of control and hit a lamp standard, Saanich police said today.

MUSICAL TREATMENTS

A public lecture on using music in the treatment and education of mentally and physically handicapped people will be given Thursday at 1:15 p.m. at the University of Victoria.

Speaker will be Dr. Richard Graham of the University of Georgia, an authority on music therapy and music in special education.

The lecture will be held in room 283 of the MacLaurin building.

"Music therapy is a comparatively new discipline method. There is growing interest in it in Canada and the United States," said Dr. Margery Vaughan, chairman of the music education section of the ecucation faculty.

"Dr. Graham is responsible for setting up many of the U.S. centres," she said.

Graham will be also lecturing on music education as part of UVic's summer session.

'Hell of Way To Get New Prison'

McALESTER, Okla. (AP) — An observer looked around at the rubble that was once the Oklahoma state penitentiary and muttered: "It's a hell of a way to get a new prison."

A weekend riot saw 23 persons held hostage, at least two convicts killed, 17 prisoners and three guards injured and the prison mostly destroyed. Damage from fires set by the convicts was estimated to be between $20 million and $30 million.

National Guard troops and police gained complete control of the prison by Sunday afternoon, and officials found themselves faced with the problem of where to put the 1,750 prisoners in what little remains of the institution.

Security was a major concern because the convicts destroyed the cell block locking system.

Meanwhile, the search continued through the rubble for any additional dead or injured.

The damage to the cell blocks was minor, mostly trash and garbage strewn about. But once in the prison yard, the destruction resembled a bombed-out city.

Empty shells of buildings stood amid the ruins on the ground. Most were still smouldering Sunday night from fires that had burned since the uprising started Friday.

Fallen bricks, trash, water and broken glass were everywhere.

—Total amnesty for ringleaders.

—Formation of a popularly elected convict council to represent the prisoners in dealing with the prison administration.

—Access to U.S. justice department lawyers and lawyers for the American Civil Liberties Union.

—Suspension of a long-time prison employee who they said hated the prisoners.

$52M AWARD

LONDON (UPI) — A British High Court judge put the court's seal of approval today on a $52 million settlement of "one of the greatest tragedies of our time."

Those words were used by an attorney for 433 children crippled for life by the tranquilizing drug Thalidomide to describe their plight.

They, their parents and guardians have fought years of legal and extra-legal battles to recover damages from Distillers Company, the firm which made and distributed the now-banned drug.

Today's ruling provides payment by Distillers of $15.6 million to the court for repayment directly to the children or their parents, and a further $36.4 million to be paid into a trust fund devoted to the childrens' future interests.

Pet Rock Carried For Protection

A 28-year-old man who admitted hurling a rock through a car windshield told Victoria Provincial Court Saturday he always carries a rock in his pocket for self-protection.

Stephen Gerald Browne, of 1244 Balmoral, pleaded guilty to a charge of mischief causing $97 damage. He was remanded to Aug. 6 for sentencing.

Prosecutor Gordon Macdonald said Browne was seen Friday throwing a rock through the windshield of a car owned by Gordon J. Taylor also of 1244 Balmoral.

Brown had said that his "pet rock" was about as big as an orange, and that he carried it "at all times for protection."

Judge Edmond St. Jorre told Browne that while an unarmed human being may not be "intrinsically dangerous" when he had a weapon it was quite a different matter.

Dividends a Record, Still Stocks Lag

By AL FORREST
Times Business Editor

Canadian dividend payments continued at record levels this month but the stock market failed to respond to the favorable climate.

The Toronto Stock Exchange industrial index has fallen a maximum of 11.5 per cent during the bear market from Jan. 1 to today.

At the same time, dividend payments by Canadian companies were a record $1 billion, an increase of 9 per cent over the $932 million in the corresponding 1972 period.

Main reasons for the market slump in the face of high dividend payments are believed to be the generally high interest rates for bonds and mortgages accompanied with the downturn on Wall Street.

The Dow Jones industrial index has sagged a maximum of 16.8 per cent in the first seven months of this year.

Midland Osler Securities Ltd. says there are indications that the New York market may be reaching bottom. Short sales by professional traders have reached an unusually low level, indicating that informed opinion there is prices will not go much lower.

Because prices have fallen lower in New York than in Toronto, price increases are expected to be greater on Wall Street when the market recovers.

If New York does outperform Canadian industrials in a bull market, however, it will be on a very short term basis.

The strong performance by Canadian companies during the first seven months of this year have resulted in higher dividend payments in all major sectors, according to statistics released on the weekend by Pitfield, Mackay, Ross and Co. Ltd.

Canadian industrial firms have paid out $496 million, up from $437 million in the corresponding seven months of 1972.

Utilities laid out $225 million, up from $217 million, institutions and trusts paid $159 million, up from $143 million, and mine dividends were marginally higher at $134,949,000, up from $134,924,000.

This month's payments totalled $179.5 million, an increase of 11 per cent over the $161.5 million last July.

Bell Canada and Canadian Pacific this month increased dividend payments by a combined total of $5 million over payments last July.

This helped to push July dividends by utilities to $75.4 million, up from $68.5 million last July.

Main July increase in industrial dividends came from Gulf Oil Canada with its increase to 25 cents per share.

Main increase in mine payments was by Hudson Bay Mining and Smelting with a 40 cents per share dividend.

Mine dividends were $7.9 million, up from $7.5 million, and institutions and trusts paid out $17.6 million, up from $11.4 million.

INDIANS SHIP HOUSES HOME

VANCOUVER (CP) — Ten Indian bands have purchased 87 bungalows, duplexes and two-storey homes built on Sea Island in suburban Richmond municipality for armed forces personnel, and the houses will be moved to reserves, Al Stubbe, community affairs director for the Fraser Indian District, said Friday.

He said the department of Indian affairs allowed $8,500 towards purchase of each house.

The last of the houses are to be vacated Tuesday and next month they will be moved to barges for transport to sites chosen by the Ucluelet, Skwah, Tsawwassen, Hopalco, Comox, Campbell River, Kyuquot, Alert Bay, Chemainus and Nanoose Bay Indian bands.

At present building costs it's cheaper for Indians to relocate houses than to have them built, Stubbe said.

BURNABY (CP) — A new Kingsway Lions Club, based on a nucleus of ousted Ugandan Asians who have been in the area less than a year, received its charter here Saturday. Kewal Khosla, past district governor of the Lions' East Africa district, said membership in the club is not restricted to Ugandans and members are being sought from the business and professional community of the area. He said formation of the club demonstrates how rapidly the Ugandans have adjusted to Canadian life.

Rebels Sell Last Fruit Before Injunction Plea

VANCOUVER (CP) — Buyers here stocked up on Okanagan fruit and vegetables Sunday as another United Fruit Growers convoy, possibly the last for some time, sold more than 20 tons of produce in the Gastown market.

C. H. Larson, lawyer representing United, said Sunday in Kelowna an application for an injunction barring the United convoys is expected to be heard Wednesday in British Columbia Supreme Court in Vancouver.

United President Hans Rhenisch said Sunday no attempts were made to seize any produce from the 31-vehicle convoy as it came to Vancouver from Osoyoos Saturday.

A total of 21 trucks came to Vancouver, bringing some five tons of cherries, 10 tons of apricots, five tons of peaches and about two tons of corn, tomatoes and cucumbers.

Rhenisch said six trucks stopped at drive-in markets along the highway near Vancouver, one went to nearby White Rock, and three others dropped out of the convoy because of mechanical problems.

Sale of the orchard run, or ungraded, produce began about 9 a.m. and most was sold by mid afternoon.

Larson said the injunction being sought by the B.C. fruit industry, if obtained, would be sufficiently comprehensive to halt such convoys. He said the injunction application will be opposed.

United is a breakaway group of growers from the B.C. Fruit Growers Association which, through its marketing arm, B.C. Tree Fruits Ltd., controls all fruit sales in the province under provincial legislation.

United is protesting Tree Fruits marketing scheme.

Hudson Bay Mining

Hudson Bay Mining and Smelting Co. Ltd. reports earnings of $17.59 million for the first half of the year, excluding results of the Wellgreen mine in the Yukon, compared with $7.31 million during the same period of 1972. Per share earnings were $1.94 compared to 81 cents.

The company closed the Wellgreen mine July 6 after about 1½ years of operation. A company spokesman said the ore body was not profitable because of geological conditions that were not discovered in initial surveys.

The spokesman said profit for the first half included a better-than-expected contribution of $2.7 million from Wellgreen. The year-end report for 1972 showed a loss on Wellgreen of $8.5 million, which included development expenses, and an $11.38 million-profit for the year.

The $20.29-million profit for the first half — including the Wellgreen contribution — works out to $2.24 a share.

Paul Desruisseaux and his family, Marchand's statement said.

Marchand said the subscription and the offer to purchase are being considered and a decision will be announced promptly.

Air Canada said revenue per passenger miles was up 21 per cent to the end of June compared with the same period of 1973. CP Air said domestic runs were up 23 per cent.

An Air Canada spokesman said the 1972 air trafffic controllers strike tended to distort the figures but the growth was cause for optimism in the industry.

A Pacific Western spokesman said revenues were up 36.9 per cent in the first quarter of 1973, 28.6 per cent for May and about 25 per cent for June, compared with 1972 figures.

Weiskopf's Patience Just Lets It Happen

STE. JULIE DE VERCHERES, Que. (CP)—Tom Weiskopf, the Canadian Open Golf championship's $35,000 first-prize money tucked safely away, was off in search of a new goal today.

Winner of five of the last eight tournaments he has entered, the 30-year-old pro from Columbus, Ohio, cinched the Canadian event Sunday with a final-round, two-under-par 70 over the 6,905-yard Richelieu Valley Golf and Country Club course.

He finished 10 under par for the 72-hole event, two strokes better than tour sophomore Forrest Fezler, who played bridesmaid for the third time on the tour this season. Fezler previously lost final-day decisions to Lee Trevino and Bruce Crampton. His second-place finish earned him $19,950.

By winning here, Weiskopf equalled Crampton's four victories in North American competition this season, but the Columbus golfer has the British Open title to his credit to put him one up on the Australian.

And by the end of next week Weiskopf hopes to have bettered Crampton in another department—total money earnings for the season.

Crampton's earnings, including the $5,447 he earned here when he finished in a tie with three other golfers for sixth place, are $241,391 this year. Weiskopf jumped over the absent Jack Nicklaus to second place with $206,027.

Nicklaus currently has won $193,946.

Weiskopf said he was looking forward to next weekend's $250,000 Westchester Classic at Rye, N.Y., and its $50,000 first-place money.

"I've never played well there so I'm just setting another goal to win there," he said. "I'm going to try and tune up there, hopefully with a win for the PGA (in Cleveland) the following week."

For a time it appeared that Weiskopf might not win the Canadian event, as 25-year-old Bobby Cole, a protege of Gary Player's from Johannesburg, South Africa, made a run at first place.

Cole fired a sensational course record 30 on the front nine to make things interesting, but unfortunately for the South African, he could do no better than a par-36 on the back nine. He wound up third with $12,425 for his seven-under-par 281. It was Cole's best payday since turning professional in 1967.

Asked if he was aware of Cole's charge, Weiskopf said:

"I first saw his name (on the leader board) when I was at 11. He was eight under then. I said to myself 'don't try to play Bobby Cole, just play the golf course.'

Cole had started his final round one-under at 215 and had seven birdies before he bogeyed the par-three, 17th.

Hale Irwin, who set a course record of 65 in the first round, finished with a six-under-par 282 and $8,225, while Chuck Courtney was fifth at 283 and won $7,175.

Weiskopf, who had to leave immediately for his weekly Monday duty in the U.S. armed forces at Columbus, said he is winning more tournaments because he has changed his outlook.

"It's just a matter of being patient," he said. "Don't force things or push things—you just let them happen."

He began his back nine with a 20-foot putt for another sub-par score.

"I could have birdied every hole on the back nine except 17," he said. "That was the best nine holes of golf I played all week."

SIZZLING St. Louis Cardinals, leaders in the east division of the National League, almost became too eager in first game of double header in Chicago Sunday. Rightfielder Bernie Carbo (1) and second baseman Ted Sizemore (41) collided while chasing pop fly by Chicago's Jose Cardenal. Sizemore held on to ball and St. Louis won 5-3. Cubs won the second 5-4. Carpenter's Holiday Produces Paycheque

WINNIPEG (CP) — A weekend player on vacation and a defending champion thinking of quitting the game captured the men's and women's singles titles at the Canadian closed tennis championships Sunday.

Keith Carpenter, a 31-year-old former Davis Cup competitor who entered the tournament because he had an extra week's holiday and decided to spend it trying to gain entry into the Canadian Open, won the men's singles by beating unseeded Chris Burr of Toronto 6-4, 6-4.

That victory gave Carpenter not only entry into the Canadian Open but also his biggest tennis pay cheque ever: $1,000.

It also gives him a chance to play again on the Davis Cup team, but that thought does not appeal to the eight-time Canadian representative.

"I think I'm over the hill; they should be going with the youth program. It takes the kids a long time to get the needed experience. A lot of them are hitting well but when it comes to the crunch, they don't know what to do . . . It takes a long time to learn to think on the court."

Carpenter had a tough struggle in Saturday's semi-finals before overcoming Don McCormick of Victoria, 6-2, 7-5, while Burr upset Vancouver's top-seeded Tony Bardsley.

Janice Tindle of Vancouver completed the successful defence of her women's singles title by beating Vicki Berner of Vancouver 2-6, 6-4, 6-4. It was the second straight year she had lost the first set then come back to the beat Berner, the 1971 champion.

WINS DOUBLES TOO

Tindle, 22, teamed with Susan Stone of Vancouver to beat Berner and Andree Martin of Montreal 6-3, 6-7, 6-2 in the women's doubles, winning the last five games after a lengthy halt because of rain.

Dave Brown and Dale Power, both of Toronto, won the men's doubles with a 7-6, 4-6, 6-2 triumph ovr Carpenter and McCormick.

Carpenter said he knew Burr "would be coming to the net."

"I thought I could keep him back with my service. But my second serve was coming up short and he was returning it well.

"I noticed when he played against Brown he was returning hard shots well so I tried to keep the ball dipping with lots of topspin."

The strategy paid off but not before Burr, who knocked off top-seeded Tony Bardsley of Vancouver along his way to the finals, had broken Carpenter's serve three times.

In three previous matches Carpenter had given up his service only twice.

"He's hard to lob against, but I figured I could break his service with good passing shots," Burr said. "I broke his service but unfortunately I wasn't serving well. . . ."

SOCCER ACES THREATEN BOYCOTT OF WORLD CUP

MANCHESTER, England (AP) — Soccer stars from nine nations warned the International Football Federation (FIFA) Sunday they may launch a Wimbledon-style boycott of the World Cup in Munich next June unless the contract system is scrapped and they get a share in the tournament profits.

The threat emerged at a meeting of the World Players' Union (FIFPRO) attended by players from France, Belgium, West Germany, The Netherlands, Italy, Austria, Portugal, England and Scotland.

The organization's president, Prof. Roger Blanpain of Belgium, warned:

"We hope trade union action will not be necessary, but we have already decided on the action we shall take if we do not get satisfaction."

The players issued a four-point ultimatum to FIFA and said their demands should be met — or else.

The demands are: Freedom of movement when club contracts expire, a percentage of World Cup profits, improving disciplinary procedures and launching welfare schemes for players.

Police Ring Field

NEW YORK (AP) — It took a ring of police around the field at Randall's Stadium, two phone calls to Haiti and a visit from a high-ranking diplomat before the Haitian national team would play Sunday in a soccer game delayed by a hostile crowd.

The game with Millonarios of Colombia was delayed more than two hours and 45 minutes by Haitian exiles protesting conditions of the regime in that Carribean nation.

The exiles first demanded a minute of silence before the game began to pay respect to people who have died during the Duvalier regime. Play began 45 minutes past the starting time, but was interrupted twice when exiles rushed on to the field and lay down.

Anoine Tassy, the Haitian coach, took his team to the dressing room and said he was going home.

He later called Haiti and spoke to Claude Raymond, the president of the Haitian Football Association, who told him to resume play if he could.

Then Serge Charles, a high-ranking member of the Haitian delegation to the United Nations, was called to the stadium to talk with Tassy. After Charles made another call to Raymond, the Haitians agreed to go back to the field and continue the game with Millonarios of Colombia.

Private detectives first provided security at the game, but after the repeated delays, city police arrived and encircled the field.

Canuck Archers Eighth

GRENOBLE, France (AP) — The United States won the men's team title and the Soviet Union the women's Saturday in the World Archery championships.

Linda Myers of York, Pa., took the women's individual crown and Viktor Sidorul the men's.

Despite the absence of any contenders for the individual women's title, Canada managed an eight-place finish with 5,684 points. The Soviet Union had 6,389 points.

The Soviet Union was only 35 points ahead of the United States in women's team competition. The United States was third. Valentina Koypan and Emma Gapchenko, both of the Soviet Union, were second and third in individual competition.

Canada's team failed to finish among the top 15 in men's standings. The Soviet Union was second and Finland third. Kyosti Laason of Finland and Stephen Lieberman of Reading, Pa. were second and third respectively.

Cubs Split to End Skid; Pirates Make Up Ground

By The Associated Press

Chicago Cubs and Pittsburgh Pirates reached a couple of break-even points Sunday which they hope will help them come out on top of baseball's National League East in October.

The Cubs, who had lost 13 of their last 15 games after bowing to St. Louis Cardinals 5-3 in their doubleheader opener, salvaged a split with a 5-4 nightcap victory.

"That's the happiest I've been to split a doubleheader in a long time," said manager Whitey Lockman. "I wouldn't call it a disaster if we had lost, but it would have been pretty bad. We'd have been 4½ out instead of 2½."

The Pirates scored a pair of 5-2 victories over Philadelphia Phillies and reached the .500 mark—50-50—for the first time since June 5. They have won nine of 11 and trail the Cardinals by four games.

EXPOS TOP METS

In Sunday's other games, Los Angeles Dodgers downed San Francisco Giants 6-2, Cincinnati Reds won their opener to San Diego Padres 7-1 but lost the nightcap 4-2, Houston Astros beat Atlanta Braves 8-5 and Montreal Expos shaded New York Mets 6-4.

Billy Williams, who hit a two-run homer in the first inning, won the game for the Cubs when he delivered a run-scoring single in the seventh, capping a three-run rally.

HELP MESSERSMITH

Willie Crawford drove in three runs with a homer and a tie-breaking double in the eighth inning and Steve Garvey added a three-run homer to power Andy Messersmith and the Dodgers to victory.

Crawford's fourth-inning homer snapped a 17-inning scoreless streak for the Dodgers, who lead the National League West by 4½ games.

Tommy Helms delivered a tie-breaking two-run double in the eighth inning for Houston after a two-run homer by Darrell Evans, his 28th of the year, gave the Braves a 5-4 lead in the seventh.

Ron Fairly's tie-breaking two-run single against Ray Sadecki capped a three-run eighth-inning rally for the Expos.

In the American League Wilbur Wood became the first 20-game winner in the majors this year as he pitched Chicago White Sox to an 8-6 triumph over Minnesota Twins.

In Sunday's other games, Detroit Tigers topped Baltimore Orioles 8-3, Cleveland Indians downed Boston Red Sox 8-2 and 6-2, Milwaukee Brewers dropped New York Yankees 7-2 and 6-3, Kansas City Royals defeated California Angels 7-0 and 7-6 in 11 innings and Texas Rangers split with Oakland, winning 3-0 before the A's took the nightcap 7-4.

Wood wasn't around at the finish Sunday. He was replaced by Cy Acosta in the seventh inning when the Twins scored two runs. Acosta blanked the Twins in the eighth and ninth.

Ken Henderson hit a three-run homer, Tony Muser delivered a two-run single and Buddy Bradford swatted a solo homer for the White Sox.

Designated hitter Frank Howard clubbed a three-run homer in the fifth inning, his fourth in four games, to help the Tigers win their fourth game in a row since the all-star break.

Gaylord Perry, notching his first victory since June 25, snapped a personal six-game tailspin in the Indians' 8-2 opening-game victory, then Tom Timmerman toyed with a no-hitter for six innings before settling for a four-hitter in the 6-2 second-game triumph.

Dave May extended his hitting streak to 23 games in the Brewers' doubleheader sweep. He had three hits in the opener. In the nightcap, Kansas City homers by Amos Otis and Fran Healy backed Al Fitzmorris' six-hit pitching in their opener. Gail Hopkins singled in the winning run in the 11th inning of the nightcap.

Jackie Brown threw a six-hitter at the A's in the Rangers' opening victory, but Reggie Jackson and Sal Bando hit Oakland homers in the nightcap.

BLALOCK, PALMER KEEP WOMEN'S GOLF CROWN

MASHPEE, Mass. (AP) — Veteran touring pros Jane Blalock and Sandra Palmer won the $30,000 Lady Angelo's LPGA four-ball golf championship for the second consecutive year Saturday in a playoff with Jan Ferraris and Sally Little at New Seabury.

Miss Palmer sank a clutch five-foot putt for a birdie four on the first extra hole to enable her and Miss Blalock to split the top prize of $4,800.

Misses Blalock and Palmer combined for a sizzling six-under-par 66 for a 54-hole total of 206.

There was a three-way tie at 209. The teams of Gail Denenberg and Sandra Post of Oakville, Ont., Mary Mills and Pam Barnett, and Sandra Spuzich and Andy Fischer each won $2,332.

Durocher Fines Houston Hurler

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston Astros manager Leo Durocher said Saturday he was fining pitcher Don Wilson $300 for an uncomplimentary name the pitcher called Durocher.

Wilson reportedly made the remark to Durocher as the hurler was boarding the bus for an early-morning trip from Houston airport to the Astrodome.

UVic Women's Crews Take First, Second

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. — University of Victoria's crew Saturday carried off the women's coxed four title at the 91st annual Royal Canadian Henley Regatta.

The UVic crew of Nancy Alexander (cox), Cathy Griffin, Ina de Lure, Cathy Auburn and Ann Kilduff which will represent Canada at the European championships in Moscow next month, finished four lengths ahead of the six-boat field.

Later, UVic finished second to the strong Radcliffe crew, the United States' representative in the Moscow regatta, in the eights.

Mike Cullen of UVic was third in the junior men's singles final after winning his heat.

St. Catharines won the Maple Leaf Cup as Henley points champions for the 13th year in a row but the Ridley crew stole some of the club's thunder by winning the prestigious championship eights.

Hans Brual stroked the college crew to a one-length win over St. Catharines in the race for the Ned Hanlan Memorial Trophy, covering the 2,000-metre distance in 5:48.5.

St. Catharines had an overwhelming lead with 374 points, 246 more than second-place New York Athletic Club. Hamilton Leanders were third with 97 points and Newport Beach fourth with 91 points.

A. J. Barr, Juan de Fuca Boxla Champs

Successful in their quest for B.C. honors were Victoria A. J. Barr in the peewee "A" (11 and 12-year-olds) championship in Vancouver and Juan de Fuca in the tyke "B" (7 and 8-year-olds) tourney in Victoria.

Victoria finished the five-team, round-robin peewee "A" tourney with a 3-1 win-loss record. The club downed Norburn Lakers 13-9 and beat Norwests 11-5 in Saturday games and then sewed up the title Sunday morning with a crucial 13-11 victory over South Burnaby.

A. J. Barr trailed 11-7 in the game with South Burnaby but, with a great, all round team effort, produced six unanswered goals in the final period to win.

Norburns, South Burnaby and New Westminster all finished with 2-2 records and Richmond was 1-3.

Paul Pynn topped the Victoria scoring, getting eight goals and 12 assists in the four games. Torrie Robertson scored six goals and had 12 assists, John Crowther had seven goals and an assist, Jim Lightbody got four goals and four assists, Matt Montgomery had six goals and an assist and goalkeeper David Jenvey gave four fine performances in the Victoria net.

A. J. Barr now goes on to the Canadian national peewee "A" championship in Oshawa, Ont., Aug. 13 to 19.

A crowd of about 500 at Juan de Fuca Arena watched the home team down Aldergrove 7-4 in Sunday's final to win the tyke "B" title.

Kal Russell, who scored four goals earlier Sunday when Juan de Fuca defeated Riley Park of Kerrisdale in Vancouver 7-3 in the semi-final, hammered in another four to finish with a total of 20 goals in five games.

Aldergrove beat Kitimat 5-3 to reach the final.

Doug Hague, Jamie Smith and Bill Somsilaw were the other Juan de Fuca scorers in the final game and Ian McDonald, with three goals, and David Jackson, with one goal, were the Aldergrove scorers.

On Saturday, Juan de Fuca beat New Westminster 11-3, Kitimat downed Cowichan 6-1 and Aldergrove got past Riley Park 7-3.

Russell and Smith of Juan de Fuca were named to the tournament all-star team along with Mark McLeary of Riley Park, McDonald of Aldergrove, Scott Farqueson of Kitimat and Warren Spence of New Westminster.

Island teams didn't fare so well in the other three championships.

In the peewee "B" tourney in Surrey, Saanich Metro Toyota beat Richmond 9-6 but lost 14-4 Sunday to North Burnaby.

The Burnaby squad won the title with a 3-0 win-loss record. Richmond and Saanich both finished with 2-1 records but JRichmond took second place on goal average.

In the novice "B" (9 and 10-year-olds) tournament in Kitimat, Saanich Bud Bells lost 10-4 to Chilliwack and was eliminated with a 9-7 loss to Port Moody. Chilliwack defeated North Burnaby 11-5 to win the title.

In the B.C. midget girls (12 and 13-year-olds) championship in Vancouver, Saanich was eliminated after losing 8-4 to Burnaby and 6-5 to Norwest Caps.

There are five more B.C. minor lacrosse championships set for next weekend.

Late Burst Helps Bakers Trip Burnaby

Scoring three unanswered goals in the last five minutes, Victoria McDonalds came from behind to snatch an 11-9 victory from Burnaby Cablevision in Burnaby Sunday night.

McDonalds, who have already clinched first place in the Pacific Junior "A" Lacrosse League, meet Coquitlam J-Hawks tonight at 7 at Memorial Arena.

Victoria dominated the first period and, when it ended, led 4-1. Things went better for the Cablevision squad in the second period and McDonalds took only an 8-6 lead into the final period.

It didn't take Burnaby long to tie the score at 8-8 and the home team went ahead 9-8 with a third goal at 13:43.

Norm Baker fired the ball into an empty net with only five seconds left to play for the final Victoria goal.

Rick Sage scored twice for McDonalds and the other scorers were Jim Lynch, Jeevan Dillon and Kim Bowles.

Richmond Roadrunners Saturday snapped a tie with the J-Hawks by defeating Surrey Salmonbellies 19-8. Both Roadrunners and J-Hawks have two games left to play but Richmond had a two-point edge in the race for the fourth and final playoff berth.

Calgary Cyclist Wins Road Title

BURLINGTON, Ont. (CP) — Norm Lowe of Calgary broke away with five miles remaining and went on to win the Canadian bicycle road-racing championship here Sunday.

Lowe, a 29-year-old draftsman, rode with a leading group of five riders through the late stages of the 120-mile race. He then broke away with Roger Tremblay of Montreal and Roger Sumner of Vancouver for more than 20 miles and finally sprinted away to win in four hours, 49 minutes, 53 seconds.

Tremblay and Sumner faltered and were overtaken by a main group of 25 riders and did not place.

There was some confusion at the finish when the 25 riders finished in a pack. Officials finally gave fourth place to Hank Koning of Calgary, fifth to Chris Hollingshead of Toronto, sixth to Lindsay Gould of Winnipeg and seventh to Greg Simm of Red Deer, Alta.

Double Duty By Rosemary Nips Stockers

Rosemary Fuller sparkled at bat and on the mound Sunday as Vicettes edged Stocker North Americans 2-0 in Victoria Women's Softball League action at Hyacinth Park.

Miss Fuller blanked Stockers on three hits and struck out 13. She also ignited Vicettes' two-run rally with a triple. Joanne Mick singled to score the pitcher and later added the second run on a single by Jodi Hunter.

In other games Sunday, Combos laced B.C. Telephone 18-5 and sharon Ferrill pitched CAV Electric to an 8-7 victory over Cosmos.

Bates Get Most From Split

DAVE RUTHOWSKY
... blanks Seattle

By ERNIE FEDORUK
Times Staff

The weekend's Pacific Northwest International Men's Softball League series at Royal Athletic Park didn't solve anything, on the surface, because of pitching brilliance. Nonetheless, Victoria Bates' sponsor figures he "got the best deal" out of a 2-2 split with Seattle's Pay 'n Pak.

"The split," acknowledged sponsor Herb Bate, "was just what the team needed" in the way of psychological preparatin for the B.C. senior "A" championship. The provincial tournament will be staged at Royal Athletic Park Aug. 18-19 and the defending champions should rate as the team to beat.

Seattle, the host team for the U.S. national finals at Sick's Stadium Sept. 7-15, came into Victoria with 26 straight Northwest League victories and an over-all 61-6, won-lost record.

Bates broke off the string Saturday with a 1-0 victory and made it two straight over Bill Fenton's classy Pay 'n Pak with an 11-inning decision. Also by a 1-0 score.

The power, as the scores indicate, lay with the pitching that allowed only four runs in 31½ innings.

"You're not going to see better pitching in any four-game series than you did this weekend," said Fenton.

There was an "amen" from Bate and the Victoria sponsor marvelled at the fact that pitchers of both teams "kept the ball down for 31½ innings."

"The only exception was the ball that Butch Batt hit (for a home run that decided Sunday's opener). It came across the letters. Otherwise, both teams kept the ball down."

Prosperity Ideas Vary

CFB Esquimalt and Bell's Men's Wear are enjoying prosperity, but there were other teams in the Stuffy McGinnis Men's Softball League who couldn't stand it at the weekend.

Basement bouncers for most of the season, CFB showed up with a hot hand with a pair of weekend victories, including pitcher Wayne Cripps' two-hit shutout over Six Mile House Sunday at Heywood Avenue Park.

The Jim John-coached Bell's rang louder. They swept three games from Port Angeles Telecable to take over sole possession of third place.

Thoughts of prosperity didn't sit too well with Seaboard Construction, Six Mile House or, as indicated by Bell's sweep, with Port Angeles.

Seaboard, with a chance to move to within one game of front-running Century Inn, suffered a 2-1 jolt at the hands of Tony Morton and the Six Millers. Six Mile House, in turn, suffered a 13-0 defeat at the hands of CFB.

Sooke Merchants broke even, splitting a Saturday doubleheader in Port Angeles.

Ken Fox lost a no-hitter with two out in the seventh when Bob Butterworth singled, but was in hot water most of the way as a result of 10 walks. Fox and his Royal Oak mates finally defeated Mike's 5-3.

Fatality Mars Stewart's Record Effort

Times News Services

Jackie Stewart and Richard Petty chalked up major triumphs Sunday as the world of automobile racing was jolted by the deaths of two drivers — one in a flaming crash, the other from week-old injuries.

Stewart, the Scottish ace who is attempting to regain the world driving championship, piloted a Tyrrell-Ford to a victory in the Dutch Grand Prix at Zandvoort for his 26th Grand Prix win — an all-time record — in a race marred by the death of British driver Roger Williamson.

There was also tragedy at Liege, Belgium, where Italian driver Massimo Larini, 31, died of injuries suffered a week earlier in the 24-hour Francorchamps race.

Larini, a member of the Alfa Romeo racing team for eight years, had been unconscious since suffering a skull fracture and several other fractures when his car ran off the course.

Larini's death brought to three the toll of fatalities from the event, in which Hans Joisten of West Germany and Roger Dubos of France died in a collision.

Petty, getting brilliant pit work from his crew, won the Pennsylvania 500 stock-car race Sunday although Butch Hartman almost spoiled his show at the Mount Pocono track.

Petty, stock-racing's all-time money and events winner, had to bring his Dodge from far behind to take home the 153rd victory in a career that has brought him a lot of fame and a modest fortune.

He finished about 15 seconds ahead of Hartman, the Ohio driver who appeared to have had the race in the bag at the 400-mile mark.

Roger McCluskey, driving a Plymouth, was third, while A. J. Foyt finished fourth in a Chevrolet and Norm Nelson fifth in a Plymouth.

Petty's speed for the 500 miles was 132.781 miles per hour, a track record for stock cars. His share of the $60,000 purse was about $9,000.

The Tyrrell Ford team made it a one-two finish at Zanvoort with Francois Cevert following Stewart across the line. Stewart had taken the lead with eight laps to go as the early leader, Sweden's Ronnie Peterson, began to slow.

Stewart's victory gave him a 10 point lead after 10 rounds of the current world championship series.

Third behind Cevert was James Hunt of Britain in a March Ford, followed by New Zealand's Dennis Hulme in a Yardley-McLaren, Jean Pierre Beltoise of France in a Marlborough BRM and Carlos Pace of Brazil, sixth in a Surtees.

Williamson died after his STP March and that of fellow-Briton David Purley collided in a fast corner on the eighth lap. Purley managed to stop his car at the left side of the track, but Williamson's auto crashed into the track-side rails, overturned and burst into flames with Williamson trapped in the cockpit.

Clouds of smoke rose above the wrecked March as the race continued. The fatal accident occurred near the twisting circuit's new bend, ironically built specifically to make the race safer, and at almost the same point where Pier Courage of Britain died in a flaming crash three years ago.

In Wisconsin Sunday, John Greenwood, a veteran Corvette driver from Pontiac, Mich., made a shambles of the field Saturday in the fifth event of the Sports Car Club of America's six-race Trans-American sedan series.

Greenwood, averaging 96.145 miles an hour, took the lead from pole-sitter Warren Agor on the seventh lap of the 78-lap race over the four-mile Road America course. He finished 1 minute 28.4 seconds ahead of Agor.

Al Holbert finished third, two laps back.

Gordon Head Squad Wraps Up Area Title

Defending Vancouver Island champion Gordon Head was the only team to clinch an area championship Sunday in the Victoria Little League baseball playdowns.

In all of the other areas, teams battled back through the losers' bracket to score victories and force extra games at 6:30 tonight in the double-loss elimination tournaments.

Oak Bay will play Esquimalt-Victoria West at Lampson Street Park, Lake Hill will meet Pat Bay at Ambassador Park and Hampton and National will clash at Hillside Avenue Park.

Gordon Head, which had already beaten Triangle and knocked Layritz into the losers' bracket, downed Layritz again Sunday at Layritz Park but had to hold off a desperate late rally for a 6-5 decision.

In the Area 1 tourney at Lampson Street Park in Esquimalt, Oak Bay, which beat Central Saanich 5-1 Saturday, came back with a six-run burst in the final inning to beat Esquimalt-Victoria West 9-3 and force the extra game.

Mike Lawless hurled a three-hitter for the winners while Eddie Cliffe and Robin Neeland, who came on in relief in the last inning, combined for a two-hitter for Esquimalt-Vic West.

Pat Bay, which edged Beacon Hill 4-3 Saturday, had another narrow victory Sunday, getting four runs in the fifth inning to nip Lake Hill 7-6 in the Area III tournament at Ambassador Park.

Darryl Richardson of Pat Bay had another two hits giving him a total of eight hits in 12 trips to the plate.

Sunday's game in the Area IV tourney at Hillside Avenue Park was somewhat one-sided with Hampton, which eliminated American 5-3 Saturday, going on a 10-hit spree to blast National 14-0. Dennis Welsh cracked a grand slam homer and Jim Bowes hurled a three-hitter for the winners.

Gordon Head and the three winners of tonight's games will take part in the District playoffs starting Thursday.

Farmers Top Senior Loop

First and fourth positions in the Senior Amateur Baseball League were decided Sunday and a "catchup schedule" this week will determine second and third places.

Farmer Construction clinched first-place Sunday at Lambrick Park with a 4-1, 9-1 doubleheader sweep over Al's Home Service. The first result doomed Al's to a fourth-place finish, the second sealed first place for Farmers.

The twin bill marked the end of the regular schedule but league officials will run off postponed games this week until third and fourth places are settled.

Gorge Hotel can clinch second place with a victory over third-place Greaves on Tuesday. If that should happen, three remaining postponed games will be ignored.

IT'S THE REAL THING

WASHINGTON — Clifford Irving, jailed for duping a publisher with a fake biography of billionaire recluse Howard Hughes, carried a plea for freedom to the U.S. Parole Board today.

At today's hearing, a closed session, the board will consider for the first time whether to parole Irving, who has repaid McGraw-Hill about $450,000 of the amount paid him. Courts have not yet decided whether he must repay the balance.

OTTAWA — J. M. MacDonnell, 88, a former minister without portfolio in the Diefenbaker government, died here Friday night after a lengthy illness.

A California Milk Advisory Board spokesman said the board decided to phase out Spitz' TV commercials on milk and work other entertainment personalities into the $4 million yearly promotion.

Cohesion Is Limners' Strength

By JOHN HESPELER

An exhibition of the art of a group who call themselves The Limners is on view at Heritage Court and for those interested in the direction of Vancouver Island art (and letters), it is undoubtedly one of the more significant showings to be mounted this year.

As this exhibition clearly demonstrates, the strength in a group of artists would be almost a measurable quantity if there was a unit to describe it.

Which brings a review such as this dangerously close to definitions — and they would doubtless be best left to history.

Talking or writing about art is to give the entire subject a totally new, and usually foreign, dimension. Instead of talking about dollars and cents, pounds and ounces, or yards, acres, miles or city blocks, one is forced to find words like "impressionist," "pop," "dada," "cube" to describe the emotional, visual, technical or philosophical impact and embodiment of the impressionists, pop-artists, dadists or cubists.

The art lexicon is rife with such coined words, and it may take years of close study to unravel the obscurities of the entire specialized language.

This is no more than it should be, just as the fields of science or mathematics have developed their own language cacoons. It enables devotees or practitioners to isolate a single idea quickly and efficiently, to zero-in on a specific idea and come immediately to a point. It is a short-cut to ideas, or the attempt to express them.

Unfortunately, it also has the effect of totally obscuring the subject area for a layman with less than the energetic zeal of a bloodhound. And from this point one can develop all manner of discussion on the pros and cons of categorization. Artists, particularly, are good at it — although, heaven forbid, they should ever own to it.

Thus it is very possible that within a few years, Victoria's Limners will become recognized as a group of artists espousing ideas and ideals perhaps as yet not totally defined.

Basically, at present, the group consists of a small nucleus of Victoria's veteran artists who, probably by reason of geography, have been thrown together to inter-act.

The results of this recipe are slow to mature, and the importance, or taste, of the group on either a local or national scale now or at some time in the future would be hard to assess.

By definition, a limner is one who illuminates manuscripts. In fact, the exhibition at Heritage Court has nothing whatever to do with manuscripts or illumination, and it is very possible that one day this small group of accomplished Victorians will lend an entirely new meaning to the word.

As a theme, it so happens that most of the work centres on the human form. But if it has any relevance at all, this would only be a starting point. Styles range from the lifelike portraiture of Myfanwy Pavelic to the whimsy of Maxwell Bates, the explosive humor of Herbert Siebner to the spirit quality of Richard Ciccimarra's faceless world in form.

It is within the realm of possibility that some one person — probably within the group — will take hold of it, and give it a more definable shape.

If this were to happen, it would most assurelly be a tragedy.

The strength of the group — at least as one must take it from this particular showing — lies in the fact that each artist has been living and working in the Vancouver Island area for many years, and thus has acquired an intimate knowledge of his or her contemporaries. There is a delightful cohesion in this group, and the way in which the show is hung.

The danger probably lies in any attempt to take hold of the individuality of each member of the group (and, Lord knows, each is certainly an individualist) and turn the energy of that particular individual inward to further the purposes of the group as a group.

Should this happen, no doubt politicking would soon ensure that the group would slide into obscurity — as has happened in numerous other cases where great minds have tried to combine within the tight confines of a single Think Tank.

This is not presently the case with the Limners. Their individuality has, of course, remained intact at the same time as each has clearly benefitted from exposure to the other and the other's like environment.

Others in the group are Robert de Castro, Nita Forrest, Elza Mayhew, Robin Skelton and Karl Spreitz. Some of the best of their work will be on show until August 6.

Strawberry Cup Stays With Ross

Defending champion Ross Fontes of Lynwood, Wash., roared over the finish line less than a car-length ahead of J. P. Standley of Roseburg, Ore., Saturday night to win the Strawberry Cup at Western Speedway.

A crowd of 2,185 watched Fontes, second to Don MsLeod of Seattle in the Washington Racing Association drivers standings, take over the lead on the 12th lap and hold it to the end of the 50-lap stock-car feature event.

George Robertson of Lewiston, Idaho, was third and Roy Smith of Victoria, who was bidding for his third Strawberry Cup win, was fourth.

John Carroll of Stanwood, Wash., was the early leader but both Fontes and Standley raced past him on the 12th lap.

Fontes also took the "A" trophy dash with Robertson second, Standley third and Smith fourth.

Fontes was fourth behind Gerry McLees of Hoquiam, Wash., Standley and John McLeod of Seattle in the third heat.

SURGENOR SECOND IN CHALLENE SERIES FINALE

PORTLAND — Ross Surgenor of Victoria finished second to Don Hall of Tacoma when the six-race International Drivers Challenge series ended Sunday.

The first five races of the series, including one at Victoria's Western Speedway, served to determine qualifiers and starting positions for the "final" race at Portland Speedway.

Veteran driver Herschel McGriff of Bridal Veil, Ore., who won the fifth race at Spanaway Speedway in Tacoma Saturday to snatch the series lead from Victoria's Rick O'Dell, was the early leader in the big 100-lap feature race Sunday.

McGriff's series lead gave him the first starting position and he wasn't headed until the 46th lap when Harry Jefferson of Naches, Wash., took over and led until the 58th lap.

Then, both Jefferson and McGriff ran into a car which had spun out and the race had to be stopped. Damage to Jefferson's car put him out of the race. McGriff got going again but, because of his crash, he had to start at the back of the field on the restart and he just couldn't make up the lost ground. He finished fifth.

Hall took the lead from the restart and, although he was chased for the rest of the way by Surgenor, he won by three car lengths.

Harold Hardesty of Medford, Ore., was third and George Stuart of Campbell River was fourth in the final race — and therefore in the challenge series final placings.

Markey James of Redding, Calif., was sixth, Jerry Entzel of Quincey, Wash., was seventh, Tom Klein of Portland was eighth.

Roy Haslam of Victoria placed 12th but engine problems and a crash plaued the other Vancouver Island drivers in the race.

O'Dell and Gary Kershaw of Victoria both dropped out with engine problems and Terry Forsyth of Victoria, who qualified for the big race by winning the "B" main event, also had trouble with his engine.

Hunters Caught Short

PORT COQUITLAM — Shorthanded Saanich E. J. Hunter was bombed 22-12 by Port Coquitlam Pogos Sunday in a Pacific Junior "B" Lacrosse League game.

The defeat was only the fourth in 16 games for the Saanich squad but it knocked the club out of the race for first place and ensured Burnaby Lakers of the league title.

Saanich, which was without scoring star Kevin Alexander and dressed only 11 players, got six goals from Kurt Robb.

Rick Sylvester scored twice for Saanich and the other goals were scored by Bob Cool, Bruce Armitage, Barry Hilton and Darryl Ball.

Tod Gillespie led Port Coquitlam with five goals and four assists and Rob Nehaj scored twice and had four assists.

Little-Used Quarterback Shows Way

CANTON, Ohio (AP) — Quarterback Joe Reed, who appeared in only one National Football League game last season, led San Francisco to two second-quarter touchdowns Saturday and a 20-7 triumph over the New England Patriots in the Hall of Fame game.

The second-year man from Mississippi State passed for one touchdown and nimbly directed the veteran 49ers' attack against the young, error-prone Patriots.

The victory, before a record Fawcett stadium crowd of 19,985, gave the National Football Conference a 2-1 series edge over the American Football Conference.

Prior to the first 1973 preseason game between NFL teams, Jim Parker, Joe Schmidt and Raymond Berry were inducted into the nearby Pro Football Hall of Fame.

New England made a game of it for the first quarter, trailing only 3-0 on the first of two field goals by Tom Wittum.

Then Reed took command in the second quarter, rifling a 29-yard scoring pass to Nick Witcher, after Jimmy Thomas scored on a two-yard run, for a 17-0 halftime lead.

Being a Fond Farewell To Mr. Attilio Randy

Item: I was to go out to his greenhouse tomorrow to pick up some tomatoes and to return the book he'd loaned me, but now Mr. Randy is dead at 87 from a heart attack — wouldn't you know it would happen when he was at work among his plants? — and I can't recall when I've felt such a sense of loss.

Attilio John Baptist Randy, Padua-born, perhaps the finest horticulturist in our parts, a crusader all his life for the small grower (a losing crusader, you'd have to say), he was all that. But I will remember him, I'm sure, as an argumentative, ingratiating, impatient immensely involved man who was the complete idealist.

When I last saw him a week ago he was talking enthusiastically about young people who'd managed to go back to the land. It was his lifelong belief that the small-holder could be a third force in Canada, a sort of buffer between the masses of labor and management classes and he was always ready to give his experise to young people who had taken over a plot of land.

He was equally intense — vehement, I guess, is the word — about the kind of chemical-grown junk that passes as vegetables in the modern supermarket, fought long and hard and fruitlessly for Victoria's public market where he'd done business since 1914.

The book he'd loaned me was a history of The Renaissance and Mr. Randy was a Renaissance man in the finest tradition.

Item: A small wager today on "Uncle," the big dark horse owned by my friend Roy Jewell and no one more surprised or pleased than I when he romped home to pay $24.40 for a two-dollar wager, splendid beast that he is.

"Uncle" was in one of those tragic stable fires at Exhibition Park, suffered severe damage to one eye, and hadn't been in the winner's circle in his five starts since the accident. So it was a grand victory and, I hear, one that was cheered lustily at the track even by people who had not bet on him, a very rare thing to happen.

None of my friends will believe it — not even those to whom, unselfishly, I gave the news — but the fact is that I had a long, serious talk with "Uncle" in his stall out near Beaver Lake, when he was recuperating, and "Uncle" told me not to lose my faith. "Don't lose your faith, Jack," he told me, "I'm coming back." The rest, of course, is history.

Item: I thought I'd given up trying to influence those selfish slobs in big empty cars who pass every hitch-hiker by, but maybe the answer is to be found in some variation of the Polish plan that's been brought to my attention by a well-travelled reader.

It originated, it seems, back in 1958, with a Warsaw youth magazine called Dookola Swita and it works, roughly, this way:

Any young person over the age of 17 may buy a booklet for about two dollars, called Autostop, at his school, university or at the state travel agency. It provides the young hitch-hiker with authorized identification and an insurance policy if he's in an accident, which protects the driver. The hitch-hiker simply displays his Autostop card when he wants a lift.

The friendly motorist gets a bonus, too. The hitch-hiker notes the name and address of his benefactor on a coupon that's mailed to Autostop's office. There are periodic draws with prizes for the car-owners and, once a year, special prizes, including a new Fiat, for those motorists who have given the most lifts in the previous 12 months.

State-controlled hitch-hiking, my informant tells me, has been a complete success in Poland and I can't see why it wouldn't work here as well.

Item: A second-hand report today, though from what we euphemistically call "a reliable source," regarding the brave lads who have been hoping for a "dialogue" with a killer whale, a project for which they received a nice little $14,000 from the federal government.

The report says that they have sailed and sailed and looked and looked, but so far they haven't sighted a killer whale, much less talked to one.

Pity.

Decoy Hawk Just Ducky

By BRUCE OBEE
Times Staff

Technological developments in agriculture are slowly forcing the traditional scarecrow out of the field.

But scarecrows are a lazy lot anyway and some of the newer devices used by farmers in controlling starlings and other nuisance birds have proven effective.

An artificial cooperhawk, suspended from a helium-filled balloon "works beautifully," says Mrs. Sedgman, "We wouldn't give this thing up for anything. He's a real pet of ours."

The plastic hawk, tied to the top of a tree, flies with "identical action" to that of a real bird, she said.

The dummy hawk was the only successful result of a number of experiments in bird control conducted at the Sedgman orchard.

An artificial gun, triggered by carbide gas, fired loud shots every two or three minutes. The starlings got used to it and the neighbors didn't.

So the Sedgmans set up speakers in the orchard and played tape recordings of a trapped starling.

"All it did was bring the other starlings down to see what happened to its mate," said Mrs. Sedgman.

But the cooperhawk did the trick and similar devices are beginning to find their way into the cornfields and fruit farms of the Okanagan and Fraser Valleys, she said.

Harry Andison, director of the federal department of agricultural research station in Central Saanich, said the most successful nuisance fighter is a high-frequency sound system used on large farms over North America.

Primarily aimed at starlings and robins the system transmits supersonic sound waves, inaudible to the human ear yet terrifying to small birds, said Andison.

But the "Av-alarm" sound system, manufactured in the United States, sells for $400 which is not economically feasible for smaller orchardists like the Sedgmans, he said.

"I don't think the thing has been developed and investigated to its fullest extent at all," says Beebe.

The National Research Council has invented numerous frightening devices, he said, but their effectiveness is usually temporary — the birds soon become used to them.

"If the models were backed periodically by the real thing, they would be totally effective," said Beebe.

Any large, flat open area can be a favorite meeting ground for various species, said Beebe — like airports.

"There's hardly an airport that doesn't have some problem along those lines," he said.

Victoria airport's runways are clustered with gulls. Pheasants and short-eared owls congregate on Vancouver airport's runways. Toronto has a snowy owl problem.

The solution?

Falcons, says Beebe.

Military airport personnel all over the world have been conducting experiments with falcons as pest controllers, said Beebe, and have been successful.

The only civilian airport which conducted similar experiments was Victoria International, to Beebe's knowledge, but Canadian law prohibits the use of falcons on airport runways.

Beebe believes the possibility of a falcon causing a plane crash is the reason they have been outlawed at civilian airports.

"If one gets ingested by one of those jet motors, particularly on take-off, you're going to have a crash," he said.

But if a gull causes a crash it can be considered an act of God, he said, and the public outcry wouldn't be nearly as loud as it would if a falcon, released on a runway by a human, caused a crash.

There are many more commercial uses for hawks and falcons, says Beebe, but progress has been slow.

Air Search Needless

Two youths from the United States were asked to leave Canada Sunday after they caused a full-scale air-sea search of Oak Bay waters, costing taxpayers an estimated $7,000.

The search for Johnny Bays, 20, and his 16-year-old brother Jimmy, both of Anaheim, California, began shortly after 4 p.m. Saturday when a boat they had rented from Oak Bay Marina was found banging against the breakwater near the marina.

The brothers rented the 14-foot aluminum boat with a six horse power engine at 1:15 p.m. Saturday. About 4:15 p.m. a Beach Drive resident called the marina and said an unoccupied boat had come in from the Chain Islands, about a mile from the marina, and landed against the breakwater.

It was one-third full of water with the engine running.

The marina's 61-foot Mv Lakewood and 20-foot Bertram began a search of the area and were later joined by a helicopter from CFB Comox, a U.S. Coast Guard helicopter from Port Angeles, and the Canadian Coast Guard cutter Rider.

He told police his brother had been left with the boat and was unaware the motor was running.

After the incident the pair went to White Rock. Johnny returned to pick up their luggage and meet his brother at Tsawwassen, said police.

Later Sunday an immigration officer asked the youth to leave and take his brother with him.

He was given a "check-out letter" to be presented at the border to verify their departure, a department of immigration spokesman said.

The brothers were asked to leave because the time they had planned to spend in Canada had elapsed, not as a result of the trouble they caused.

A department of national defence spokesman said today there are no plans to try and recover the costs of the search.

Haunted? Call Tom

Haunted houses could qualify for preservation as historic sites in Saanich.

But if there are any wraiths in municipal basements they'd better start rattling their chains because planner Tom Loney hasn't heard of a single one.

Loney's department has asked for public help in identifying land or buildings of historic significance within the municipality for compiling an inventory of sites that might be preserved.

They could be judged on the basis of age, architecture, association with prominent persons, purpose for which they were used or role they played in the development of Saanich or the province.

Noting that haunted buildings have been recognized elsewhere as being worthy of official care, Loney commented.

"I don't know of any honest to God ghost in Saanich. If there is anybody who has a ghost in the basement, we'd be very interested to hear about it (though) I didn't know just what we'd be able to do about it."

Loney said once a list of suggestions has been submitted, the planning department and council could be in a position to apply criteria. In setting up standards it is hoped assistance will be offered by groups or associations with an historical interest.

Financial aid may be forthcoming from senior governments — such as via the Archaeological and Historic Sites Protection Act of B.C.

Loney said architectural merit may be a valid reason for preserving a place, but not necessarily. The purpose for which the land was once used may be of greater merit in some cases.

"The fact that a building is old is not necessarily a reason for preserving it," Loney said.

Unlike Oak Bay, Saanich has no commonly-known extra-sensory phenomena, such as are recognized in Scottish castles and British bungalows and are well-known to psychic researchers and tourists.

The place is full of haunts, but ghosts? That remains to be seen. Or unseen.

1,600 Indians Set for Games

About 1,600 Indians will take part in the second annual B.C. Native Indian Olympiad to be held in Victoria Aug. 4 to 12.

A swimming meet will be held Saturday evening at 6 at the Victoria YM-YWCA followed by a contest to choose an Olympiad Princess at Newcombe auditorium at 7:30.

Events scheduled for the week beginning Sunday: soccer tournament, 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. at the University of Victoria; Monday: track and field, 2 p.m. at UVic; Tuesday: women's and girls' softball tournament, 9 a.m. at Topaz Park; Wednesday: continuation of softball tournament, 9 a.m. at Topaz Park; Thursday: boys' softball tournament, 9 a.m. at Topaz Park; Friday: senior men's softball, 3 p.m., Topaz Park, juvenile boys' lacrosse, 11 a.m., Topaz Park; Saturday: lacrosse tournament, at noon at Memorial Arena, softball tournament, 9 a.m., Topaz Park; Sunday: men's softball final, 9 a.m., Topaz Park, salmon barbecue and water sports at noon at Maple Bank Park, Esquimalt.

Co-ordinator John Rice said most contestants and their families will camp out for the duration of the games. He said some beds are available in the UVic residences but more accommodation is needed.

"We would appreciate the use of church halls and school gymnasiums or billets in private homes," Rice said.

Anyone interested in offering accommodation may contact Rice at 384-9795 after 5 p.m.

Woman Suffers Burns

A 61-year-old Victoria woman is in fair condition in Victoria General Hospital with burns suffered Saturday in a fire and explosion which knocked out two bedroom windows at her home at 651 Battery.

Mrs. W. H. Ryan was found by firemen lying on a living room couch when they arrived about 1:30 p.m.

A spokesman said today the fire was caused when a burning cigarette fell onto a mattress in the upstairs bedroom, ignited gas fumes in the room and caused an explosion.

A gas jet had been turned on in the room earlier, the fire official said. Total damage has been estimated at $300.

Restaurant Union Talks Strike Date

Preparations for a strike of 1,100 employees of White Spot Ltd. in Victoria and the lower mainland will be made at a meeting of union members and strike committee tonight.

Members of Canadian Food and Associated Services Union are entitled to strike without further notice, having passed the mandatory 72-hour notice to White Spot restaurants Sunday afternoon.

Union president Frank McRae said tonight's meeting would determine when the strike would become effective, whether it will be rotating or general and other details.

There has been no recent offer by the company to resume negotiating, McRae said, but the union is still "wide open to meaningful negotiations."

He said White Spot, which has 18 locations on the mainland and two in Greater Victoria, had "taken a hard line on negotiations. They've never really sat down with us."

The union sought a wage improvement, new overtime policy and clarification of job responsibilities, and was offered a 65-cents-an-hour hike over two years.

Membership turned down the offer and cast a "substantial strike vote," which McRae said would not be disclosed in percentage terms. The union is confident of its position, he said.

OUTDOOR SCENE, shown above, was painted behind bars by an inmate of a penitentiary. The painting is part of a collection of art works by prisoners called Prison Arts '73 on display at the Hillside Mall July 30 to Aug. 1. The project has a $3,564 Opportunities for Youth grant to promote a tour of prisons and public centres across Canada. (Photo by Irving Strickland).

The Other Side of Travel

elizabeth forbes

John and Grace Climenhaga have returned after a year in which he visited and studied at outstanding observatories around the world — with extended stays in Japan, South Africa and Poland.

I write that word "returned" loosely, for no sooner were they back in Victoria than they were off again to Smithers to visit their daughter.

Before they left I had a short talk with Mrs. Climenhaga in which she remarked that "though extended travel is thrilling, and an exciting experience it is not without its moments of exhaustion, unhappy digestion, swollen feet, loneliness for home and family, and at times — complete and utter frustrationn."

All the beatuy and wonder of the travel brochures does exist, she says. "It is in the process of getting there and back that the rub comes."

To prove her point, she handed me several pages of notes she had made. They show exactly what she means.

For instance, there were times ("only occasionally, mind you") when she was acutely homesick for her family — daughter Joan, son David and even for his little dog "wee Sarah".

Moments too "when we stood waiting for buses or when we pressed through crowds in subway stations; carrying supplies as we walked in cutting wind or chill, when I remembered our car back home — the warmth and convenience of it."

Other times of "utter frustration" in attempts to buy simple items such as Kleenex, nylons, a wash cloth or a can opener.

"It can take several hours to purchase a few things on a grocery list since you must go to a number of stores (perhaps five or six) and stand in a queue — and you may find when you are third in a queue, as John did one day, that the counter closes for the lunch break, not to open again until 3 p.m."

In Poland the Climenhagas learned that ground coffee is bought in a candy shop; detergents and laundry needs in a store other than a crocery, but quite apart from the pharmacy; bathroom tissue and table napkins at the stationers where all types of paper is sold.

She explains "you wear your coat because it is easier than carrying it plus all your luggage, plus your umbrella.

"You are too hot. The public address system bleats a muffled directive in what could even be English — you would never know.

"You carry your passport, entrance or exit papers, in the two fingers you have left, or between your teeth. You hope, at the customs, they won't open your bags, especially the one with your laundry on top (mostly they didn't).

"You go to the airport bank and try hurriedly to assess your monetary needs in order to transpose currency, while someone behind you mutters the bus for Timbucktoo is ready to leave and that is the bus you want."

There were days "when we craved a home-cooked meal; a drink of pure water; a cup of hot coffee.

Days when the mail didn't arrive; important papers to be signed and returned were delayed. Days when the question "Will a visa be granted and will it be posted to the right address in time?" was uppermost in their minds.

These, she says, were some of the "niggling" worries.

In regard to language difficulties Mrs. Climenhaga says "you are lucky in some places to get and English-language paper, and even if it is a week old, you pore over every word of the news — scandals, international butter markets, fishing rights and intrigues, simply because it is so good to have a newspaper you can read."

On a bleak and rainy afternoon in an apartment or an impersonal hotel room, "your mind picks up wispy little memories of home — like the smell of coffee and mince tarts in the Christmas season, with a fire crackling merrily in the fireplace; supper eaten from tea trays with a game roaring on the TV; a bowl of steamed rice and raisins on a rainy Sunday."

In retrospect, of course, and offset by the innumerable courtesies and kindnesses, the warmth and pleasures experienced, Grace Climenhaga is certain "these minor annoyances seem nothing."

At the same time she does make it clear that should you be faint-hearted or unsure of the rigors of travel, then it might be wise to "remember the pitfalls" . . . and be ready for them.

Getting Outside Kitchen Myth for Working Wife

By MARGARET WEIERS

Any working wife's worst suspicions are now confirmed.

A professor from Cornell University, having surveyed 1,400 families in New York state, has the statistics to show that wives work between 66 and 75 hours a week, an average of 6½ hours more than their husbands, whose work weeks range between 57 and 71 hours. Those are totals of hours spent working at home and at employment where both husbands and wives hold paid jobs.

Kathryn E. Walker produced her statistics at a recent convention of the American Home Economics Association in Atlantic City.

They aren't news to the hotline radio broadcaster who, when she goes out of town on assignment, pre-cooks an array of gourmet casseroles her surgeon-husband can take from the freezer for his dinners. Nor are they surprising to the female half of a couple of doctors whose task it became to arrange the removal of a litter of infant raccoons from the fireplace chimney — and who, when she's out of town, has to make sure to schedule shopping trips to buy presents for the children.

But the sceptics to whom it is news, and doubtful news at that (after all, a professor citing statistics is akin to the devil quoting Scripture; it proves nothing), here's the composite weekly diary of one working wife with a husband and one male child. Multiply everything by 0.3 for each additional child and make appropriate seasonal adjustments (Summer gardening takes more time than winter snow-shovelling).

Twice-a-year chores, such as washing windows, changing storms and screens, taking out or putting away winter-summer clothing and blankets, are disregarded. So are the annual festivities — preparing for birthday parties, cooking Thanksgiving and Christmas dinners.

Monday through Friday: Each spends 10 hours a day at work and getting there and home, but while he takes a long lunch hour and a half, in a pleasant pub with congenial colleagues, she grabs a bowl of soup in the company cafeteria and dashes out to shop for socks or sheets, hockey sticks or drapery fabric, or phones the school principal about the shortage of spelling textbooks and the proliferation of school fund-raising drives. Result: His work week is 42½ hours, hers 47½.

At-home chores, Monday through Friday: Garbage and dog detail take him an hour and 45 minutes; the household accounts, 30 minutes a week; sporadic chauffeuring of son to hockey, baseball and football games perhaps 40 minutes (staying to watch the game doesn't count). He and she grocery-shop together for an hour on Thursdays. His five-day week total is now 48½ hours.

Working mothers dare not send their children to school (or their husbands to work, for that matter) without a good breakfast. And she knows that good budgets can be controlled by avoiding convenience foods. So add 8 hours and 45 minutes of meal-preparation time. Monday laundry takes 3 hours. Wednesday, while he watches the Expos on television, she spends 30 minutes scanning the supermarket ads and making a grocery-shopping list for the Thursday trip. Such odd errands as patching blue jeans (iron-on patches work fine, as long as they're hand-stitched around the edges), making lunch for a school field trip, and writing assorted notes to teachers and the weekly cleaning woman, take another 45 minutes. Her total for five days is now 61½ hours.

Weekends are for leisure, more his than hers. While he spends 4 hours on Saturday gardening and doing other chores, she spends the same length of time in the kitchen. And she repeats the performance on Sunday. So, 4 hours weekend work for him, 8 hours for her.

DEAR ABBY: I have been a kindergarten teacher for six years and I emphatically disagree with your advice to enroll Ronny in kindergarten knowing he will be the youngest and smallest child in the class.

His size has no relationship to the situation, but his age does, the younger ones usually have trouble keeping up with the older ones. I think it's better for the child to remain at home for another year, even though he's eligible age-wise, then when he goes to school he will be the oldest instead of the youngest in his class.

Let him watch Sesame Street, go to the library, take education trips, and become more aware of his environment, and when he enters kindergarten he will not only be taller but better prepared. — School Teacher.

DEAR TEACHER: Thank you for your view as a school teacher. Please read on for the opinion of a reader who was the youngest and smallest in her class.

DEAR ABBY: This is for Ronny's mom who was concerned about starting Ronny in kindergarten because he would be the youngest and smallest in his class. She said she and Ronny's father are both small so Ronny would probably be small all his life.

I was the youngest and smallest in my class and all through school I was the only girl on the track team. I could also shinny up a rope faster than anybody in my gym class.

I was called "Shrimp, Runt, Squirt, Midget," and "Pee wee," but the fat kids were called, "Lardo" and "Fatso," and the tall kids were called, "Beanpole." So what?

I'm a great-grandmother now, and my 6-foot 2-inch son calls me "Mighty Mouse" and my 6-foot 4-inch grandson told me to get on a stepladder so he could kiss me. I just laughed and shinnied up his leg.

Tell Ronny's mom if the lad is bright, enroll him in school, and he will find a way to compensate for his stature. Also, has she considered that waiting a year might make Ronny the oldest and smallest child in his class? That could present worse problems. — Mighty Mouse.

DEAR ABBY: What would you do if you took your apparently healthy pet to a veterinarian and the next morning you received the shocking news that your pet was dead?

This happened to us and we are heartbroken. We noticed our chihuahua was favoring her right front leg so we took her to a veterinarian who asked us to leave her overnight for a thorough examination.

Abby, we were as fond of that dog as some people are of their children. We can't help but feel that if we hadn't taken her to the vet she would be alive today. She must have met with some kind of accident there. Since this happened we have heard of other people who have had a similar experience.

We can't seem to get a straight answer concerning what happened to our dog. Isn't there some way to investigate this veterinarian? Any help you can give us will be appreciated. — Mr. J.T.

DEAR MR. T.: Call this to the attention of your local humane society. If circumstances warrant it, they will turn the matter over to the medical board to whom veterinarians are accountable. you have a right to know the cause of your dog's death.

CONFIDENTIAL to Jack S. Jr.: A gentleman who would write a lady a love letter with no return address for her reply is a coward! (Please write again, won't you?)

CONFIDENTIAL to "Interested in Crime Motivation;" To put it succinctly, "Poverty is the mother of crime." Would you believe I am quoting a Roman historian (Magnus Aurelius Cassiodorus) who lived between 490 and 575?

● the leisure craftsman

by Phyllis Fiarotta

Q. I am eager to make an afghan from my husband's old ties. I have started three in different styles. I was most delighted to see a Leisure Craftsman article on a Perky Petal Pillow as this is a patchwork design I have been wanting to do.

An example of an afghan made in the petal style is on display in the Pioneer Museum in Salt Lake City, Utah, in Tabernacle Square. The lady who did the afghan many, many years ago had won first prize for her work.

Ever since I saw it, I have wanted to make a similar afghan. I have written to many quilt-makers and no one seems able to tell me how it was made. After seeing your Perky Pillow I have a fairly good idea of how that famous afghan was made.

Here is my problem: Since an afghan is square or oblong as opposed to round, I do not know how to solve the problem of the corners. Also could you suggest a foundation on which to sew the petals?—Lillian M. Butler

A. The design for the Perky Petal Pillow is a craft technique passed down to me from my mother, a staunch New Englander. To refresh the memories of those who read this article, a petal is a 4½-inch square of scrap fabirc, finished off with a ¼-inch hem on all sides. Folding directions are shown.

There are two ways of sewing petals to a fabric base which I suggest you make from a new colored sheet.

1. The petals are sewed at right angles. The corners are topped with a petal jutting out from the corner. Follow the sides inward, always overlapping that corner petal. These corner petals will form an X on the finished afghan.

2. Curve the petals into the corners. This will give the afghan an oval illusion.

Free for the Asking

Every good homemaker has an emergency shelf with a selection of cans so that she is never at a loss when unexpected guests drop in. Among these supplies should always be canned salmon. Of course, the salmon will also come in handy when you plan a family meal or party fare.

Among the elegant supper dishes is Salmon Quiche. Cut into small wedges, you can also serve it as an appetizer.

If you decide to entertain buffet style, an appetizing focal point would be a Tomato Salmon Mould. This is especially attractive if you use a fish-shaped mould.

The booklet urges you to try and use the entire contents of the can and not, like so many homemakers, throw away the juice. Only a pinch of salt is added to the salmon in the canning process. It is cooked entirely in its own juices which therefore contain valuable nutrients.

Send your request to: Recipes, P.O. Box 33798, Postal Station "D", Vancouver 9, B.C. Please allow at least 2-3 weeks for delivery.

ALTHOUGH BASIC design of this house originally was ranch style, it now has a contemporary look because of the ceiling structure and shelves that were added later.

House in Subdivision Likely Cheapest Buy

In home buying, your best bet usually is to choose a subdivision house. Through quantity purchases and keeping work crews always busy, large builders can offer you a home for less than you can build one yourself. You relinquish individuality, but you get a lot for your money, and the individuality, the personal touch, you can add later.

Take the home shown here, by decorator Suzanne Faulkner, where the dining area was simply a space at the end of the living room, the toe of an "L", so to speak, with no distinguishing architectural features. To make the area seem more spacious, and also for convenience, a four-foot-wide space, three feet from the floor, was opened in the wall between dining area and kitchen. Twelve inches deep, it functions as a pass-through and a serving counter. Panelling, of one-by-eights, covers the wall above and below the opening, a nice texture contrast with the smooth plaster walls elsewhere.

Shelves, also 12-inches deep, fill the space between pass-through and exterior wall. The shelves are glass, supported on metal rods, and a horizontal one-by-twelve in the centre creates a light box for the two lower shelves.

Most unusual though, and simply done, is the ceiling structure which defines the dining area. One-by-fours on end, 12-inches apart, extend from the kitchen at door-top height, over the dining space. The higher ceiling can be seen above, but the lower boards create intimacy for the area.

Church Order Splits Family

By WAYNE KING

CARLISLE, Pa. — At 44 years of age, a prosperous, soft-spoken Mennonite farmer and father of six, Robert Bear seemed oddly cast as a heretic, excommunicated from his church and angrily challenging the faith of his fathers.

"I was brought up as a reform Mennonite," he says, the model of rawboned American Gothic as he stands on a patch of the lush 300 acres he tilled until this year a few miles from the town of Carlisle in Pennsylvania's farm country. "But I have always been anxious to know the teachings of the church. But the church wanted darkness, not light."

As a result of his inquiries — which included public denunciations of church doctrine and its bishops and accusations that the church hierarchy had lied — Bear has been excommunicated from the church.

Horse and buggy cortege winds along highway in Ontario

Wife Continues

Moreover, for more than a year he has been officially "shunned" by the 70 or so members in three congregations in the Cumberland Valley, and, by church teaching, his soul placed in eternal jeopardy.

Most painful, however, is that his pretty 35-year-old wife, Gale, who continues in the faith and daily wears the traditional plain long blue gown and cap of the sect, will share neither his table nor his bed, and, by Bear's account will hardly speak to him.

His six children no longer have faith and trust in him and he has moved from his farmhouse to a sparse bachelor's trailer. Most of the church, including his father and a younger brother, think he is unstable at best. Some think he is flirting with Satan at worst. And much of his farm lies idle because he has been unable to plant the bumper crop of potatoes he has brought forth every year for the last 20 years, earning up to $40,000 annually.

"They're doing this in the name of Christianity," said Bear, "but I will not knuckle under.

"The bishops and I are like two stags on a mountain. My wife is the doe standing at the top. A fight is inevitable."

The locking of horns between Bear and his church has already sounded the length of the verdant valley along the Conodoguinet Creek. Several local newspapers have reported the clash, and Bear, to the consternation of reclusive Mennonites, has hired a Harrisburg public relations firm to spread the story.

"We must lift the skirts of these plain clothes and give the world a peek underneath," says Bear. "Those plain garments had pride in the corruption of power."

The Reform Mennonites, similar to the Amish, who have related theology, wear the simple dress of "plain people." Their teachings are based on a literal interpretation of the words of Jesus or the Apostles. They are nonresistant, shun worldliness, will not sue in court, hold governmental office, vote or take up arms in war.

600 Members

Theologically descended from the Anabaptists who broke with the Roman Catholic Church during the Reformation, the tiny sect, which is governed by nine bishops and has some 600 members in the United States and Canada, practices excommunication and "shunning" as an article of faith, although they are rarely exercised.

Only a public airing of the shunning and the marital catastrophe it brings, Bear believes, can force a resolution of his problems.

It is the church's position that excommunication and shunning are not punishments to be meted against sinners. Rather, says a Reformed Mennonite Bishop, Glenn Cross of Mechanicsburg, "the purpose is to convince the brother to return to the fold."

Bear Blamed

Bishop Gross, who is the brother of Bear's wife, believes, along with the rest of the church, that Bear's public battle simply moves the excommunicant further from the church and harms the family.

He contends that Bear sealed his own fate and that separation from the church was the result of his own acts and the inexorable application of the scriptures. "We believe he excommunicated himself," said Bishop Gross, a somber, pious man who operates a thriving produce business in Mechanicsburg.

"The reason," the Bishop continued, "for the excommunication was railing against the church. We tried to be patient and long-suffering with him. But Robert appeared at meetings and distributed accusations and admonitions against the church, accusing a minister of being a liar."

Bear, who was raised in the church and joined it when he was 23, said that he had asked no questions until doubts about church infallibility began to bother him. Complaints and questions about doctrine caused both him and his wife to be excommunicated in 1964.

He and his wife were allowed back into the church. But then he charged the church hierarchy with heresies in 1971. Largely esoteric, the charges contended among other things that Bishop Gross had administered communion to church members unfit to receive it.

He visited congregations in Ohio and Michigan and distributed printed versions of his charges.

In Bishop Gross's view, Bear acted as he did because he "lost the Holy Spirit of Christ that guided him at one time."

'A Living Hell'

Bear, who calls the shunning "a living hell of torture," says he is determined to fight back.

"These bishops must be discredited and proven wrong," he said.

"They must be humbled. They must not be allowed to break up another family the way they have mine and others."

Detox Centre Fights Bias

FREDERICTON (CP) — The affluent alcoholic has always had recourse through his financial standing to assistance from faraway and expensive treatment clinics but what about the working class or unemployed alcoholic?

In Fredericton, an organization called the Elm City Foundation is devoted to eliminating class bias in the treatment of alcoholism.

The foundation has a 10-bed detoxification centre and operates it on a non-profit basis with federal assistance.

"Our policy is to open the door to any alcoholic who resors to the centre for help, whatever his social or economic standing," says Ronald Lynck a Fredericton businessman who is chariman of the board of directors of the foundation.

"The detoxification centre is a place to which an alcoholic can come when he is sick, friendless and needs a place to 'dry out' before he attempts to return to his place in the world."

It was organized by a board of directors and advisers that included local clergymen, physicians, a psychiatrist, police and court officials, nurses, businessmen and a retired health department official — people who daily confront the problem of alcohol abuse.

"As a matter of policy we've hired several rehabilitated alcoholics, some of whom themselves have been clients of the detoxification centre," said Lynch.

The social, economic, and medical factors affecting the treatment of alcoholism are complex and there is no easy solution to the problem, he noted.

But the once-hidden problem has become more open.

"The detoxification centre will admit him for that critical period when he has to dry out and get himself organized," Lynch said.

"There is no effort to impose therapy or counselling on people who just want to be by themselves for a while. However, if they want to discuss their problem, there is always someone available to listen."

Elm City is also a drop-in centre where alcoholics on the road to rehabilitation can find moral support in their struggle.

Zucchini Cooks Easily

By HILDA BEASTALL

On the lighter side of food come delicately flavored summer squash—yellow Summer Crookneck and green Zucchini are two which grow easily here. Always a few fruits are ready during July and from there on the abundance can be embarassing unless you pass them onto friends, including recipes with them.

Apart from using them raw in salads like cucumbers, the simplest way to cook young summer squash is to wash and dry them gently, then slice one inch thick retaining skins and seeds. Steam on top of a pan of bacon, hamburger or other meats for the last 10 minutes of the meat cooking time. Cover the pan tightly.

Just as good is a pan of shredded new potatoes and carrots, onions and green beans, each in its separate heap, steam cooked with a spoonful of water for 10 minutes and then topped with slices of squash which will steam in an additional five minutes.

Young squash need to be only just less than crisp when cooked. It should still have shape, then it will have flavor.

The moisutre content is sufficient for steaming in its own juices, but it must be tightly covered to retain the steam whether you pan-cook or oven-cook.

SAUTEED ZUCCHINI WITH TOMATOES:

2 six-inch-long Zucchinis
4 medium vine-ripened tomatoes
1 medium onion sliced
2 Tbsp margarine
a little salt
chopped parsley or green dill

Add half-inch slices of Zucchini and quarter-inch tomato slices. Brown quickly on both sides, then reduce to gentle simmering for about 10 minutes or until nearly tender.

Serve with hot, cooked brown rice. Sprinkle chopped parsley, green dill or other green herb over the whole dish.

This makes an easily prepared summer supper which goes well with cold cooked meat; or it is even better with grated Cheddar cheese generously sprinkled over the brown rice.

Pour over Zucchini, raising heat to 325 deg. to brown bottom of omelette, lifting edges. Then divide into wedges and turn each with spatula to brown other side.

Keep Ship-Building: Union

The Boilermakers' Union business agent thinks it would be a mistake for the federal transport ministry to buy the land formerly occupied by Victoria Machinery Depot (VMD) on Ogden Point, the last remaining sizable parcel suitable for ship construction in Victoria.

Negotiations are in progress for sale of the property by VMD owner Harold Husband. The ministry plans a consolidation of coast guard, weather ship, stores and administrative offices.

Hindle feels there are other areas available for the ministry in Esquimalt and that a vigorous addition to the shipbuilding industry should restore the Ogden Point property to its former place.

Shipbuilding today is "a whole new ball game" compared to what it was when VMD closed its Ogden Point yard five years ago, Hindle said.

A minority Liberal government in Ottawa, more sensitive to Western Canada, and new pressures emerging on the west coast for ship construction for government and private interests lie behind the improved climate, the unionist said.

"I'm concerned that industrial land is going to be taken away from industrial workers."

Hindle said either the provincial or federal government could buy the property and re-sell it to a private shipbuilder.

Or there could be a consortium formed by the two governments and private interests to operate a viable yard. Either way, Hindle said it would relieve Husband of any obligation he may have made to Yarrows and Burrard Dry Dock Co. regarding competition.

Many more than the 1,800 persons now employed in local shipbuilding and ship repair work could be restored to marine construction work, Hindle said.

He suggested that if the VMD Dallas Road property goes to a passive use, such as the MoT depot, Yarrows and associated supporting industry like machine and welding shops will suffer.

Hindle also deplored the move to build a floating drydock in Vancouver capable of handling large new cargo vessels. This could result in loss of ship work in Victoria, location of the largest dry dock on the west coast. But it requires widening to admit supertankers.

Hindle concurred with a Victoria Chamber of Commerce bid in support of widening the graving dock.

Hindle reconnoitred the Seattle shipbuilding program last month, finding there are contracts to build a sugar carrier for Hawaii, a ship for the Alaska trade, defence projects and icebreakers for the U.S. Coast Guard. The icebreakers alone are worth millions, he said.

Ogden PPoint would be the ideal place for building icebreakers, new B.C. government ferries and bulk carriers for the B.C. coal industry, he felt.

The Victoria waterfront "can't be just sterile parks and beaches," he said. There is a place for marine industry on the city's waterfront, he submitted.

It was Hindle's view that if government and industry made a concerted effort to restore shipbuilding here, organized labor would do its part by contributing to the growth and would make a commitment "not to gouge or rip off."

ARE YOU SICK AND TIRED?
Of wheeling and dealing and not REALLY knowing if you are IN FACT getting the most for your money?

HERE ARE SOME TYPICAL EXAMPLES:

1. YOU HAVE SOMETHING OF VALUE TO TRADE IN:

A. The new item you want to purchase is advertised and/or ticketed with the Mfg. Sugg. List or an inflated, so called, list price . . . and then your trade-in allowance comes off these usually inflated prices. So you probably end up paying more than you bargained for!

or

B. The new item you want to buy is advertised and/or ticketed at a very low price . . . BUT (The catch is this)—the low price is only available with an APPROVED TRADE-IN.

Now let's face facts!—What are you really getting for your trade-in? If the comparison shown is the manufacturer's suggested list or so called regular list price—you probably end up paying more than you bargained for!

OR

C. What if you have nothing to trade in? Ask yourself—what am I going to pay for the item I want and need now?
The only way YOU are going to find out is by shopping and comparing! THEN AND ONLY THEN, will you be able to come up with an answer that is going to be satisfactory to your own peace of mind.

OUR "BETTER-BUY" POLICY CLEARLY SPELLS OUT THE DIFFERENCE!

Better-Buy prices are consistent—"Better-Buy" prices are advertised and ticketed so that if you have nothing to trade in—you KNOW that "Better-Buy" prices have got to be sharp!

If you do have a trade-in WE WANT THEM and you'll get TOP DOLLAR for your trades too!!

We at Better-Buy invite you to shop and compare and then you will understand why people are saying "Smart Shoppers 'Buy Better' at Better-Buy."

Pink Floral Cascade Found on Tamarix

An easily-grown shrub having cascades of pink flowers like a misty dream — this is seen as a reality in some local gardens during July and August.

You may say you had a similar shrub blooming in early spring. Several members of this genus Tamarix can be grown here, for they love salt air, wind and summer sunshine.

If you know the shrub and like it, you may have different species of Tamarix to bloom from May to frost.

First an attempt to describe the shrub. Small planting-size Tamarix grow fairly rapidly to eight feet or so. he foliage is thin and thread-like, offering no flat surfaces for salt spray nor for wind damage.

The tiny foliage is also the reason that full hot sunshine is enjoyed and needed by this genus.

Tamarix, pentandra is the one now to be seen flowering, the ends of this year's branches being draped with the tiny poink flowers. o some extent this species depends on hard pruning in late April to encourage new early summer growth which will flower over a fairly long period.

Later there is T. odessana (from the Black Sea region) with paler pink flowers, and its variety Pink Cascade, much deeper in color and still later to bloom, covering our fall period until frost.

In spring it is T. parviflora which looks like a pink dream, so dainty and airy. Even in our coldest winters, these Mediterranean natives are only temporarily and partially damaged.

New growth invariably appears by late spring from unharmed sections. After another complete year of growing, you have as good a showing as ever.

★ ★ ★

One English garden writer, Haworth Booth, mentions the spicy fragrance of Tamarix pentandra, likening it to the smell of gingerbread. In the years when we grew this summer blooming species, we were not aware of this, so possibly our climate has too low humidity in summer to develop this desirable attribute.

All Tamarixes are easily propagated by cuttings of the current year's growth taken in late fall and inserted into a sandy soil outdoors where a frosty wind is not likely to find them.

Roots will be evident by late spring when the best cuttings can be planted out where you wish them to remain.

Although without spectacular foliage, these shrubs have certain characteristics which endear them to gardeners, especially in places where the elements are so admirably suited to their needs.

SOLUTION TUESDAY

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

Edgar Kaplan, the publisher and editor of The Bridge World Magazine, came up with a fine defensive play in today's deal, which arose in the Blue Ribbon Life Masters Pairs Championship held this past fall in Lancaster, Pa. He was partnered by Norman Kay, of Philadelphia. North was Eddie Kantar, of Los Angeles, and South was Marshall Miles, of San Bernardino, Calif. East-West vulnerable. North deals.

SOUTH

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
Pass	Pass	Pass	1 ♣
Pass	1 ◇	Pass	1 ♡
Pass	Pass	1 NT	Dbl.
Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Queen of ♡.

In justice to Miles in the South seat, it should be stated that if the game had been rubber bridge, he would not have bid one trump. He would have passed automatically. But, in duplicate bridge, with East-West passing the hand out at one heart, he felt that it was a reasonable gamble to compete with a non-vulnerable one-notrump overcall. On this day, his decision turned out to be costly.

Kay's opening lead was the diamond queen, which was captured by dummy's king. A low spade was then led, Kaplan's queen being taken by Miles' ace. The nine of spades was returned, West covered with the ten, and dummy played the five. Kaplan, perforce, won the trick with his king.

Had Kaplan now played back a diamond, Miles would have fulfilled his contract. He would have won the trick with his ace, cashed dummy's spades, and then thrown West into the lead with a club. Eventually West would have been compelled to lead a heart, and South's king would have become his seventh trick.

If Kaplan returned a club instead, Kay could not cash his three top cards in that suit, for to do so would make a winner out of South's fourth club. Whatever else Kay played, he could not get out of the end play, for Miles would be able to put Kay into the lead with a club.

And if Kaplan, after winning his spade king, returned a low heart, Kay's 10 would win the trick, and declarer would be down one — for a reasonable North-South score. But Kaplan took care of things nicely for this side: he plunked the jack of hearts on the table — and declarer could not avoid a two-trick set, losing four hearts, three clubs, and one spade.

"Don's doing fine," said Joe. "He gets only 80 cents an hour less than I do."

Old Jake shook his head. "80 cents! That's all I made in a day when I started. You must be making quite a bit yourself now."

"Not bad," replied Joe. "It takes me only seven hours to earn what Don earns in nine."

What was Joe's hourly rate?

Junior Draft Parley Topic

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — A meeting between federal Health Minister Marc Lalonde and representatives of the World Hockey Association (WHA) and National Hockey League (NHL) will be held in Vancouver next Friday.

He said the purpose of the meeting is to try to reach an agreement with the WHA on drafting junior hockey players in Canada.

Oilers, Saanich Roll To Intermediate Finals

The final stage is set for the Vancouver Island Intermediate "A" and "B" Lacrosse Leagues.

Island Pacific Oilers of Victoria received steady netminding from Doug Beech to edge Nanaimo Falcons 13-12 at Nanaimo Sunday and advance to the "A" final.

Oilers won the best-of-three semi-final series in two straight and now will face Esquimalt Teamsters in the best-of-three title series, scheduled to open Tuesday at Memorial Arena at 9 p.m.

Mark Shoor, with three goals and four assists; Tej Labh, with three and three, and Cleve Dheensaw, with three and two, powered Oilers' attack. Bruce Lubinich, Steve Croucher, Pete Kaaman and Roy Sinden scored one each for Victoria.

Peg's Delicatessen of Saanich has earned the right to meet Island Pacific in this week's best-of-three "B" league final. The opener also will be played Tuesday at Memorial Arena, starting at 7 p.m.

With Ron Bridge scoring four goals, Peg's edged Sidney Kinsmen 13-11 Saturday at Centennial Park to take the best-of-three semi-final series 2-0.

A 'Second Chance'

Victoria Shamrocks take on Coquitlam Adanacs on the Mainland tonight and at Memorial Arena at 8 Wednesday night with the knowledge that the Victoria club could still finish second in the Western Lacrosse Association.

It's a long chance, but the Rocks could take second spot if they win the last two games of their schedule this week and the Adanacs also lose their final game against New Westminster Salmonbellies.

Salmonbellies have already been knocked out of playoff contention by the Shamrocks but that is the only thing certain as the WLA enters the last week of its schedule.

Coquitlam needs three wins and a loss by the Burrards to finish in a first-place tie.

If any teams are tied when the schedule ends Aug. 6, a sudden-death playoff game will be held.

If no playoff games are necessary, Shamrocks and Adanacs will begin their best-of-five semi-final series Aug. 8 in Victoria and go to Coquitlam for games Aug. 11 and 13. Other games if needed will be on Aug. 15 in Victoria and Aug. 18 in Coquitlam.

In the WLA's individual scoring race, Shamrocks have the Thompson brothers, Brian and Ivan, in second and fourth places respectively.

Brian has 42 goals and 47 assists for 89 points and trails Kevin Parsons of Coquitlam by five points.

Ivan has scored 43 goals and added 43 assists for 86 points and is one point behind veteran Paul Parnell of New Westminster, who is third.

BOWLERS TAKE CHARGE

Bowlers held the upper hand in two out of three matches when the Victoria and District Cricket Association's Knockout Cup competition began Saturday.

Peter Davis took seven wickets for only 21 runs to help Incogs beat Castaways at St. Michael's University School. Castaways made 45 all out in answer to a total of 59 for nine by Incogs.

Ken Aziz ook fivte wickets for just two runs as Oak Bay easily beat a Victoria Junior team at Windsor Park. Oak Bay scored 64 all out, with Mike Cochrane getting an unbeaten 26, and the juniors were bundled out for only 10 runs.

The only match with much scoring was at Shawnigan Lake Boys' School where Albion, with Don Hughes hitting 46 runs, made 140 for six and then kept Copwichan to a total of 105 for nine to take the victory.

Pep Declines Role as Ref

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — Former world featherweight boxing champin Willie Pep, in a clinch with the state of Connecticut over his application for a referee's license, says he's changed his mind.

"I don't want to be a referee any more, I don't think I'd be welcome," Pep said in an interview.

Pep was denied an application for a referee's license by Boxing Commissioner Barbara Dunn earlier this year on the basis of a state police report. She refused to make it public.

Pep has said consistently that he's innocent of any wrong doing.

Now he says he will probably work with youth to help improve boxing in the state.

Earlier last week there was a threat of court action. Joseph Fazzano of Hartford, Pep's lawyer, said in a letter to Governor Thomas Meskill that Pep is willing to meet with the governor "any time" and wants "an opportunity to present evidence indicative of Mr. Pep's ability and integrity."

If the ex-boxer doesn't get a fair hearing from Meskill "we will prepare a writ of mandamus and have the matter heard in the courts," Fazzano said.

Pep, asked why he changed his mind after having decided to drop the matter, said: "I didn't. My attorney changed my mind. He said, "Willie, you can't live with this thing. Let them put out what they've got against you.' It's the principle of the thing now."

Coral Isle Sets Record

RACING ROUNDUP

Times News Service

Coral Isle snapped Love Your Host's three-race winning streak in convincing fashion at Exhibition Park Saturday when he won the North Vancouver Handicap by 7½ lengths and established a Canadian record in the process.

Carrying 119 pounds, 10 less than Love Your Host, Coral Isle was clocked in 1:42 1-5 for 1 1-16 miles, knocking two fifths off the Canadian mark shared by Victorian Era, Blue Croon and Jumpin Joseph.

Leading all the way under cool ride by Basil Frazier, Coral Isle had quarter mile fractions of 23.2, 47, 1:10 3-5 and completed the mile in 1-35 4-5 before his final time.

He also knocked three-fifths off the local record of 1:42-4-5 set by Westbury Road in 1967 and equalled by Ky. Quill in 1968.

Love Your Host closed gallantly to finish second, a half length in fromt of Mincemeat.

It was only the second victory of the season for Coral Isle, who is owned by Renton, Was., lawyer Hugh Carney. He won three handicaps last year and was named the top older horse in B.C.

Bruce McKenzie's Dinosaur Ben chalked up his third straight victory in the supporting feature when he defeated Beau Cecil by a length. Running against a field of $8,000 claimers, Dinosaur Ben was clocked in 1:45 for the 1 1-16 mile race.

Elsewhere in racing, Irish Sonnet won the $104,970 Sorority at Monmouth Park in Oceanport, N.J., Saturday when Honky Star, the biggest longshot in the field, was disqualified.

Braulio Baeza, aboard Irish Sonnet, was forced to check his horse going by the quarter-pole as Honky Star, ridden by Donald MacBeth, veered toward the rail abruptly in front of her.

Honky Star, who led most of the way, fought off Irish Sonnet's challenge and was a nick in front at the wire.

A stewards' inquiry resulted in a reversal of the order of finish. In Hot Pursuit, the odds-on favorite, came in third.

★ ★ ★

At Hawthorne in Chicago odds-on favorite Shecky Green took the lead from Three Martinis and Moonsplash at the top of the stretch and rolled to a 4½-length victory in the Midwest Handicap. Iterate and Makabo, two longshots, closed well to finish second and third respectively.

★ ★ ★

London Company came between horses in a rousing stretch drive and captured the $59,350 Lexington Handicap at Aqueduct in New York. Ridden by Laffit Pincay Jr., the son of Tom Role scored by a head over 70-1 outsider Rapid Sage. Bold Nix, another longshot, finished third.

★ ★ ★

In California Sunday, jockey Bill Shoemaker teamed up with Canadian-bred Kennedy Road and easily captured the $26,950 San Diego Handicap at Del Mar racetrack.

The five-year-old Kennedy Road, under top weight of 126 pounds, broke third in the field of five, saved ground along the rail early and then responded to a few light taps by Shoemaker's whip to gallop past the leaders along the outside.

New Prospect was third.

Victory by Shoemaker came one day after he had ridden five winners. And it was his second straight victory aboard Kennedy Road.

Veteran jockey Henry Wajda, 39, died Sunday in hospital from injuries suffered when he was thrown from his horse and kicked in the chest at the start of the second race Saturday at Rockingham Park in New Hampshire.

Track officials said Wajda was aboard the horse Zabush when his right foot became jammed against the starting gate. A stirrup broke and Wajda fell under the horse.

The Lord is my shepherd; I shall not want.

He maketh me to lie down in green pastures: He leadeth me beside the still waters.

He restoreth my soul: He leadeth me in the paths of righteousness for His name's sake.

Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil; for thou art with me: thy rod and thy staff they comfort me.

Thou preparest a table before me in the presence of mine enemies: thou anointest my head with oil; my cup runneth over.

Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life: and I will dwell in the house of the Lord for ever.

PSALM 23.

That's My Boy (xx), on 4 at 9. An early (1951) Dean Martin-Jerry Lewis comedy that suffers from hammering repetition of gags. Dean plays a college football star; Jerry's a sickly bookworm who dad wants him to be a sports hero, you can take it from there.

For Whom the Bell Tolls* (xxxx), on 11 at 11. Ernest Hemingway's brilliant novel of the Spanish Civil War and the people pledged to destroy a bridge is exciting and gripping drama and has been transferred to the screen (1943) with taste and finesse. Ingrid Bergman is marvelous and Gary Cooper gives one of his best screen performances. Recommended!

Young at Heart (xxx), on 7 and 12 at 11:30. A well-made 1954 musical-drama about a shiftless piano player and his young wife starring Frank Sinatra, Doris Day and Ethel Barrymore. Fantastic Voyage (xxx), on 6 and 8 at 12:45. Excellent special effects highlight this 1966 sci-fi tale about a miniaturized medical crew inside the body of an injured man starring Stephen Boyd, Donald Pleasance and Raquel Welch.

Five Fingers (xxxx), on 5 at 3:30. A superb 1952 drama based on the true story of one of the master espionage agent of the Second World War — the Albanian valet, Ulysses Diello, known as "Cicero. DISTRIBUTORS, MANUFACTURERS, MOVERS AND EQUIPMENT OPERATORS — locate for convenience and economy at 43 cents sq. ft. land cost. Only 20 minutes from downtown Victoria, this 4.57 acres offers the best possible site for present and the most logical and practical for the future. Those with hind-sight will recall the "far-out" industrial sites of 10 years ago in Nanaimo and Burnaby. Those who established 8-12 miles out at that time are now in the centre where the action is. Look a few years ahead; don't wait until this 43 cents grows to dollars which could happen in a short space of time. HOW TO WRITE
A GOOD
CLASSIFIED ACTION AD

1—IT'S BEST to start your ad with the name of the article or service you have to offer. If you have an apartment, room, etc, for rent, or property for sale; start your ad with the location.

2—BE CLEAR. Readers respond more quickly and favorably when given complete, definite information. Always include the price in your advertisement. Don't allow the reader to speculate.

3—MAKE IT EASY for the reader-prospect to reach you. Always give your telephone number or your name and address. If you do not have regular hours, state a preferred time for the prospect to get in touch with you.

4—PLAY SAFE. You get the greatest reader attention by using consecutive insertions. A six-day order is best and costs less, and you can, of course, stop your ad as soon as you get the results you want. You pay only for the days your ad appeared. Lower yearly rates are available to those who wish to keep their services or products before the public

5—PLACE YOURSELF in the reader's position and ask yourself what you want to know about your offer. The answer you give will make a good Want Ad.

6—GIVE YOUR PROSPECT every inducement you can with good copy. Classified action ad readers have the money and are already interested in buying the merchandise or service you have to offer; the details and information you give are the most important.

7—WANT ADS THAT FAIL TO bring the desired results do so usually, not through a lack of readership, but because they are poorly worded or contain inadequate information.

8—TO PLACE YOUR AD, call 386-2121, your direct line number to fast Want Ad action. A courteous, efficient ad-visor will be glad to help you word and place your order. And remember, Classified Action Ads afford you the most complete coverage. Telephones are open 8:00 a.m. to 8:00 p.m. for you daily, Monday through Saturday call.

JAM SESSION: It was billed as a "Summer Jam" and when 600,000 rock music fans squeezed into the New York State village of Watkins Glen, that's exactly what it was. The largest crowd ever to attend a rock festival left a legacy of beer cans and strewn clothing and created this traffic lineup Sunday. Many walked for hours and couldn't find their parked cars. The crowd, topping the Woodstock festival of four years ago by 200,000, was well-behaved, police said, but there were 80 arrests, mostly for disorderly conduct. Four died in traffic mishaps en route to the festival and a fifth died when a flare or smoke bomb exploded as he parachuted to the ground.

200 Pack City Club For Male Stripper

By HELEN MELNYK

About 200 women packed Victoria's one and only strip joint, the Bacchanalia Club, to see the first male stripper perform.

The majority of the audience was single, in their mid-twenties. Curiosity was the reason they gave for coming.

"Incredible that this should happen in Victoria," said one woman who had waited in line most of the morning for the opening.

"I want to see why men go to strip shows," said another.

A young divorcee thought it was high time that women had a place to cater to their tastes. On her honeymoon her husband had dragged her through all the topless bars and strip joints, she said.

"Men always do it. Why shouldn't we do it to them for a change?"

Club manager Rocky Brush was happily grumbling as he rushed around to seat everyone — "Now I know what a clerk feels like on $1.49 day."

He attributed the high turnout to the influence of women's liberation. "Women are demanding the same kind of entertainment as men," he said.

"My boyfriend is out of town. That's why I could come," said one young woman.

"If I told a guy where I was going, he'd think I was really dirty," added another.

"My husband wouldn't come anyways," said another.

Their comments were confirmed by the reaction of the sole male observer besides the band. Leaning against the doorway his face registered a mixture of disgusted amusement and incredulity.

Stripper Don De Milo — 25 years old, 5'10", 165 pounds and that's his real name — doesn't consider himself to be a sex object.

"I don't feel used," he said. "There's a certain beauty in the presentation of the human body."

After six years as a professional entertainer, De Milo added stripping to his singing and comedy routine about a year ago. His salary is good, but he refused to comment further than to confirm that meat prices are high.

A native of Toronto, he's been working the west coast night club circuit for the summer.

Since competition is low jobs are easy to come by, and he puts in a six-day work-week. His latest engagement is at Isy's Strip Club in Vancouver.

Girlfriends have never raised any objections over his choice of occupation, but he still gets the occasional negative response from a male.

"It's just a form of jealousy coming from a pretty insecure man. I feel I don't have to prove my manhood."

Powerless Tanker Plugs Seaway

MASSENA, N.Y. (UPI) — Ship movements along the St. Lawrence Seaway were halted today after a 366-foot Canadian tanker lost power and came to rest across the main shipping channel.

A spokesman for the international waterway said the Liquilassie was at rest about three miles west of the Eisenhower Lock. The spokesman said the ship lost power and dropped anchor, but currents swung the vessel around and it went aground across the channel, blocking passage of other ships.

Within an hour, three upbound and three downbound ships were staked up, either at anchor or tied up at locks, waiting for the Liquilassie to be freed.

England Needs 414 For Victory

LONDON (AP) — Veteran Gary Sobers scored a powerful half century today as the West Indies was all out for 255 in the second innings of the first cricket test against England.

West Indies counted 415 in its first innings and then tumbled England out for 257.

England now needs 414 runs for victory.

Sobers hit anything that was short and penetrated the field repeatedly with powerful off drives.

The end came quickly for the West Indies after Sobers mishit John Snow and was brilliantly caught on the leg side for 50 with a diving effort from Derek Underwood.

RUSSIANS, CZECHS PLAY IN SEATTLE

SEATTLE (AP) — Russian and Czechoslovakian hockey teams will play the Seattle Totems of the Western Hockey League in a series of exhibition contests next winter.

Ken Helm, Totem vice-president, said arrangements are being made to revise the league schedule to permit the games.

The Totems met Russian skaters last season and lost, 9-4, in a game that drew a turnaway crowd of about 12,000 fans.

Boy's Killer Hunted

TORONTO (CP) — Police combed a section of downtown Toronto during the weekend in a hunt for the killer of a nine-year-old boy.

About 30 police cars and crowds of civilians took part in the search which failed to turn up any concrete clues.

A warrant has been issued for John McBeth Finlayson, 37, of Toronto in connection with the strangulation death of Kirk Deasley.

The boy's mutilated body was discovered in a downtown hotel Friday. He did not return home Thursday after telling his mother he was going to a supermarket to earn pocket money by carrying parcels.

Police believe a man offered Kirk money to carry packages to the hotel sometime Thursday night.

As cruisers and motorcycle units swept through a section of the downtown core during the weekend, a crowd of 300 followed them. Several youths carried lengths of board.

Kirk will be buried Tuesday in his Little League baseball uniform.

Nabir Cassir, 24, the room clerk who found the boy's body, said today his life has been threatened.

Cassir said he received phone calls late Sunday and early today telling him to "keep your mouth shut or you'll be killed."

He said he found the body Friday while searching the room several hours after someone had called the hotel asking that the room be locked.

"The caller said there were valuables in the room and he didn't want the maid in there," Cassir said.

Morley Firsten, a Toronto florist, said Richard Emslie, 14, Randy Rolfe and Bill Sturman, both 16, collected $81 and asked him to make a wreath.

Firsten and an assistant worked more than 11 hours to construct the wreath which contains about 700 roses, carnations, mums and cornflowers and is 3½ feet by 4½ feet.

The boys also collected $65 for the Deasley family, which has received more than $600 from friends, strangers and relatives to help cover the cost of their son's funeral.

Suicide Whale Dies

GRASSY KEY, Fla. (AP) — Susie, the sunburned pilot whale, has died, dashing hopes of marine biologists throughout the world who monitored her unique recovery after a suicide attempt 45 days ago.

Susie had been nursed and tube-fed at Flipper's Sea School in this south Florida town after being rescued from a suicidal beaching attempt June 13.

Since Susie was the first pilot whale known to have survived a beaching, marine biologists and veterinarians throughout the United States and Europe requested daily information about her progress.

Jim Lewis, manager of the school, said it appeared Susie made a second attempt to beach herself because the body was in the shallowest area of the pool.

Susie was one of nine whales that beached off Florida bay June 13 in a suicidal manner peculiar to the huge mammals. Susie was dehydrated and badly sunburned when rescued by the Florida marine patrol.

CHARRIERE
. . . 'Butterfly' is gone

Papillon Dead at 66

MADRID (AP) — Henri Charriere, who parlayed a life sentence for murder and escaped from France's dreaded Devil's Island into the best-selling book Papillon, died Sunday in a Madrid clinic. He was 66.

The Spanish news agency Cifra, quoting business associates of the writer, said Charriere had entered the clinic July 19 with throat cancer, and that he underwent two operations last week.

Doctors refused to discuss the cause of his death. They said the body would be returned to France for burial.

Charriere was known as Papillon, or Butterfly, because of a tattoo on his chest. He moved from the penal colony off the coast of French Guiana to his own night club in Venezuela and finally to a millionaire's life in France and Spain.

He moved into the underworld and was sentenced in 1931 to life in prison for the alleged murder of a pimp. Papillon always claimed he had been framed.

He was shipped to Devil's Island, with an order forbidding him to return to Paris if paroled.

In his book, which Papillon said was "75-per-cent true," he told of 13 years in the penal colony, including 42 months alone in a cage without hearing another human voice, and 10 escape attempts. Finally he got to Venezuela.

In his new life, the book says, he pumped gas, prospected for gold, was a jungle dentist and finally a prosperous night-club owner.

His story first went out to the world in 1958 as a series of interviews with a French radio journalist, but passed largely unnoticed. When Papillon read Astragale, a best-seller by the late Albertine Sarrazin, also a former French convict, he began to put his story down in school notebooks.

"All you need to do is write it the way you would talk it," he said in an interview in 1969 after his book became an immediate French sensation. It quickly went over the million mark in sales in France and was a best seller in translation in English and several other languages.

He went to Paris anyway and the police turned a blind eye. The ban was officially lifted Oct. 17, 1970. The French ministry of justice said his crime and escape from prison came under the statute of limitations.

Iceland Volcano Spews Mercury Pollution

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The volcano that drove 5,000 people from their homes on Iceland's Heimaey Island early this year also contributed to the world's mercury pollution problems.

This was discovered by scientists from the U.S. naval research laboratory who flew through the smoky plume of the Helgafjell volcano in May, as the eruption was dying down.

Dr. Peter Wilkniss, of the lab's ocean sciences division, said he and David Bressan measured particles of the toxic material in a cloud of smoke 700 feet above the volcanic cone.

Wilkniss said it was the first time mercury had been discovered in the air over a volcano. Other research has detected relatively high amounts of mercury in lavas around volcanoes in Hawaii as well as Iceland.

This indicates, Wilkniss said, that volcanic eruptions are major — if not the major — contributor to the world's mercury pollution.

"They may far outdo anything that man has done so far," he said in an interview.

A spokesman for the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) said that concentration of mercury would be well below the amount of mercury in the air considered a public health hazard. But Wilkniss said the readings were 100 times higher than would be found in the average atmosphere over a large metropolitan area.

He noted the measurements were made at the last gasps of the volcano "and we have no idea at all what happens when it first erupts. Probably the levels are much higher."

"The levels that have been observed on the ground in the lava would certainly shake up the EPA," he said. "They wouldn't let an industrial outfit put out that much mercury."

Exposure of high amounts of mercury can lead to injury to the central nervous system and kidney damage. Tests in animals, the EPA said, also show that heavy accumulation of mercury in the body can result in brain damage.

The mercury particles detected over Heimaey Island came from gases emitted from the molten rock that flows up from great depths beneath the surface of earth.

Wilkniss said the mercury seems to condense on atmospheric particles such as dust and water droplets and then it is carried down to the sea, land or ice with rain, snow or fog.

"There is evidence that if you have a strong volcanic eruption, where the cloud reaches the stratosphere, then it can spread all over the globe," he said. "If you have a moderate eruption, it may be carried up to the northern regions like Greenland."

Wilkniss said he believes volcanoes, and not man, are responsible for the mercury that has been detected in glaciers in Greenland.

Baby Selling Fraud Exposed

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The FBI says two persons have been arrested and a third is being sought on federal charges in connection with an alleged fraudulent interstate baby-selling scheme.

Louis Frank Raucci, 43, and Joseph Rosa, 43, were released on $5,000 bond after being charged with conspiring to conceal an alleged baby-selling operation by Elaine Chesterpal Raucci, 35, of Pittsburgh, federal auhorities said Sunday.

Mrs. Raucci was being sought on an indictment charging her with 12 counts of fraud involving the collection of more than $50,000, an assistant U.S. attorney said.

The FBI alleged Mrs. Raucci contacted childless families in other states and offered to sell them children for amounts ranging from $3,000 to $8,000.

BOWRON LAKE PARK TO BE ENLARGED

Owner was Arnold McKitrick.

Recreation Minister Jack Radford said the additional land will allow the parks branch to proceed with the preparation of a master plan for the park.

It will also permit a more orderly development of the park entrance and more access to lake frontage.

The park, 40 miles east of Quesnel, has been set aside for canoists and hikers.

The minister also said a 385-acre class "A" park has been established at the north end of Chilliwack Lake. Camping and picnicking facilities will be developed.

Meir Admits Israel In Global Spy War

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Prime Minister Golda Meir, reacting to reports that Israeli agents were involved in a suspected political murder in Norway, admitted Sunday that Israel is engaged in a secret international war against Arab guerrillas.

"The State of Israel is practically fighting a battle all over the world," she told a group of American religious Zionists.

"You cannot know and the people of Israel cannot know," she said, "the details of how many Jews or Israelis are alive today because of our ability to prevent tragedies and horrors planned by terrorist gangs all over the world."

Hours before, she heard the foreign ministry's acting director-general report to the cabinet on the arrest by Norwegian police of two Israelis last week at the Oslo home of an Israeli diplomat.

Their arrests were reportedly linked, along with the arrests of four suspects of other nationalities, in the murder of a Moroccan waiter, Ahmed Bouchiki.

Norwegian and Danish newspapers said Bouchiki was a member of an Arab ring planning attacks on Israeli targets in Europe and that he was killed by an Israeli-organized assassination squad.

Neither Mrs. Meir nor any other Israeli official has commented directly on the murder case.

SKYLAB PERIL: HEART SHRINK

CAPE CANAVERAL (Reuter) — One of the top U.S. space doctors has warned that the Skylab astronauts face a new peril from prolonged weightlessness — shrinking hearts.

Dr. Charles Berry, director of life sciences for the U.S. space agency, disclosed Sunday night that previous U.S. astronauts returned to earth with their hearts an average three per cent smaller than before they went into space.

His disclosure was the first time the space agency has revealed the extent of the problem.

CP Air Offer Made

Times News Services

VANCOUVER — CP Air denied today it was unwilling to offer its 1,300 striking machinists the same contract package won by Air Canada employees last month.

CP Air president John Gilmer said that "statements have emanated from the headquarters of the machinists' union which indicate that CP Air isn't willing to effect a settlement of the union dispute on the same basis as that which was negotiated in the recent dispute with Air Canada.

"This is untrue. CP Air has been and is prepared to offer its employees the identical settlement made by Air Canada, including all fringe benefits."

The brief statement, billed by the airline as a "clarification" of its position, disputes reports during the five-day-old strike that the company was not ready to match the Air Canada agreement with its members of the International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers (IAM).

The union has said it would agree to the Air Canada package, including all fringe benefits, and has alleged that the company was unwilling to match Air Canada's two-year contract. CP Air has alleged the union demands were in excess of the Air Canada package.

The machinists have asked a total package increase of 22 per cent over 25 months with improvements in holidays and pension plan as well as a reduced work week.

'DISASTER' TAG FOR HAY

NANAIMO (CP) — Agriculture Minister Dave Stupich is "seriously considering describing pretty well the whole of the province a disaster area for forage production."

He said that due to the light snowfall in the Interior last year and little rain during the growing season, hay production has been at an all-time low.

If B.C. is declared a disaster area for forage the government would make funds available to bring forage into the area.

Tape Plan Rejected By Nixon

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rejecting Congressional compromise efforts, the White House said today President's Nixon's position remains unchanged against allowing investigators to hear tape recordings of his White House conversations about Watergate.

"The president has made his position clear on this matter," Gerald Warren, deputy press secretary, told reporters. "I have nothing further to say."

Sens. Sam Ervin (Dem-N.C.) and Howard Baker (Rep-Tenn.) chairman and vice chairman respectively of the Senate Watergate Committee suggested that in a compromise move, Nixon permit them and special prosecutor Archibald Cox to have a private hearing of the tapes.

Meanwhile, John Ehrlichman ground through a fifth day of Watergate testimony today, saying Nixon asked eight times for a complete report on the wiretapping affair between last September and March 22.

He said the president never received satisfaction.

The Senate Watergate committee decided to hear seven more witnesses at its televised hearings before taking a summer recess. The committee tried to speed up its questioning, but Baker said it now is clear the hearings will run beyond Aug. 3 before any summer recess.

ICCS Dead Without Canadians

Times News Services

SAIGON — Ferenc Esztergalyos, the Hungarian chairman of the international peace supervision team, said today all commission ceasefire violation investigations and supervision of prisoner releases will stop when Canada leaves South Vietnam Tuesday.

The International Commission of Control and Supervision held its last regular meeting with Canadian participation today. However, it will hold a special meeting Tuesday with acting Canadian delegation leader Vernon Turner to wind up business.

Meanwhile, Canadians, many in bathing suits rather than the uniform they insisted on wearing even when other members of the International Commission of Control and Supervision (ICCS) didn't bother, loaded baggage today.

At 9 a.m. and 9:15 a.m. Tuesday, with a minimum of ceremony, they will take off in two Armed Forces Boeing 707s, leaving the ICCS they couldn't make work.

In one of the last acts, each Canadian will shake hands with Brig.-Gen. Phan Hoe Hiep, deputy chief of the South Vietnamese delegation to the two-part Joint Military Commission. This is being done at the South Vietnamese request.

If there were any plans for the Viet Cong's Provisional Revolutionary Government to say goodbye at the airport, it was not known by Canadians.

At Tan Son Nhut airbase where they are congregated the Canadians were mostly silent today. They stood amongst piles of baggage that was being picked up by trucks.

There was little banter.

The operations centre from where Canadians ran the over-all Canadian operation in Vietnam and from where "Operation Recovery" — the recovery of Capts. Ian Patten and Fletcher Thomson from the Viet Cong — was run was quiet.

"Bon Voyage Canada" said a sign over a free bar set up by the contractor who ran the ICCS mess.

LEAVE CANADA PARAMEDIC TOLD

QUESNEL (CP) — The federal immigration department has told an American paramedic who recently took over as the only ambulance driver here that he has until Aug. 13 to leave Canada.

Michael Stanley, who came here from San Francisco, said he was told that, as a United States citizen, he was breaking the law by accepting payment for his work without having applied for proper authorization. He is in Canada on a visitor's permit.

He receives $30 a day and lodging for himself, his wife and his daughter.

Pound, Dollar Gain

LONDON (UPI) — The U.S. dollar and the British pound sterling, travelling companions in the ups and downs of world money markets, moved upward in the currency exchanges today. Gold prices fell nearly everywhere.

Speculators and currency traders swapped money with one eye on Washington, where finance ministers of the International Monetary Fund's Group of 20 met to consider revisions in the whole international monetary system.

Pending any action the traders priced both the dollar and the pound higher. In London, where the pound is matched directly against the dollar, prices zig-zagged all day in wide swings.

The U.S. dollar gained on France's two-tiered money market. The financial dollar used by tourists and for private transactions rose to 4.14 francs against Friday's 4.105. The commercial dollar used for official deals increased from Friday's 4.07 francs to 4.0975.

In Zurich, the dollar bought 2.8265 Swiss francs at the close of business today, up from Friday's rate of 2.805. The dollar was up 1.29 per cent in Vienna to 17.25 schillings, and up slightly to 583.5 Italian lire in Milan.

But in a market which normally moves in fractions of a penny, the dollar's value against the British pound shot up and down by a cent or more during the day.

As the week began it took $2.5125 to buy a pound. By noon it was $2.515 but then suddenly it dropped one cent to $2.505. The price began climbing up again in the afternoon.

NEWS BRIEFS

FRASER RIVER SPILL PROBED

MLA Carl Lidden (NDP—Delta) said he saw a constant trail of oil, that ranged in width from a few feet to 50 or 60 feet, for five miles on the river.

Beef Shortage Seen

NEW YORK (AP) — Mayor John Lindsay says the city's regular meat suppliers have refused to sign contracts for providing beef during a two-week period next month to hospitals, jails and other municipal institutions.

Hijackers' Fate

BEIRUT (UPI) — Libya denounced air hijacking as "despicable" Sunday and said four air pirates who blew up a Japanese jumbo jet would stand trail — the first time hijackers have faced public punishment in the Arab world. Islamic law calls for the amputation of the arms of thieves, among other things, and this, Arab political sources said, could be the fate of the hijackers if they are convicted of stealing the aircraft.

Major Rezoning For Downtown

Victoria's zoning committee will get down to preliminary work Tuesday on one of its biggest-ever assignments — the preparation of a rezoning plan for the entire downtown area and its immediate hinterland.

Basic elements of the plan were outlined six weeks ago by the city planning department in a summary of the Central Area Study, and Tuesday's meeting will be the first in a series dealing in detail with individual aspects of the proposed new zoning policy.

The task is a complex one as it involves scrapping what is now virtually a blanket zone — the C2 commercial district stretching roughly from Central Park south to the Empress Hotel — and replacing it with a framework of 10 new or modified zoning categories.

These zones, say planning officials, will recognize the areas' individual characteristics, their present and future uses and their potential for redevelopment.

The general effect of the proposed new policy is to place curbs on permitted height and density over most of central Victoria which are more restrictive than the present limitations.

In its report to the zoning committee, the planning department proposes a similar approach to the one now being implemented witth regard to the rezoning of James Bay — that is, to look at the draft zoning categories and their accompanying regulations in scheduled stages.

Under the schedule, the first area to be studied Tuesday will be the downtown "ribbon" of about 12 blocks between Douglas and Blanshard, from Chatham south to Humboldt.

The bulk of this area is seen as a "primary zone for multipurpose development to intensive standards," with a maximum height of 140 feet and floor area three times the site coverage.

The Central Area Study explaining the proposed rezoning will not be available to the public before late August, the planning department states.

About a month after that, the department hopes to get down to preparing an official community plan for the central part of the city, and start the protracted task of submitting the proposals to public hearings.

N-Test Termed Failure

PARIS (UPI) — Newspapers today raised the possibility that France's second nuclear test in the South Pacific on the weekend may have been a technical failure.

The device was the second in a planned series. As a result French radio reports said the next explosion may be delayed until September.

OLD CHURCH BOMBED

BELFAST (UPI) — British troops fired rubber bullets and tear gas canisters to break up rock-throwing Roman Catholics today after Protestant bombers demolished a 200-year-old church.

An army spokesman said the soldiers dispersed about 30 young men in Londonderry's Catholic Creggan area when they set fire to a car and threw stones at troops.

Authorities said St. Bridget's Roman Catholic church in Killyman was battered beyond repair early today by a bomb blast and would have to be demolished.

Explosives experts said the roof of the County Tyrone church was blown off and the interior demolished by a bomb placed near the altar.

British troops searched pedestrians, cars and buildings throughout Belfast today in an attempt to head off violence during the first meeting of the Northern Ireland Assembly in a year.

Authorities said the crackdown before Tuesday's opening session of the new assembly was aimed at keeping arms and ammunition out of the capital.

$10M Fire Rages

EUREKA, Calif. (AP) — A fire burned out of control in the Klamath and Six River national forests of Northern California today after charring 4,500 acres of timberland and causing more than $10 million damage.

Red-Laos Accord Denied

Times News Services

VIENTIANE — There were conflicting reports today over whether Premier Souvanna Phouma and the Communist Pathet Lao have reached a military and political agreement in Laos.

The Associated Press said the Pathet Lao announced the agreement Sunday night. Reuters news agency quoted Laotian government and Pathet Lao spokesmen as denying today that any agreement had been reached.

The AP report said the agreement leaves the Communists in control of 80 per cent of the territory in Laos but that the rightists will control two-thirds of the population.

AP said the signing of the agreement is expected later this week.

Reuter quoted Interior Minister Pheng Phongsavang, government chief negotiator at peace talks here with the Pathet Lao, as saying that substantial progress had been made but that no agreement will be signed before the end of August.

Reuter also quoted Soth Phet Rasi, the Pathet Lao chief representative in Vientiane, as saying that important breakthroughs have been made but an agreement has not been reached.

AP said the agreement provides for a coalition government and the withdrawal of all foreign forces within 60 days.

The Associated Press report said Prince Souvanna Phouma, the 72-year-old neutralist who has been premier for 11 years, will head the new government. His half-brother, Prince Souphanouvong, leader of the Pathet Lao, is expected to be named senior deputy premier.

Reuter said the negotiations were stalled by a Pathet Lao demand that one of their leaders be appointed deputy premier.

The Associated Press said the agreement provides for the opposing Communist and rightist factions to control the territory they held at the time of the ceasefire Feb. 21. This recognizes the Communists' hold on 80 per cent of the country's area. The rightists, however, control the main cities along the Mekong River where much of the population lives.

In other developments: — U.S. senator Stuart Symington acting chairman of the senate armed services committee, says he will seek new laws to prevent the top civilian boss of each military service from being deliberately kept in the dark about such controversial actions as the secret air war in Cambodia.

— Supreme court justice Thurgood Marshall will consider whether a lower court was correct when it ordered an immediate halt to the U.S. bombing of Cambodia. He scheduled a hearing today in Washington of the suit brought by a congressswoman and four air force officers that caused a U.S. district judge in New York last week to order a bombing halt.

IT'S THE REAL THING

EDMONTON — Waldemar Belter jokingly told his wife, Sarah, to win the $50,000 gold brick at the Klondike Days exposition to help pay for the new home they're building.

But she let him down.

WASHINGTON — Clifford Irving, jailed for duping a publisher with a fake biography of billionaire recluse Howard Hughes, carried a plea for freedom to the U.S. Parole Board today.

At today's hearing, a closed session, the board will consider for the first time whether to parole Irving, who has repaid McGraw-Hill about $450,000 of the amount paid him. Courts have not yet decided whether he must repay the balance.

OTTAWA — J. M. MacDonnell, 88, a former minister without portfolio in the Diefenbaker government, died here Friday night after a lengthy illness.

MacDonnell, president of the Progressive Conservative Association of Canada from 1946-50, joined the cabinet as minister without portfolio in 1957. He resigned in 1959.

LOS ANGELES — Milk may still do something for Mark Spitz' body, but Spitz won't be doing any more commercials for milk.

A California Milk Advisory Board spokesman said the board decided to phase out Spitz' TV commercials on milk and work other entertainment personalities into the $4 million yearly promotion.

NEW YOR K— Jeb Stuart Magruder, former deputy director of the committee to re-elect the president, has left for London with his family. The former White House aide flew out Sunday on a charter flight as a member of a group.

Triples Winners

Leath Moore, Tom White and Bill Cruikshank of Burnside captured the Ashford Trophy by defeating CPR's Daggy Russell, Bill Kirkpatrick and Dave Spink 17-12 in the finals of the lawn bowling triples competition.

Cohesion Is Limner's Strength

By JOHN HESPELER

An exhibition of the art of a group who call themselves The Limners is on view at Heritage Court and for those interested in the direction of Vancouver Island art (and letters), it is undoubtedly one of the more significant showings to be mounted this year.

As this exhibition clearly demonstrates, the strength in a group of artists would be almost a measurable quantity if there was a unit to describe it.

Which brings a review such as this dangerously close to definitions — and they would doubtless be best left to history.

Talking or writing about art is to give the entire subject a totally new, and usually foreign, dimension. Instead of talking about dollars and cents, pounds and ounces, or yards, acres, miles or city blocks, one is forced to find words like "impressionist," "pop," "dada," "cube" to describe the emotional, visual, technical or philosophical impact and embodiment of the impressionists, pop-artists, dadists or cubists.

The art lexicon is rife with such coined words, and it may take years of close study to unravel the obscurities of the entire specialized language.

This is no more than it should be, just as the fields of science or mathematics have developed their own language cacoons. It enables devotees or practitioners to isolate a single idea quickly and efficiently, to zero-in on a specific idea and come immediately to a point. It is a short-cut to ideas, or the attempt to express them.

Unfortunately, it also has the effect of totally obscuring the subject area for a layman with less than the energetic zeal of a bloodhound. And from this point one can develop all manner of discussion on the pros and cons of categorization. Artists, particularly, are good at it — although, heaven forbid, they should ever own to it.

Thus it is very possible that within a few years, Victoria's Limners will become recognized as a group of artists espousing ideas and ideals perhaps as yet not totally defined.

Basically, at present, the group consists of a small nucleus of Victoria's veteran artists who, probably by reason of geography, have been thrown together to inter-act.

The results of this recipe are slow to mature, and the importance, or taste, of the group on either a local or national scale now or at some time in the future would be hard to assess.

By definition, a limner is one who illuminates manuscripts. In fact, the exhibition at Heritage Court has nothing whatever to do with manuscripts or illumination, and it is very possible that one day this small group of accomplished Victorians will lend an entirely new meaning to the word.

As a theme, it so happens that most of the work centres on the human form. But if it has any relevance at all, this would only be a starting point. Styles range from the lifelike portraiture of Myfanwy Pavelic to the whimsy of Maxwell Bates, the explosive humor of Herbert Siebner to the spirit quality of Richard Ciccimarra's faceless world in form.

It is within the realm of possibility that some one person — probably within the group — will take hold of it, and give it a more definable shape.

If this were to happen, it would most assurelly be a tragedy.

The strength of the group — at least as one must take it from this particular showing — lies in the fact that each artist has been living and working in the Vancouver Island area for many years, and thus has acquired an intimate knowledge of his or her contemporaries. There is a delightful cohesion in this group, and the way in which the show is hung.

The danger probably lies in any attempt to take hold of the individuality of each member of the group (and, Lord knows, each is certainly an individualist) and turn the energy of that particular individual inward to further the purposes of the group as a group.

Should this happen, no doubt politicking would soon ensure that the group would slide into obscurity — as has happened in numerous other cases where great minds have tried to combine within the tight confines of a single Think Tank.

This is not presently the case with the Limners. Their individuality has, of course, remained intact at the same time as each has clearly benefitted from exposure to the other and the other's like environment.

Others in the group are Robert de Castro, Nita Forrest, Elza Mayhew, Robin Skelton and Karl Spreitz. Some of the best of their work will be on show until August 6.

Being a Fond Farewell To Mr. Attilio Randy

Item: I was to go out to his greenhouse tomorrow to pick up some tomatoes and to return the book he'd loaned me, but now Mr. Randy is dead at 87 from a heart attack — wouldn't you know it would happen when he was at work among his plants? — and I can't recall when I've felt such a sense of loss.

Attilio John Baptist Randy, Padua-born, perhaps the finest horticulturist in our parts, a crusader all his life for the small grower (a losing crusader, you'd have to say), he was all that. But I will remember him, I'm sure, as an argumentative, ingratiating, impatient immensely involved man who was the complete idealist.

When I last saw him a week ago he was talking enthusiastically about young people who'd managed to go back to the land. It was his lifelong belief that the small-holder could be a third force in Canada, a sort of buffer between the masses of labor and management classes and he was always ready to give his experise to young people who had taken over a plot of land.

He was equally intense — vehement, I guess, is the word — about the kind of chemical-grown junk that passes as vegetables in the modern supermarket, fought long and hard and fruitlessly for Victoria's public market where he'd done business since 1914.

The book he'd loaned me was a history of The Renaissance and Mr. Randy was a Renaissance man in the finest tradition.

Item: A small wager today on "Uncle," the big dark horse owned by my friend Roy Jewell and no one more surprised or pleased than I when he romped home to pay $24.40 for a two-dollar wager, splendid beast that he is.

"Uncle" was in one of those tragic stable fires at Exhibition Park, suffered severe damage to one eye, and hadn't been in the winner's circle in his five starts since the accident. So it was a grand victory and, I hear, one that was cheered lustily at the track even by people who had not bet on him, a very rare thing to happen.

None of my friends will believe it — not even those to whom, unselfishly, I gave the news — but the fact is that I had a long, serious talk with "Uncle" in his stall out near Beaver Lake, when he was recuperating, and "Uncle" told me not to lose my faith. "Don't lose your faith, Jack," he told me, "I'm coming back." The rest, of course, is history.

Item: I thought I'd given up trying to influence those selfish slobs in big empty cars who pass every hitch-hiker by, but maybe the answer is to be found in some variation of the Polish plan that's been brought to my attention by a well-travelled reader.

It originated, it seems, back in 1958, with a Warsaw youth magazine called Dookola Swita and it works, roughly, this way:

Any young person over the age of 17 may buy a booklet for about two dollars, called Autostop, at his school, university or at the state travel agency. It provides the young hitch-hiker with authorized identification and an insurance policy if he's in an accident, which protects the driver. The hitch-hiker simply displays his Autostop card when he wants a lift.

The friendly motorist gets a bonus, too. The hitch-hiker notes the name and address of his benefactor on a coupon that's mailed to Autostop's office. There are periodic draws with prizes for the car-owners and, once a year, special prizes, including a new Fiat, for those motorists who have given the most lifts in the previous 12 months.

State-controlled hitch-hiking, my informant tells me, has been a complete success in Poland and I can't see why it wouldn't work here as well.

Item: A second-hand report today, though from what we euphemistically call "a reliable source," regarding the brave lads who have been hoping for a "dialogue" with a killer whale, a project for which they received a nice little $14,000 from the federal government.

The report says that they have sailed and sailed and looked and looked, but so far they haven't sighted a killer whale, much less talked to one.

Pity.

Decoy Hawk Just Ducky

By BRUCE OBEE
Times Staff

Technological developments in agriculture are slowly forcing the traditional scarecrow out of the field.

But scarecrows are a lazy lot anyway and some of the newer devices used by farmers in controlling starlings and other nuisance birds have proven effective.

An artificial cooperhawk, suspended from a helium-filled balloon "works beautifully," says Mrs. Sedgman, "We wouldn't give this thing up for anything. He's a real pet of ours."

The plastic hawk, tied to the top of a tree, flies with "identical action" to that of a real bird, she said.

An artificial gun, triggered by carbide gas, fired loud shots every two or three minutes. The starlings got used to it and the neighbors didn't.

So the Sedgmans set up speakers in the orchard and played tape recordings of a trapped starling.

"All it did was bring the other starlings down to see what happened to its mate," said Mrs. Sedgman.

But the cooperhawk did the trick and similar devices are beginning to find their way into the cornfields and fruit farms of the Oakanagan and Fraser Valleys, she said.

Harry Andison, director of the federal department of agricultural research station in Central Saanich, said the most successful nuisance fighter is a high-frequency sound system used on large farms over North America.

Primarily aimed at starlings and robins the system transmits supersonic sound waves, inaudible to the human ear yet terrifying to small birds, said Andison.

But the "Av-alarm" sound system, manufactured in the United States, sells for $400 which is not economically feasible for smaller orchardists like the Sedgmans, he said.

"I don't think the thing has been developed and investigated to its fullest extent at all," says Beebe.

The National Research Council has invented numerous frightening devices, he said, but their effectiveness is usually temporary — the birds soon become used to them.

"If the models were backed periodically by the real thing, they would be totally effective," said Beebe.

Any large, flat open area can be a favorite meeting grtound for various species, said Beebe — like airports.

"There's hardly an airport that doesn't have some problem along those lines," he said.

Victoria airport's runways are clustered with gulls. Pheasants and short-eared owls congregate on Vancouver airport's runways. Toronto has a snowy owl problem.

The solution?

Falcons, says Beebe.

Military airport personnel all over the world have been conducting experiments with falcons as pest controllers, said Beebe, and have been successful.

The only civilian airport which conducted similar experiments was Victoria International, to Beebe's knowledge, but Canadian law prohibits the use of falcons on airport runways.

Beebe believes the possibility of a falcon causing a plane crash is the reason they have been outlawed at civilian airports.

"If one gets ingested by one of those jet motors, particularly on take-off, you're going to have a crash," he said.

But if a gull causes a crash it can be considered an act of God, he said, and the public outcry wouldn't be nearly as loud as it would if a falcon, released on a runway by a human, caused a crash.

There are many more commercial uses for hawks and falcons, says Beebe, but progress has been slow.

Air Search Needless

Two youths from the United States were asked to leave Canada Sunday after they caused a full-scale air-sea search of Oak Bay waters, costing taxpayers an estimated $7,000.

The search for Johnny Bays, 20, and his 16-year-old brother Jimmy, both of Anaheim, California, began shortly after 4 p.m. Saturday when a boat they had rented from Oak Bay Marina was found banging against the breakwater near the marina.

The brothers rented the 14-foot aluminum boat with a six horse power engine at 1:15 p.m. Saturday. About 4:15 p.m. a Beach Drive resident called the marina and said an unoccupied boat had come in from the Chain Islands, about a mile from the marina, and landed against the breakwater.

It was one-third full of water with the engine running.

The marina's 61-foot Mv Lakewood and 20-foot Bertram began a search of the area and were later joined by a helicopter from CFB Comox, a U.S. Coast Guard helicopter from Port Angeles, and the Canadian Coast Guard cutter Rider.

He told police his brother had been left with the boat and was unaware the motor was running.

After the incident the pair went to White Rock. Johnny returned to pick up their luggage and meet his brother at Tsawwassen, said police.

Later Sunday an immigration officer asked the youth to leave and take his brother with him.

He was given a "check-out letter" to be presented at the border to verify their departure, a department of immigration spokesman said.

The brothers were asked to leave because the time they had planned to spend in Canada had elapsed, not as a result of the trouble they caused.

A department of national defence spokesman said today there are no plans to try and recover the costs of the search.

Haunted? Call Tom

Haunted houses could qualify for preservation as historic sites in Saanich.

But if there are any wraiths in municipal basements they'd better start rattling their chains because planner Tom Loney hasn't heard of a single one.

Loney's department has asked for public help in identifying land or buildings of historic significance within the municipality for compiling an inventory of sites that might be preserved.

They could be judged on the basis of age, architecture, association with prominent persons, purpose for which they were used or role they played in the development of Saanich or the province.

Noting that haunted buildings have been recognized elsewhere as being worthy of official care, Loney commented.

"I don't know of any honest to God ghost in Saanich. If there is anybody who has a ghost in the basement, we'd be very interested to hear about it (though) I didn't know just what we'd be able to do about it."

Loney said once a list of suggestions has been submitted, the planning department and council could be in a position to apply criteria. In setting up standards it is hoped assistance will be offered by groups or associations with an historical interest.

Financial aid may be forthcoming from senior governments — such as via the Archaeological and Historic Sites Protection Act of B.C.

Loney said architectural merit may be a valid reason for preserving a place, but not necessarily. The purpose for which the land was once used may be of greater merit in some cases.

"The fact that a building is old is not necessarily a reason for preserving it," Loney said.

Unlike Oak Bay, Saanich has no commonly-known extra-sensory phenomena, such as are recognized in Scottish castles and British bungalows and are well-known to psychic researchers and tourists.

The place is full of haunts, but ghosts? That remains to be seen. Or unseen.

1,600 Indians Set for Games

About 1,600 Indians will take part in the second annual B.C. Native Indian Olympiad to be held in Victoria Aug. 4 to 12.

A swimming meet will be held Saturday evening at 6 at the Victoria YM-YWCA followed by a contest to choose an Olympiad Princess at Newcombe auditorium at 7:30.

Events scheduled for the week beginning Sunday: soccer tournament, 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. at the University of Victoria; Monday: track and field, 2 p.m. at UVic; Tuesday: women's and girls' softball tournament, 9 a.m. at Topaz Park; Wednesday: continuation of softball tournament, 9 a.m. at Topaz Park; Thursday: boys' softball tournament, 9 a.m. at Topaz Park; Friday: senior men's softball, 3 p.m., Topaz Park, juvenile boys' lacrosse, 11 a.m., Topaz Park; Saturday: lacrosse tournament, at noon at Memorial Arena, softball tournament, 9 a.m., Topaz Park; Sunday: men's softball final, 9 a.m., Topaz Park, salmon barbecue and water sports at noon at Maple Bank Park, Esquimalt.

Co-ordinator John Rice said most contestants and their families will camp out for the duration of the games. He said some beds are available in the UVic residences but more accommodation is needed.

"We would appreciate the use of church halls and school gymnasiums or billets in private homes," Rice said.

Anyone interested in offering accommodation may contact Rice at 384-9795 after 5 p.m.

Woman Suffers Burns

A 61-year-old Victoria woman is in fair condition in Victoria General Hospital with burns suffered Saturday in a fire and explosion which knocked out two bedroom windows at her home at 651 Battery.

Mrs. W. H. Ryan was found by firemen lying on a living room couch when they arrived about 1:30 p.m.

A spokesman said today the fire was caused when a burning cigarette fell onto a mattress in the upstairs bedroom, ignited gas fumes in the room and caused an explosion.

A gas jet had been turned on in the room earlier, the fire official said. Total damage has been estimated at $300.

Restaurant Union Talks Strike Date

Preparations for a strike of 1,100 employees of White Spot Ltd. in Victoria and the lower mainland will be made at a meeting of union members and strike committee tonight.

Members of Canadian Food and Associated Services Union are entitled to strike without further notice, having passed the mandatory 72-hour notice to White Spot restaurants Sunday afternoon.

Union president Frank McRae said tonight's meeting would determine when the strike would become effective, whether it will be rotating or general and other details.

There has been no recent offer by the company to resume negotiating, McRae said, but the union is still "wide open to meaningful negotiations."

He said White Spot, which has 18 locations on the mainland and two in Greater Victoria, had "taken a hard line on negotiations. They've never really sat down with us."

The union sought a wage improvement, new overtime policy and clarification of job responsibilities, and was offered a 65-cents-an-hour hike over two years.

Membership turned down the offer and cast a "substantial strike vote," which McRae said would not be disclosed in percentage terms. The union is confident of its position, he said.

OUTDOOR SCENE, shown above, was painted behind bars by an inmate of a penitentiary. The painting is part of a collection of art works by prisoners called Prison Arts '73 on display at the Hillside Mall July 30 to Aug. 1. The project has a $3,564 Opportunities for Youth grant to promote a tour of prisons and public centres across Canada. (Photo by Irving Strickland).

SKYLAB PERIL: HEART SHRINK

CAPE CANAVERAL (Reuter) — One of the top U.S. space doctors has warned that the Skylab astronauts face a new peril from prolonged weightlessness — shrinking hearts.

Dr. Charles Berry, director of life sciences for the U.S. space agency, disclosed Sunday night that previous U.S. astronauts returned to earth with their hearts an average three per cent smaller than before they went into space.

His disclosure was the first time the space agency has revealed the extent of the problem.

CP Air Offer Dispute

Times News Services

VANCOUVER — CP Air denied today it was unwilling to offer its 1,300 striking machinists the same contract package won by Air Canada employees last month.

CP Air president John Gilmer said that "statements have emanated from the headquarters of the machinists' union which indicate that CP Air isn't willing to effect a settlement of the union dispute on the same basis as that which was negotiated in the recent dispute with Air Canada.

"This is untrue. CP Air has been and is prepared to offer its employees the identical settlement made by Air Canada, including all fringe benefits."

The brief statement, billed by the airline as a "clarification" of its position, disputes reports during the five-day-old strike that the company was not ready to match the Air Canada agreement with its members of the International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers (IAM).

The union has said it would agree to the Air Canada package, including all fringe benefits, and has alleged that the company was unwilling to match Air Canada's two-year contract. CP Air has alleged the union demands were in excess of the Air Canada package.

The machinists have asked a total package increase of 22 per cent over 25 months with improvements in holidays and pension plan as well as a reduced work week.

'DISASTER' TAG FOR HAY

NANAIMO (CP) — Agriculture Minister Dave Stupich is "seriously considering describing pretty well the whole of the province a disaster area for forage production."

He said that due to the light snowfall in the Interior last year and little rain during the growing season, hay production has been at an all-time low.

If B.C. is declared a disaster area for forage the government would make funds available to bring forage into the area.

Tape Plan Rejected By Nixon

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rejecting Congressional compromise efforts, the White House said today President Nixon's position remains unchanged against allowing investigators to hear tape recordings of his White House conversations about Watergate.

"The president has made his position clear on this matter," Gerald Warren, deputy press secretary, told reporters. "I have nothing further to say."

Sens. Sam Ervin (Dem-N.C.) and Howard Baker (Rep-Tenn.) chairman and vice chairman respectively of the Senate Watergate Committee suggested that in a compromise move, Nixon permit them and special prosecutor Archibald Cox to have a private hearing of the tapes.

Meanwhile, John Ehrlichman ground through a fifth day of Watergate testimony today, saying Nixon asked eight times for a complete report on the wiretapping affair between last September and March 22.

He said the president never received satisfaction.

The Senate Watergate committee decided to hear seven more witnesses at its televised hearings before taking a summer recess. The committee tried to speed up its questioning, but Baker said it now is clear the hearings will run beyond Aug. 3 before any summer recess.

ICCS Dead Without Canadians

Times News Services

SAIGON — Ferenc Esztergalyos, the Hungarian chairman of the international peace supervision team, said today all commission cease-fire violation investigations and supervision of prisoner releases will stop when Canada leaves South Vietnam Tuesday.

The International Commission of Control and Supervision held its last regular meeting with Canadian participation today. However, it will hold a special meeting Tuesday with acting Canadian delegation leader Vernon Turner to wind up business.

Meanwhile, Canadians, many in bathing suits rather than the uniform they insisted on wearing even when other members of the International Commission of Control and Supervision (ICCS) didn't bother, loaded baggage today.

At 9 a.m. and 9:15 a.m. Tuesday, with a minimum of ceremony, they will take off in two Armed Forces Boeing 707s, leaving the ICCS they couldn't make work.

In one of the last acts, each Canadian will shake hands with Brig.-Gen. Phan Hoe Hiep, deputy chief of the South Vietnamese delegation to the two-part Joint Military Commission. This is being done at the South Vietnamese request.

If there were any plans for the Viet Cong's Provisional Revolutionary Government to say goodbye at the airport, it was not known by Canadians.

At Tan Son Nhut airbase where they are congregated the Canadians were mostly silent today. They stood amongst piles of baggage that was being picked up by trucks.

There was little banter.

The operations centre from where Canadians ran the over-all Canadian operation in Vietnam and from where "Operation Recovery" — the recovery of Capts. Ian Patten and Fletcher Thomson from the Viet Cong — was run was quiet.

"Bon Voyage Canada" said a sign over a free bar set up by the contractor who ran the ICCS mess.

LEAVE CANADA PARAMEDIC TOLD

QUESNEL (CP) — The federal immigration department has told an American paramedic who recently took over as the only ambulance driver here that he has until Aug. 13 to leave Canada.

Michael Stanley, who came here from San Francisco, said he was told that, as a United States citizen, he was breaking the law by accepting payment for his work without having applied for proper authorization. He is in Canada on a visitor's permit.

He receives $30 a day and lodging for himself, his wife and his daughter.

Pound, Dollar Gain

LONDON (UPI) — The U.S. dollar and the British pound sterling, travelling companions in the ups and downs of world money markets, moved upward in the currency exchanges today. Gold prices fell nearly everywhere.

Speculators and currency traders swapped money with one eye on Washington, where finance ministers of the International Monetary Fund's Group of 20 met to consider revisions in the whole international monetary system.

Pending any action the traders priced both the dollar and the pound higher. In London, where the pound is matched directly against the dollar, prices zig-zagged all day in wide swings.

The U.S. dollar gained on France's two-tiered money market. The financial dollar used by tourists and for private transactions rose to 4.14 francs against Friday's 4.105. The commercial dollar used for official deals increased from Friday's 4.07 francs to 4.0975.

In Zurich, the dollar bought 2.8265 Swiss francs at the close of business today, up from Friday's rate of 2.805. The dollar was up 1.29 per cent in Vienna to 17.25 schillings, and up slightly to 583.5 Italian lire in Milan.

But in a market which normally moves in fractions of a penny, the dollar's value against the British pound shot up and down by a cent or more during the day.

As the week began it took $2.5125 to buy a pound. By noon it was $2.515 but then suddenly it dropped one cent to $2.505. The price began climbing up again in the afternoon.

NEWS BRIEFS

FRASER RIVER SPILL PROBED

MLA Carl Lidden (NDP—Delta) said he saw a constant trail of oil, that ranged in width from a few feet to 50 or 60 feet, for five miles on the river.

Beef Shortage Seen

NEW YORK (AP) — Mayor John Lindsay says the city's regular meat suppliers have refused to sign contracts for providing beef during a two-week period next month to hospitals, jails and other municipal institutions.

Hijackers' Fate

BEIRUT (UPI) — Libya denounced air hijacking as "despicable" Sunday and said four air pirates who blew up a Japanese jumbo jet would stand trial — the first time hijackers have faced public punishment in the Arab world. Islamic law calls for the amputation of the arms of thieves, among other things, and this, Arab political sources said, could be the fate of the hijackers if they are convicted of stealing the aircraft.

Major Rezoning For Downtown

Victoria's zoning committee will get down to preliminary work Tuesday on one of its biggest-ever assignments — the preparation of a rezoning plan for the entire downtown area and its immediate hinterland.

Basic elements of the plan were outlined six weeks ago by the city planning department in a summary of the Central Area Study, and Tuesday's meeting will be the first in a series dealing in detail with individual aspects of the proposed new zoning policy.

The task is a complex one as it involves scrapping what is now virtually a blanket zone — the C2 commercial district stretching roughly from Central Park south to the Empress Hotel — and replacing it with a framework of 10 new or modified zoning categories.

These zones, say planning officials, will recognize the areas' individual characteristics, their present and future uses and their potential for redevelopment.

The general effect of the proposed new policy is to place curbs on permitted height and density over most of central Victoria which are more restrictive than the present limitations.

In its report to the zoning committee, the planning department proposes a similar approach to the one now being implemented with regard to the rezoning of James Bay — that is, to look at the draft zoning categories and their accompanying regulations in scheduled stages.

Under the schedule, the first area to be studied Tuesday will be the downtown "ribbon" of about 12 blocks between Douglas and Blanshard, from Chatham south to Humboldt.

The bulk of this area is seen as a "primary zone for multi-purpose development to intensive standards," with a maximum height of 140 feet and floor area three times the site coverage.

The Central Area Study explaining the proposed rezoning will not be available to the public before late August, the planning department states.

About a month after that, the department hopes to get down to preparing an official community plan for the central part of the city, and start the protracted task of submitting the proposals to public hearings.

N-Test Termed Failure

PARIS (UPI) — Newspapers today raised the possibility that France's second nuclear test in the South Pacific on the weekend may have been a technical failure.

The device was the second in a planned series. As a result French radio reports said the next explosion may be delayed until September.

OLD CHURCH BOMBED

An army spokesman said the soldiers dispersed about 30 young men in Londonderry's Catholic Creggan area when they set fire to a car and threw stones at troops.

Authorities said St. Bridget's Roman Catholic church in Killyman was battered beyond repair early today by a bomb blast and would have to be demolished.

Explosives experts said the roof of the County Tyrone church was blown off and the interior demolished by a bomb placed near the altar.

$10M Fire Rages

EUREKA, Calif. (AP) — A fire burned out of control in the Klamath and Six River national forests of Northern California today after charring 4,500 acres of timberland and causing more than $10 million damage.

Red-Laos Accord Denied

Times News Services

VIENTIANE — There were conflicting reports today over whether Premier Souvanna Phouma and the Communist Pathet Lao have reached a military and political agreement in Laos.

The Associated Press said the Pathet Lao announced the agreement Sunday night. Reuters news agency quoted Laotian government and Pathet Lao spokesmen as denying today that any agreement had been reached.

The AP report said the agreement leaves the Communists in control of 80 per cent of the territory in Laos but that the rightists will control two-thirds of the population.

AP said the signing of the agreement is expected later this week.

Reuter quoted Interior Minister Pheng Phongsavang, government chief negotiator at peace talks here with the Pathet Lao, as saying that substantial progress had been made but that no agreement will be signed before the end of August.

Reuter also quoted Soth Phet Rasi, the Pathet Lao chief representative in Vientiane, as saying that important breakthroughs have been made but an agreement has not been reached.

AP said the agreement provides for a coalition government and the withdrawal of all foreign forces within 60 days.

The Associated Press report said Prince Souvanna Phouma, the 72-year-old neutralist who has been premier for 11 years, will head the new government. His half-brother, Prince Souphanouvong, leader of the Pathet Lao, is expected to be named senior deputy premier.

Reuter said the negotiations were stalled by a Pathet Lao demand that one of their leaders be appointed deputy premier.

The Associated Press said the agreement provides for the opposing Communist and rightist factions to control the territory they held at the time of the ceasefire Feb. 21. This recognizes the Communists' hold on 80 per cent of the country's area. The rightists, however, control the main cities along the Mekong River where much of the population lives.

In other developments: — U.S. senator Stuart Symington acting chairman of the senate armed services committee, says he will seek new laws to prevent the top civilian boss of each military service from being deliberately kept in the dark about such controversial actions as the secret air war in Cambodia.

— Supreme court justice Thurgood Marshall will consider whether a lower court was correct when it ordered an immediate halt to the U.S. bombing of Cambodia. He scheduled a hearing today in Washington of the suit brought by a congresswoman and four air force officers that caused a U.S. district judge in New York last week to order a bombing halt.
